Gov't Eyes Luxury Loto

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal government is studying the feasibility of setting up luxury $20, $25 and $100 lottery games, possibly in the next three or four months, a Loto Canada official said Wednesday.

"There are researchers out in the market now testing whether the public would accept a $20, $25 or $100 draw," said Dan Pugliese, vice-president of promotion for Loto Canada.

"These would be luxury games and offered on a limited basis," he said. "We know white collar workers and secretaries buy the $10 tickets. But it is a question of not pushing beyond the maximum."

Lotteries are a $1 billion industry in Canada and the maximum could be $1.5 billion, he said.

Loto Canada started looking for alternatives to the $10 lottery when revenues slipped as the number of buyers dropped from 6.5 million in the April 2, 1978 draw to 5.5 million in the June 9 draw to 4.4 million in the August draw. There were 4.7 million buyers in the October draw.

A $1 Loto Select was scrapped last October — one month before the official start-up when the provinces refused to allow the federal govenment to compete in the low-cost computer game.

And scrapping of ~~the Loto~~ Select cost the federal government more than $13 million, Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo, revealed Wed-

Air Canada Tickets Slashed to Fill Seats

Air Canada announced today it will slash fares between March 27 and May 7 to fill surplus charter class seats. For $159 in Canadian funds passengers will be able to purchase round trip tickets between Victoria and New York, Victoria and Montreal or Victoria and Toronto.

Regular return fare is $448 to New York, $434 to Montreal and $402 to Toronto.

Similar reductions are planned on all other Air Canada routes in North America — except to Florida.

Glen Steeves, Air Canada's district manager in Victoria, said the company does not view the cuts as a price war.

"We don't know if the competition plans similar reductions."

But Air Canada has foreseen a surplus of charter class seats during the seven-week period and has reduced fares by more than 50 per cent in order to fill them.

Other sample round trip fares from Victoria include: Halifax $209, Quebec City $159, Regina $89, Edmonton $75, St. John's, Nfld., $209, and Charlottetown $209.

The formula: During the seven week period, the return fare for an Air Canada trip of 2,500 miles or more will be $209.

Between 1,901 and 2,500 miles, including most central Canada points, it will be $159.

From 1,501 to 1,900 miles it will be $129 and from 1,101 to 1,500 miles it will become $109 return.

From 700 to 1,100 miles the fare is $89 and under 700 miles the return fare will be about the usual one-way economy fare.

All rates are for round-trip tickets in Canadian funds.

The restrictions:

Reservations must be made at least seven days before departure and the stay must be at least seven days and not more than 30 days.

Travel must be completed by June 6. Tickets are to be purchased in advance and reservations can not be changed. There is a $20 charge for cancellation.

Passengers with existing charter reservations for the period may change them to sale-price fares.

Prospective passengers must make reservations at least seven days before departure.

Tickets must be bought within seven days of reservation. Payment must be made three days before departure when booking is made only seven days ahead.

The seven-week reduction makes fares lower than at any time in the past 10 years, said Guy Chiasson, Air Canada vice president for passenger planning and marketing.

He said Air Canada's obligation to operate seven days a week through all seasons had created a surplus in the spring and this brought about the decision

"The fact that we are a scheduled carrier allows us to make this surplus available at these almost unprecedented prices," he said.

Tax Deductible Mortgages 'Economically Perverse'

Times News Services

TORONTO — The federal government has rejected a proposal to review deductibility of mortgage interest payments, but has given varying degrees of support to 46 general recommendations by a task force on industrial strategy.

The 12-member panel task force — made up of six labor leaders and six businessmen — was set up after the First Ministers' Conference in February 1978 to propose ways to strengthen industry.

The 46 recommendations came in its report, released Wednesday.

Most of the recommendations were general. "We accept most of them, agree in principle with some and disagree on a very few," said Robert Andras, president of the Board of Economic Development Ministers.

The three proposals rejected were a review of deductibility of mortgage payments to aid low income families; a study of value added taxes in place of existing taxes and elimination of sales taxes on building material.

In its response, the government said "a consideration of proposals made to date for mortgage interest deductibility shows them to be generally regressive, discriminatory against tenants and to produce economically perverse effects on housing prices, capital markets and interest rates."

Hydro Buses Stay; Gas Hike Delayed

B.C. Hydro will continue to operate and finance urban transit in the Victoria area and Greater Vancouver for an indefinite period, Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday.

The announcement means a three-cent-a-gallon hike in the gasoline tax due April 1 has been postponed.

Hydro will pay this year's operating deficit of about $60 million and will continue to finance transit until the provincial government can pass legislation to amend its transportation policy.

Vander Zalm indicated the new legislation would come as soon as possible in the session, which is expected at the end of March.

The Capital Region District and the Greater Vancouver Region District were to take over urban transit April 1, but GVRD directors said Monday they would not sign a transit agreement until the provincial government agrees to pay a greater share of anticipated deficits.

"We're halted for the time being, and we're going to have to take a different course in part," Vander Zalm told reporters.

He said he has had excellent co-operation from other communities within the province, including Greater Victoria, "all of which have recognized the provincial transit funding formula as the most generous in Canada.

"It is regrettable that the GVRD failed to take on the transit function, thus losing a valuable tool in their otherwise extensive planning programs."

Vander Zalm said his ministry would take advantage of the delay to study other means of financing and to arrange the transfer of staff from B.C. Hydro to the Urban Transit Authority.

"I don't mind the breathing time, and certainly I'll take advantage of it — but I'm not the type of person that likes to put things off. I would have preferred to have made the transfers by the initial date."

The minister said his ministry is preparing legislation which would allow him to appoint a commission to handle transit in Vancouver and surrounding area — an action he said Tuesday he is prepared to take.

Vander Zalm said the two transit systems would continue to be financed by Hydro, and plans to impose a three-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax in the two regional districts will be shelved for now.

Capital Region District board chairman Murray Glazier welcomed the postponement.

The delay will give the CRD time to negotiate a better agreement with the provincial government.

Victoria Man Among Four In Drug Bust

Four persons including a 57-year-old Victoria man are in custody following the seizure of a pound of heroin with the street value of up to $1 million at Vancouver International Airport Tuesday.

Wah Young of 107 Government Street, Sharon Carlson, 40 of Langley, and Gary Robert Morris, 43, and Helen Fraser, 63, both of Vancouver were to appear in provincial court in Richmond today.

The four are charged with conspiring to import heroin and conspiring to traffick in the drug.

Young is also charged with importing heroin and possession of the drug.

China Refuses To Back Down As War Hotter

Times News Services

Reinforced tank-led Chinese troops pressed their attack on two provincial capitals in Vietnam today and official Peking sources said China would not withdraw its invasion forces which were already fighting the Vietnamese regular army.

Japanese reports said the Soviet Union has begun mobilizing troops along its Chinese border in apparent response to Peking's 15 mile thrust into Vietnam. Japan offered to mediate the Sino-Vietnamese dispute, saying it feared a long war.

Reports from Hanoi said Chinese reinforcements were pouring through the ancient "Friendship Pass" invasion route into Vietnam with a battle shaping up for control of Lang Son, barely 80 miles above Hapoi.

Meanwhile, Khmer Rouge forces loyal to ousted Premier Pol Pot have attacked Vietnamese-led troops in northwest Cambodia and killed more than 50 of them, Khmer Rouge Radio said today.

Indochina analysts here said Khmer Rouge guerrilla units were exerting pressure in the area because the Vietnamese were thought to be having serious supply problems.

The radio claimed Russian and Cuban advisers were helping command the Vietnamese army forces, however, Vietnam continues to deny it has any forces in Cambodia.

As the United States asked the United Nations Security Council today to convene an urgent session "the situation in Southeast Asia," the Soviet Union was still keeping mum again on its intentions in Vietnam despite reports of it had warships and reconnaissance planes heading toward the scene of the Chinese-Vietnamese conflict.

The U.S. stressed it wants the UN agenda to include the "situation in Southeast Asia" and not solely the Chinese invasion of Vietnam.

Taping Fouls Up Fulton Charge?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A radio reporter's efforts to gain first-hand knowledge of day-to-day police work has resulted in an uproar in legal circles and suggestions that charges against a judge and a suspected prostitute will have to be dropped.

George Garrett of CKNW recorded a heated discussion between Mr. Justice E. Davie Fulton of the B.C. Supreme Court and a police officer when the judge was involved in a minor accident.

Garrett was also involved in recording a conversation between an undercover police officer and a woman in downtown Vancouver.

CKNW made both tapes public, the one involving the prostitution suspect as part of a news story about the first charge of soliciting in the city in a year.

The tapings aroused concern among Crown lawyers, who feel that the recordings could jeopardize trials before the courts.

Granduc Mine Re-Opening

Provincial Economic Development Development Minister Don Phillips today announced an American-owned company, Esso Minerals Canada Ltd., will re-open the Granduc mine near Stewart.

The project will provide about 330 jobs in the copper mine and mill and an annual payroll of $6 million.

Work would begin this summer to reactivate the mill.

Because of the American ownership, the project will have to be approved by the federal government's Foreign Investment Review Agency.

Granduc operated the mine from November, 1970, to June 30, 1978, and took out 600,000 tons of copper concentrate before closing due to low prices.

With the price of copper increasing, the mine has become viable again.

Phillips said new mining methods which will be employed by Esso are also a factor in making the mine viable.

The mine will be a major economic boost for the northwestern section of B.C., he said.

CS Fingerprinting Gets MP's Ire

By RON CLINGEN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Charges of "undemocratic governmental invasion of privacy" were hurled in the Commons Wednesday amid renewed evidence of a massive unexplained fingerprinting of public servants.

Leeds Conservative MP Tom Cossitt demanded that Prime Minister Trudeau be required to make a statement of government policy on the matter — something Cossitt has been unable to get after more than two years of trying.

The MP — who has carved a reputation as a security bloodhound — said the latest fingerprinting has been within the past two weeks on certain members of the national headquarters staff of the employment and immigration department, housed in the Bourque Building at 305 Rideau Street.

Cossitt said the fingerprinting is being "surreptitiously" conducted even on public servants in non-security positions.

His attempt to have the Commons order a statement by the prime minister failed because it did not receive the necessary unanimous consent.

Trudeau was in Toronto at the time with nine of his cabinet ministers preparing for a full cabinet session and other meetings there today.

Cossitt told the Commons the fingerprinting of public servants "appears to constitute a horrendous governmental invasion of privacy and resemble undemocratic procedures practised by fascist and communist police states.

Cossitt noted a question he placed on the Commons order paper in February of 1977 in which he demanded a full explanation of the fingerprinting, still remains there unanswered. He has tried unsuccessfully on at least four occasions to push the government into supplying the answer.

"But every time I bring the issue up in the House of Commons, I get more phone calls from public servants who say they have been fingerprinted," he said.

Royal Knock for Bosses

LONDON — Prince Charles plunged headlong into the furor over Britain's current wave of strikes Wednesday by saying management was to blame for much of the nation's problems.

In a rare intervention by a member of the royal family in the country's labor-management problems, Charles said, "I have not the slightest hesitation in making the observation that much of British management does not seem to understand the importance of the human factor."

The 30-year-old prince, speaking at a luncheon in London, said he has found during visits to factories that problems arise because of management's failure to communicate with workers.

The prince attacked the idea that trade unions are impossible to deal with. "Bloody mindedness, it it arises, must do so surely because of misunderstandings," he added.

The comments drew a tart response from Sir John Methven, director-general of the Confederatoon of British Industry (CBI), the employers' organization.

Methven said that if the prince had worked in industry a number of years, he might "appreciate the problems rather more."

Meanwhile, representatives of the 1.1 million public-service workers — the country's lowest-paid — decided to recommend acceptance of a complex pay package that will provide them with an immediate nine per cent increase and the prospect of more later this year.

News of the negotiators' plea came too late to prevent an unofficial 24-hour strike Wednesday by militants among the country's 17,000 ambulance drivers.

Troops were called in to replace the striking ambulance drivers in London, Manchester and Liverpool.

The striking drivers defied their union's call to postpone a one-day national stoppage and refused to answer even emergency calls. They are campaigning for a basic weekly wage of £65 ($156).

In the southern city of Southampton, some cars carried stickers reading: "Help take the strain off hospitals. Please do not drop dead unless it is urgent."

Representatives of more than 250,000 civil servants said they are going ahead with a strike on Friday.

Security Head Quits in Iran

TEHRAN (Reuter) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's internal security chief has resigned after a left-wing U.S. lawyer alleged that he was trying to obtain American support to crush anti-Western elements in Iran.

Col. Nasrollah Tavakoli submitted his resignation after lawyer Ralph Schoenman said Tavakoli told him he wanted to install pro-Western officers in the Iranian armed forces to protect U.S. and British interests.

Sheikup in Oil Rate

Times News Services

Libya today raised the price of its oil by 5 per cent because of the chaotic supply situation on world markets created by the cut-off of Iranian oil.

Algeria, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Qatar and Iraq also have announced plans to increase prices.

The move was not unexpected since other countries have taken similar action. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has scheduled a special consultative session in Geneva March 26 to discuss the crisis of supply on the world markets.

Algeria says it will raise its oil prices for the second quarter of the year and the authoritative, New York-based Petroleum Intelligence Weekly says a premium of 15 to 20 per cent per barrel can be expected.

Several U.S. oil companies have announced production cuts to conserve available crude oil in the wake of the cutoff of Iranian oil exports.

The move could further reduce the flow of gasoline to neighborhood pumps, experts warned.

Shell Oil Co. said Wednesday the reduction will involve all refined products. Shell announced a reduction of 5 to 8 per cent in the amount of crude going into its refineries, beginning March 1.

Atlantic Richfield Co. said it would soon have to limit sales of some petroleum products.

China Won't Back Down

Pacific Fleet is believed to be cruising toward Vietnam aboard a strategic command ship capable of directing a war.

The commander was identified as Admiral Vladimir Masllov and the ship as the 16,000 Sverdlov-class cruiser Admiral Senyavin. The cruiser, packed with sophisticated electronic equipment designed to command Russian forces over thousands of square kilometres, passed through the Tsushima Straits between Japan and South Korea on Wednesday night.

Soviet Tupolev-95 Bear long-range electronic reconnaissance planes are operating off Vietnam from airbases near Vladivostok while Soviet intelligence-gathering ships are in the Gulf of Tonkin, the sources said.

Likely Delayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday there is little chance the government will move before the next election to ease penalties for marijuana possession.

"I'm not optimistic," Lalonde said when asked whether he will introduce before this spring's anticipated election legislation that would eliminate possession of marijuana for personal use as a criminal offence.

'Don't Know Where I Belong'

SAN FRANCISCO — Eight men and four women were chosen as jurors Wednesday in a $7-million damage suit by a woman who claims a doctor bungled her trans-sexual operation and left her neither man nor woman. The woman, Julie Phillips, 38, wept during jury selection. The defendants, who were not in court, are Dr. John Brown, said by his lawyer to be practising medicine in Mexico, and James Spence of San Jose, Calif. Brown's licence to practise medicine in California has been revoked. "I don't know where I belong," Phillips told a reporter. "I can't have sex. I don't belong in the gay life. I don't belong in the straight life . . . it isn't the money; I want peace of mind."

LOS ANGELES — Michelle Triola Marvin sobbed as a former woman friend, testifying for Lee Marvin, denied she accompanied Miss Marvin to an abortionist. "I never knew Michelle was pregnant," Patricia Hulsman, a one-time movie stand-in, said Wednesday. "She never told me that." Miss Marvin burst into tears. At a recess, she rushed from the courtroom and wept until mascara ran down her cheeks. "I am horrified, Miss Marvin told reporters. "It never occurred to me she would lie about that. What has Lee said to these people that they would lie about something like that?"

BERLIN — U.S. director Michael Cimino walked out of the Berlin Film Festival today to protest against the organizer's refusal to repudiate a Soviet protest against the showing of his Vietnam war movie Deer Hunter, said sources at United Artists, which is handling the film's European distribution. The sources said Cimino decided to pass up the West Berlin premiere Thursday afternoon and fly to London because the festival organizers failed publicly to reject the Soviet protest. The film remained on the festival program. Deer Hunter has been nominated for nine Oscars.

TORONTO — Bud Cullen, federal minister of employment and immigration, sat down at a new $20-million computer system Wednesday and told it he wanted a job where the need for workers is increasing. Cullen's own profession, law, was far down on a list of suggested professions. The computer system, with terminals in 50 Canada Employment Centres, will be linked with another computer system in Toronto, already operating in Hamilton and Vancouver, that will tell the job seeker about all available work or careers best suited to his talents. As for Cullen's future, the computer told him that with all his talents he should be prime minister. "Someone has been fooling with the machine," Cullen laughed.

HOUSTON — Chad Green, the three-year-old Massachusetts leukemia victim whose parents defied a court order and fled to Mexico to treat him with Laetrile, made a brief visit to the United States Wednesday. "I'm fine," he laughed at photographers before burying his head in his mother's leg. Gerald and Dianne Green of Scituate, Mass., slipped back into the U.S. Wednesday for a television appearance despite a contempt of court order still pending against them for refusing to let Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital dictate Chad's treatment.

JULIE PHILLIPS

WINDSOR, Ont. — The reason Catherine Baby is alive today is probably because she shops at Carl's Meat Market. A customer in Carl's mentioned she had tried to visit the 91-year-old Mrs. Baby, but there was no answer at her door. The store operator, Ann Ajersch, and her customers became concerned and telephoned Mrs. Baby, but there was no answer. Mrs. Ajersch phoned police who went to the house and found Mrs. Baby lying on the floor, pinned by a large piece of plaster that had fallen from the ceiling, her body temperature only about 29° C., 8° below normal. She lives with two dogs, seven puppies and three cats, is in hospital in fair condition.

HOLLYWOOD — Newspaper advertising for the violent gang movie The Warriors has been cancelled by Paramount Pictures in the wake of two deaths at California theatres showing the film. A 19-year-old youth was shot to death at a Palm Springs drive-in and an 18-year-old was stabbed to death in Oxnard at showings of the film. In Boston, police said the stabbing death of a 16-year-old youth at a subway station may also have been instigated by the movie. There have been other reports of vandalism at theaters showing the film in various cities. "We couldn't put our finger on it, that it caused the problems, but we just stopped the advertising," Paramount spokesman Bob Goodfried said. However, Gordon Weaver, Paramount senior vice-president for worldwide marketing, said the ads probably would be reinstated in a different format.

Treu Acquital Appeal Eyed

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday he hopes to announce by the end of the week whether the government will appeal the case of Alexander Peter Treu, acquitted Tuesday of violating the Official Secrets Act.

Lalonde also indicated to reporters the government does not favor providing compensation to Treu, if the case is not appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

And he said that six months ago this controversial case caused the government to establish a committee of senior officials to review the secrets act with possible changes in mind.

Lalonde was commenting after Progressive Conservative MP Gerald Baldwin pressed him in the Commons not to appeal Treu's acquittal and to compensate the Montreal engineer for financial and personal loss suffered during four years of police investigation and prosecution in the courts.

The Quebec Court of Appeals Tuesday overturned a lower court decision convicting Treu, 57, of violating the secrets act.

Baldwin, who has crusaded for Treu in Parliament for months, said that Treu should be compensated "to restore people's faith in the system of justice."

THANKS, SIMON, says Mrs. Diane Primerano with a kiss after her parrot sounded the alarm after smoke started coming from the basement of her Niagara Falls home. The bird was quicker than a mechanical smoke detector installed in the house.

Mixed Deserts Given Officer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A naval reserve officer whose best-selling book, In Retreat, criticizes the military's diminished role under the Trudeau government, has been placed on inactive status shortly after receiving a medal for 12 years exemplary service in the armed forces.

Gerald Porter, 35, said he thinks top reserve officials buckled to political pressure to end his career as a reserve officer in retaliation for the book's criticism of military policy planners.

A spokesman for Defence Minister Barney Danson denied the minister had anything to do with Porter being shunted to inactive reserve.

Porter said he missed his annual two-week tour of duty last summer because he broke his arm two weeks before he was scheduled to report.

He said naval reserve headquarters in Halifax turned down his request for a deferment, telling him his failure to attend the two-week officer training course left him standing "in the way of career progression of officers who have taken the course."

Consequently, he now is on the supplementary list of inactive reservists.

"I think the whole thing is a grand joke," he said. "I know lots of guys in the reserve, and I don't know anyone who has been put on the supplementary list because he couldn't go away for two weeks."

Don Lory, Danson's press aide, said he thought Porter's explanation unlikely.

"I just can't see an incident like this happening," Lory said. "The reserves are a hell of a good bunch."

Allan McKinnon, Progressive Conservative defence critic, described Porter's demotion as "hard to believe and harder to tolerate."

"This can't be anything but retaliation for his book," he said. "It's a sad commentary."

Lets Talk About Value

It's really easy to get price deals on hi fi equipment these days. If you just look through this paper, you'll see stereo systems marked down on page after page.

But most deals on stereo systems are like any other kind. When you pay a cheap price, you usually get a cheap product. So why buy it? In the end, it's not going to satisfy you. It's not going to give you that special feeling you get when you listen to your favorite music on a really great system. What's more, it's liable to break down.

And that's why at Sound Hounds we don't just try to give you the lowest possible prices on stereo systems. Instead, we give you the lowest possible prices on the very best stereo systems on the market. And that's a promise.

Let's Talk About the Components

The heart of System $949 is the new Advent loudspeaker (the successor to the original best-selling Advent loudspeaker), which we're offering in its utility walnut-grain finish. A pair of the new Advents cover the full ten-octave range of audible sound with unbeatable balance and clarity—and with high-frequency output that's been increased to take advantage of today's best recordings. Their bass, by the way, is not only unsurpassed but mainly unapproached.

To drive the Advents in our $949 System, we have the new Onkyo TX 2500 II stereo receiver. The Onkyo powers the new Advents admirably, and its FM and AM reception brings in those hard-to-get stations up and down the dial.

The Pioneer PL514 automatic return turntable rounds things out. (Beautifully and gently with your records).

We're so sure this music system will outperform everything on the market that we'll eat any stereo system you find that costs less and sounds better.

The B.C. Tel Deal

Confusing and complicated are words which best describe the recent political controversy over the B.C. Telephone Company's plans to take over two telephone equipment suppliers from its American parent, General Telephone and Electronics.

Political discussion of the move has tended to be shrill and emotional — qualities which unfortunately seem to mark most discussions of B.C. Tel in this province — and has concentrated on the obvious fact that GTE's control of B.C. Tel will be increased.

B.C. Tel will pay for Automatic Electric and Lenkurt Electric with about three million shares of B.C. Tel stock worth, at present prices, about $47 million. This will increase GTE's interest in the B.C. company from just over 50 per cent to about 56 per cent.

Premier Bill Bennett, who got involved in the deal for some unknown reason, requested that the voting rights attached to the shares be vested in the new B.C. Resources Investment Corp., and GTE has apparently agreed in principle.

It's not quite the victory that Bennett proclaims, however. According to B.C. Tel, its parent company has agreed to vest only half of the shares' voting rights, not all of the shares, as the premier implied.

But then neither is the deal scandalous, or a mere smokescreen for further U.S. takeover as the opposition New Democratic Party has charged. True, GTE increases its control of B.C. Tel (does the amount above 50 per cent matter much?) but control of two prosperous electronics companies is brought directly to Vancouver and a new communications research facility will be established in B.C.

Another criticism of the deal is that it locks B.C. Tel into a single source for its equipment. "Vertical integration" in the telephone business has been criticized before. A study done by a Simon Fraser University professor for the the federal government last year said that B.C. Tel and Bell Canada Ltd., which runs the telephone systems of Ontario and Quebec, probably would be more productive if they ended their special relationships with related equipment suppliers. It found that the government-owned phone systems on the prairies were more productive, in part because they obtain equipment from a variety of sources. There are other factors involved which some conveniently forget, such as the fact that since the prairie phone companies are Crown corporations, they pay no income tax.

NDP MLA Gary Lauk suggests that the takeover ("this diabolical scheme by GTE") obliges B.C. Tel to use "inferior, costly and obsolescent" equipment manufactured by Automatic Electric and Lenkurt, but that is rather farfetched. The same telephone systems run by the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba praised by the federal report and cited repeatedly by the NDP as models of government enterprise, use some Automatic Electric equipment. It's good for them, but obsolete for B.C. Tel?

This share exchange and takeover carry mixed blessings. Ideally, communications firms should be owned and controlled by Canadians. A previous B.C. government onced toyed with nationalizing B.C. Tel but decided that the $400 million-plus cost of doing so was rather too much to pay for the privilege.

On balance, the benefits of this deal outweigh the drawbacks. GTE will own a little more of B.C. Tel and more dividends will head over the border into the U.S. But control and earnings of the two subsidiaries, with plants scattered across Canada, will remain here. B.C. also will acquire an embryonic electronics research establishment that could develop into a small industry of its own.

Ah, Restraint!

Ah, restraint! Magic word of municipal budget-cutters as they begin their yearly deliberations, well aware of the taxpayers' horror at the spending of a single unnecessary cent!

Take the Vancouver school board, for instance. A group elected for its commitment to fiscal responsibility (a term that seems to have become synonymous with restraint in the minds of many), it agreed this week that four of its members could spend $5,000 of the taxpayers' money this summer attending conventions around the world. They'll make up for it, of course, by reducing the budget for such items as professional development for teachers and help for handicapped students.

Or, coming closer to home, take Saanich council. Council has shown great restraint in recent days by laying off 11 employees and agreeing that council's personnel committee must examine the justification for every staff position that becomes vacant. At the same time it agreed that the taxpayers should foot the bill for every single council member to attend the Union of B.C. Municipalities convention this year, and for senior staff to attend a variety of other conventions.

The politicians argue that these conventions are valuable for them. Without belaboring the obvious, of course they are. But are such conventions the most valuable use that councils and school boards can find for the taxpayers' money?

Ah, restraint! It all depends on whose ox is being gored.

UK Sick? Look at Mirabel

LONDON, England — Among its many other charms, Mirabel Airport's decor of custard yellow alternating with white radiates to passing passengers all the conviviality of the inside of a refrigerator.

Maddening though it is to have to pass through it, Mirabel is a good way to approach Britain these days. It makes you humble. It makes you realize that the British government, for all its woes and faults, has committed no single blunder to equal this megalomaniac airport where most times you'll find about as many people as you would inside a refrigerator.

Britain-bashing is back in fashion. Squads of U.S. pundits disgorge at Heathrow airport, stories already half-written about an island sinking giggling into the sea. The West German magazine Der Spiegel is running a series titled Das Kranke England, (Sick Britain), which has got the British incensed because they, more than other Europeans, remember the bit of bother the Germans caused a few years back.

Garbage Indicator

Garbage rampant has become the symbol of Britain today. Piles of the stuff stand outside each West End hotel and restaurant. In Leicester Square, renamed "Fester Square," the bulging plastic bags almost hide the statue of William Shakespeare as he gazes down upon a sea of green bubbles.

Yet when you think about it, garbage is an odd standard to use to measure a country in decline. The richer the society, the more garbage it produces. Poor countries produce no garbage at all.

My personal measure of Britain in decline, admittedly a biased one, has to do with the state of its press, rather than with the state of its unions.

It's the British press that is sick. Sure the best here is equal to the best anywhere; or is better. But there's less and less of the best. The Times has been shut down since November. In its place, fresh on the newsstands the week I was there, is The Star. It offers a full-color, centrefold nude, a first for journalism anywhere.

Even the BBC, of which we get an exaggerated impression because it exports only its best stuff, is cutting and running. The last, full-length public affairs program on the BBC's main television channel is about to be dropped to make room for yet another "chat show," the local and much more descriptive name for talk shows. "Endless interviews with Peter Ustinov," huffed one critic.

The British press seems even to have got the strikes mostly wrong.

For one thing, to put them in perspective, the coldest February weather in two decades has caused far more problems than have the strikes. For lack of de-icing equipment, trains run late, or unheated, or unlit, or all of these, or not at all. A three-inch snowfall in London forced all buses and taxis back into their garages and forced my wife and I and friends to trudge three miles back to our hotel from an after-theatre restaurant.

BRITISH TRASH
. . . is this a poor society?

For another thing, even in themselves the strikes have caused fewer problems than the press has portrayed. The strike of lorry drivers, which the Employer's Federation predicted would cause one million unemployed, has done neither that nor, another widespread prediction this, has it caused any shortages in the food stores — other than those caused by panic-buying in anticipation of shortages.

For a last thing, before joining the fox-hunt on unions here, remember that Britain in the last decade has lost one-half as many industrial man-days by strikes as has Canada (The reason is that our strikes, though fewer in number, last longer). Remember as well that for all the talk of British union power, and of socialist levelling-down, British incomes are as unequal as are Canadian ones.

Here, to quote the stone statue in Leicester Square, is the rub. The rash of strikes by those who do the dirtiest jobs in Britain, from picking up garbage to emptying hospital bedpans, amounts to a peasant revolt.

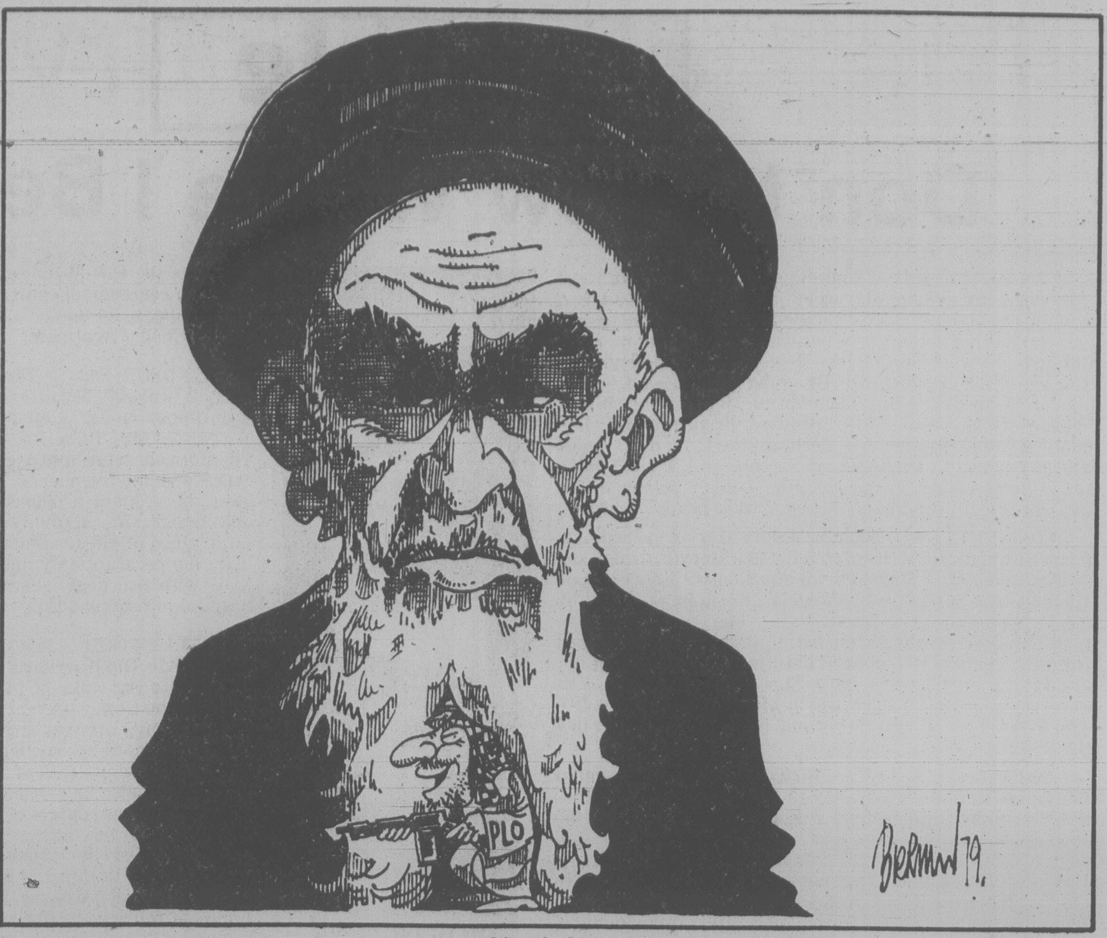
The peasants are right to revolt against a five per cent wage guideline when inflation is back up to the 10 per cent mark, and to revolt against being trapped into salaries of $10,000 a year (remember, the cost of living is about one-third higher than in Canada, and income taxes are about as high again).

Too Many Workers

The real trap into which the peasants have tumbled though, is that there are far too many of them. Britain's equivalent to Mirabel is that it has allowed its bureaucracy to bloat and then, to balance the budget, has grossly underpaid it. For example, during the last 15 years the number of health workers increased by two-thirds at the same time as hospital bed usage decreased by one-fifth.

It's an open question whether the British policy of low unemployment and low wages is worse or better than our own policy of high wages and high unemployment.

Beyond question, though, Britain can't afford to continue its particular policy much longer. The week I was there, local governments offered water workers the 16 per cent increase they had demanded. The union said no. It did so because governments demanded in return that all workers guarantee actually to show up for work. Until now, it turns out selected water workers routinely stayed away from the job because had they all punched in they could no longer have disguised the fact that there were far too many of them.



Laughing in his beard.

JAMES RESTON

'Neighbors and Strangers'

MEXICO CITY — It is 30 years since Octavio Paz wrote the Labyrinth of Solitude — the classic study of life and thought in Mexico. Now we find him in his cluttered and noisy penthouse in the very centre of Mexico City, reflecting on the visit of President Carter and still musing about the difference between our two countries.

He agrees that formal relations between the United States and Mexico are friendly, despite some differences over oil and illegal aliens, but our peoples, he insists, are neighbors and strangers.

"The great difference between us," he says, "is not economical, not political — not because you are very rich and we are very poor. The difference is historical.

A Very Great Difference

"You in the United States were born with the beginning of the new world, with reformation, liberalism, criticism, and democracy, and capitalism. And we in Mexico start with the old empire, the Aztec empire. It was young but it was very old because it was the inheritor of the old theocracies of this part of the world — the oldest thing in history. And then arrived a power — the Spanish. So we are a mixture of the pre-Columbians and the Roman Catholic church's counter-reformation — and this is a very great difference."

Paz is interested in but not very excited about Mexico's new discoveries of oil. It may give Mexico time, he says, but oil in the hands of the state, he says, is dangerous. The greatest need in this country, he insists, is political reform. The greatest danger in North America is ignorance of each country's history — indifference in the United States about Mexico, and prejudice about "the American monster" in Mexico.

This is a theme one hears in Mexico City these days during every thoughtful discussion about the meeting of Carter with President Portillo. Not what the two presidents will do about the price of gas, but what they will do, if anything, about improving the education of the rising generation in the history of the two countries (and Canada).

What is being taught in the Mexican schools about the United States? Officials at the U.S. embassy know that what we call "the Mexican war" is defined in the school books of Mexico as "the unfair war" or the "American intervention" that took half of Mexico's territory and added it to the territory of the United States.

But beyond that, U.S. officials here are just beginning to study this question and it may be significant that even Carter's speechwriters know so little about Mexico that they came here to talk to Paz before preparing the president's remarks to the Mexican parliament.

Paz, a handsome and energetic man now in his 60s, is critical of the one-party political domination of Mexico. The dominant bureaucracy of the state here is more worrying than corruption, he says. Both the press and education, he thinks, are unduly influenced by the left.

There is little realization in Mexico, he agrees, that Latin America has been defended from the tumults of the world in this century by the energy and power of the United States and its allies in the western world. This he hopes may be corrected in the last quarter of the century, and yet he sounds pessimistic about the moral foundations of the west and talks of this very much like the Russian philosopher, Alexander Solzhenitsyn. But in sort of an epilogue to his classic book, Paz makes the following statement:

"The sickness of the west is moral, rather than social and economic. It is true that their economic problems are serious, and that they have not been resolved; on the contrary, inflation and unemployment are on the rise. It is also true that poverty has not disappeared, despite affluence. Several groups — women, racial, religious and linguistic minorities — still are or feel excluded. But the real, most profound discord lies in the soul.

"The future has become the realm of horror, and the present has turned into a desert. The liberal societies spin tirelessly, not forward, but round and round. The hedonism of the west is the other face of desperation; its skepticism is not wisdom but renunciation; its nihilism ends in suicide and in inferior forms of credulity, such as political fanaticism and magical chimeras. The empty place left by Christianity in the modern soul is not filled by philosophy but by the crudest superstitions. Our eroticism is a technique, not an art or a passion . . ."

He is no less pessimistic about the relationships between the United States and Mexico. "In general," he says, "Americans have not looked for a Mexico in Mexico; they have looked for their obsessions, enthusiasms, phobias, hopes, interests — and these are what they have found. In short, the history of our relationship is the history of a mutual and stubborn deceit, usually involuntary, though not always so . . ."

A Serious Conversation

In conclusion, Paz says that the United States and Mexico are "condemned" to live alongside each other, but are separated more by very profound social, economic and psychic differences than by physical and political frontiers.

To prove that these differences really have nothing to do with oil or economics or political power, Paz says that we have only to imagine Mexico suddenly turned into a prosperous, mighty country.

"Far from disappearing," he concludes, "the differences would become more acute and more clear-cut. The reason is obvious: these differences are not only quantitative, they pertain to the domain of civilizations. What separates us is the very thing that unites us. We are two distinct versions of western civilization."

One descends from Paz's penthouse vaguely depressed. But he argues against this: "The real point is to have a serious conversation about where our two counries are," he says on the way down, "and maybe Mr. Carter and President Portillo will begin this conversation in the next few days."

It Was All Chaff

Newspaper editors were once described, rather accurately, as people who observe the social scene, separate the wheat from the chaff, and then make sure the chaff gets printed.

This observation fits rather well the chaff that has recently appeared on these pages concerning the Greater Victoria school board.

"The slowness with which the 1979 Greater Victoria school board conducts its business is past being a joke."

The facts are that the so-called slowness is a direct result of old-fashioned democracy at work. And this is as it should be. The school board is responsible for an expenditure of some $45 million. There is no way the taxpayer can be properly protected if the school board hands out that kind of money at the same speed that McDonald's hands out hamburgers.

"There is surely some perverse irony in the fact that the [board] meeting was held at a school in the extreme northwest corner of the district when the major agenda item of public interest concerned Oak Bay high school in the southeast of the district."

The facts are that the decision to hold board meetings in various district schools was made long before the Oak Bay high school request was received by the board. In addition, the Oak Bay high school "problem" hardly qualifies as a major item on the agenda.

"If the same pace continues for the rest of 1979, the board will just about have finished July's business when it comes time for the November elections."

The facts are that the board meets as often as necessary to complete the work that needs to be done. Quite rightfully, the board schedules extra meetings in order to do the job required. What's wrong with a board that meets as often as necessary to complete the agenda?

"For all intents and purposes, the board has no committees. . . . There are no committees that regularly deal with the day-to-day routine administrative matters, handling the details in committee meetings and then making recommendations to the board."

The facts are that this statement is completely false. The board has established 10 committees covering such important matters as personnel, finance, planning, student review, etc. Routine administrative matters are supposed to be dealt with by the administration and not by the board. That's why the board has senior administrators. The board should concern itself with policy matters and this it does.

There is so much chaff in the editorial that one is lucky to find a single grain of wheat.

Got 'Goonocky'

Oh, the horror of it! The shock! The shame! We, the kings of hockey, got clobbered by the red shirts!

Oh, the infamy! How could they do this to us? How could it happen?

That can be answered in two short sentences. The Soviets conquered hockey. We ditched hockey and conquered "goonocky."

It's as simple as that. Case closed. — A.F. Davies, 4611 Vantreight Drive.

The Revolutionary Toy

By WILLIAM GREIDER
The Washington Post

Serious people, the ones who walk about under little dark clouds worrying about the "energy crisis" and the future of western democracy, should pay more attention to our new toys. Serious people, if they think about toys at all, are mildly embarrassed by the ridiculous gadgets and gizmos which the rest of us love to buy.

So serious people will groan in disbelief when I announce that America's new toy this season is the tool for cultural revolution. This season we are buying a democratic toy which will liberate us all.

Seriously. This new toy will eventually free every American family from the wretched, mind-deadening laff track of network TV. It will give voice and image to a thousand new ideas across the country, not to mention tens of thousands of unknown entertainers. It will invigorate the meaning of "free speech" in America and retard our drift toward the centralized "mind control" imagined in Orwell's 1984.

I am talking, of course, about the new home video machines — the video cassette recorder and its potent little brother, the video disc player. For some years hence, serious people will probably continue to regard these machines as frivolous luxuries, until one day they realize that these toys have become the new necessities of modern life. Most American families, rich and poor, will own one or both of them and these machines will lead us into a new epoch, nothing less, one which encourages many of the American values that now seem threatened.

Does that sound too grand? Only a bit premature. Right now about 700,000 families own a video tape recorder, one of the competing models which Sony and RCA and other companies are selling on TV. Every normal person I know would love to have one, but most of us still think it's too much money to spend on a mere toy, $500 to $1,000. Most of us will get over our reluctance. Anyway, as the market expands, the price of video recorders is expected to drop, just as television sets became cheaper as their popularity increased.

In the long run, the video disc player may prove to be more popular than the video tape recorders and, thus, more revolutionary. These disc mchines, which Magnavox is now test-marketing in Atlanta and other manufacturers are readying for retail, are like phonographs, only they produce a TV show — light and color and stereo sound. Think of a record which gives you high-fidelity "Fleetwood Mac" and also shows you "Fleetwood Mac' performing on your living room TV screen. Or think of LaBoheme, if you prefer. Or Hamlet or Animal House.

Everybody has different estimates of how quickly these devices will permeate America. After the Second World War, television itself took less than 10 years to reach 85 per cent of America's homes. Perhaps these video auxiliaries will take somewhat longer, but maybe not. As these home video machines spread through the nation, they are going to generate new markets for independent programming and knock the corners off the "mass audience" which network television has created. And who will weep for the three national networks (or for the advertising industry which controls them) if millions of Americans simply tune out the drivel and become their own program directors?

'Home Video Machines Will Liberate Us From the Banalities of Network TV And Open Up New Cultural Frontiers'

Once enough families own a home video machine, that will stimulate independent outlets to produce and sell a variety of tapes and discs, and each of us will enjoy more control over the feeding of our own minds. More freedom to pick and choose or say "no" to the homogenized network stuff. More power to select the information and entertainment which each family consumes: more variety, more quality, more leverage over what the children see.

Families who feel threatened or offended by the mindless, enervating creations of ABC, NBC and CBS will have alternative prime-time "channels" to choose. Eccentric viewpoints, too provocative for the nervous networks or cowardly local stations, will be able to gain access to the most impor)tant public forum of our time, th TV set in private living rooms.

I am concentrating here on one technology only because it is already upon us, a retail item already selling in the marketplace. Actually, there are three or four other video technologies on the way which may be even more revolutionary. One of them is small-scale satellite antennas, attached to your average bungalow, which will give the homeowner access to 100 different channels. Another is cable TV. Its promise of diversity has long been stalled by political opposition from the networks and station owners, but it's creeping forward. Another is home computer terminals. What all of these new technologies have in common is this: Each will multiply our private choices. Each threatens the centralized control now exercised by the national networks.

In a sense, we are looking forward at a second media explosion, which comes upon us when we are still trying to get used to the first one, the advent of TV itself. Whatever nasty things we say about TV's content, television has been liberating and egalitarian in its saturation of the society.

Everyone's private experiences were torn open to new and strange images, pictures of distant strangers, of the world, of ourselves. Mountain people saw the oceans. Children saw adult wars at dinnertime, with real bodies. The poor saw, in living color, how the rest of us live, what we buy and enjoy, what we expect life to provide us.

This liberation has shaken up nearly everything about us, from religion and politics to daily newspapers, and we are still discovering the new rules, the new ways in which people look at themselves. It has been egalitarian, mainly, because the benefits of TV's new experiences are strongest for those who were most isolated before — people who were cut off from the larger world by poverty or by the parochialism of their families or their regional cultures.

Yet this liberating technology has left a lot of us feeling like prisoners. Commercial television subverts the possibilities of the medium by reducing it to one narrow purpose: packaging mass audiences for sale to advertisers. The only medium consistently worse than commercial television is non-commercial television.

Public television should be more directly threatened by the home video machines than commercial TV, simply because it already serves such a narrow audience. If opera lovers can buy a high-fidelity TV tape or disc of the great operas, one which they can play again and again at a time of their own choosing, who needs Channel 9 and its petroleum patrons?

The important impact, however, will be the "new" audiences which these machines create. Herb Schlosser, the former NBC president who is now developing home video programming for RCA, sees many markets developing — a new mass market for movies and other expensive productions, plus a proliferation of "narrow markets" which serve specialized interests.

Video discs, according to Schlosser, can "break even" with as little as 10,000 to 30,000 in sales. That means almost anyone with an idea for programming — music or education or freaky politics, whatever — can take a fling with a decent chance of selling enough discs to make money. In this vast country you can find 30,000 people who will buy any crazy thing that comes along.

Chess addicts might subscribe to a series of "master chess matches" complete with commentary and kibitzing. Spiritual therapy nuts could buy their own cult-of-the-month programs. Strange dramatists with strange new plays will be able to find an off-network producer, willing to gamble on the future. And, yes, pornography will move into some living rooms, too.

The possiblities are as diverse as American tastes and interests. The development of these specialized TV audiences will resemble the specialized magazines which have flourished and multiplied in the last 15 years, when the mass-circulation magazines — Life, Look, Colliers — were folding. Nobody expects network TV to go under, but its future income is threatened by this simple fact: If a family is watching a home-video program of its own selection, it will not be watching "Soap" or "Colombo," and cannot be counted in the "mass audience" for which sponsors pay.

My own hunch is that, once the "mass audience" numbers begin to erode, the networks will panic, just as the movie industry panicked when television took away its audience. This means network TV will probably get worse before it gets better.

The video disc player . . . soon a necessity?

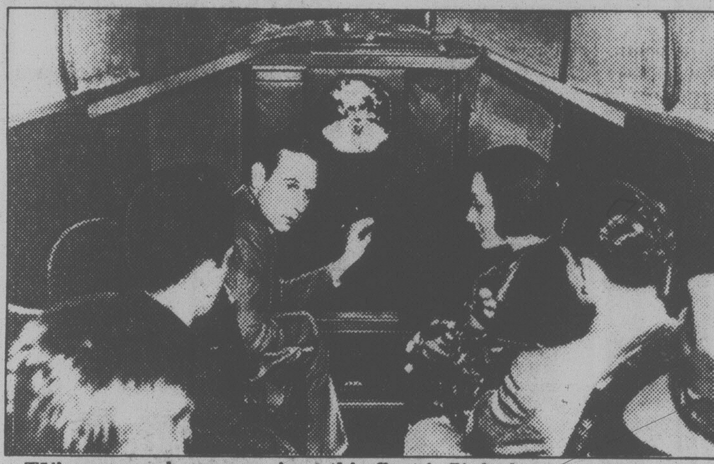
Eventually, if they are wise, the network moguls will rethink their "mass image" of who Americans are and, maybe, only maybe, network TV will deliver better shows. The networks will have to capitalize on their unique ability to deliver current events with immediacy, from football to news. Eventually, they will spend more money and time on news and immediate information, "live" events without laff tracks.

This new technology asks the most profound questions, not of the three networks, but of every American family. While it liberated the minds of children, TV also undermined the authority of parents. Every child can test the homilies he hears from his parents against the competing reality he sees on TV. We all know that many children grow up believing that the cynical modernity of TV is real while their stodgy parents are hopelessly out of it.

Until now, parents have protested impotently.

Home video gives back to parents a real opportunity to reclaim some control over their children's education, to reclaim this responsibility from the tube and from the schools. If parents want their children to know about the Bible or radical politics or history or Elizabethan drama or hog butchering in the old country manner, or almost anything else, somebody will produce home-video programs which teach those subjects.

The question is: How many families will have the wit and nerve to take control of their own minds?



TV's come a long way since this first inflight broadcast in 1932.

The Numbers Game

russell baker

The country is awash in statistical studies that tell us what we already know. By now, you might suppose, all men, women and children know that cigarettes may be the death of them, but here is another fat, expensive batch of statistics produced with governmental ruffles and flourishes to prove it all over again.

This was generally suspected by the population 50 years ago when statistics were still in adolescence. At that time people who had yet to dream of the electronic computer nevertheless referred to cigarettes as "coffin nails." The surgeon general's official statistics of 15 years ago validated the popular wisdom beyond much argument.

Other statistics of recent weeks inform us that population is rising in the southern tier of states, that the American family is in trouble, that northeastern cities are declining and that wealth, population and political clout are now centred in the suburbs.

Is there anyone who hasn't known this for the past 10 years? Well, not to be churlish toward our statistical scientists, let us note that the precision of their numbers is of more than passing importance to the way the country is governed, or could be if their figures were properly used.

The smoking statistics, however, offer one of the clearest examples of their uselessness. Despite years of collecting and publishing this morbid data, the government continues to encourage the tobacco crop to flourish. Nor does it encourage any medical research to produce a cure for its millions of cigarette addicts.

Its assistance to these wretched devils consists almost exclusively of advice to cut it out, which is like treating heroin addicts by telling them to pull up their socks and get a steady job.

The result is mass depression among slaves to the weed who, helpless to beat their addiction, are battered with a constant series of governmental assurances that they are speeding headlong to the grave.

It may be that, as a people, we are hooked on statistics. Almost everybody seems to know how many hours of a lifetime the average American spends watching television and to enjoy reciting the figure to prove that we are all going mushy in the brain. Statistics are dropped into casual conversation to prove that New York is a doomed city, that there is no use getting married because you will probably just get divorced, that you are abnormal if you have six children, that you are wasting your time trying to find a decent job if you are over 35 and that you are courting death it you take to the highway on the Fourth of July weekend.

The effect of most statistics is to create depression neurosis, which may explain partly why some psychiatrists find depression to be the characteristic mental state of the 1970s.

Finding any good news in the daily deluge of latest statistical findings is rare. Last week, however, there seemed to be a tiny excuse for smiling in a study which concluded than an unhappy childhood does not mean you will be an unhappy adult.

Most people have probably known this all along without ever needing to think about it. The obvious fact, hard to ignore as one passes the milestones of age, is that adulthood is a happier time of life for most people than childhood.

Why we need a statistical study to tell us this is a mystery. Childhood is a time of inadequacy, unemployability, self-doubt, subjection to the authority of superior strengths and minds, inexplicable emotions, and constant harassment and embarrassment, concluding usually with acne.

Being happy under such conditions would be unnatural. Throw in the probability of having to cope with the discovery of death, family break-up and the bureaucratic tyranny of the school house, and it is only sensible to define childhood as a time uniquely fitted for unhappiness.

With adulthood, one escapes most of the worst of these miseries. Why shouldn't happiness follow easily?

This was a survey, like the latest smoking paper, that told us what we already knew, but one was nevertheless thankful for a moment. Suppose it had concluded that an unhappy childhood led to an unhappy adulthood as inevitably as Monday follows a rainy weekend?

Millions of us, reflecting on the misery of our childhoods, would probably have felt compelled to conclude that what we take for adult happiness is a delusion and that we might as well quit smiling becaue unhappiness is our statistical destiny. Fortunately, the happiness-survey statisticians passed up an opportunity to make life a little more sour.

It would be interesting to see a statistical study of whether unhappiness in adults is caused by the widespread prevalence of statistical studies. We all know the answer, of course, but that does not usually keep our statistical surveyors from cranking up their computers to tell us we were right all along.

A Place for Hope in Africa

By ANTHONY LEWIS

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa — In a few days a United Nations force is due to begin flying in here for one of the most ambitious operations ever undertaken by an international body. If it works, one territory in southern Africa will move peacefully to independence and majority rule in the next year. And the signs here are that it just might work.

The obstacles are formidable. Namibia, as the country will be called, is a vast land: twice the size of California but mostly desert and dry bush, with only about 1 million people. South Africa, which has controlled the territory for 60 years, has kept the black 90 per cent of the population powerless and divided by tribe and language.

For years guerrillas of the South-West African People's Organization have been fighting the South African army. The United Nations is supposed to keep the peace — and, next September, run a one-man, one-vote election among factions that do not trust each other to follow the rules.

How can it work? The curious answer is that, at this stage, the opposing sides both think they will win a fair election. Hence both are, or certainly seem, committed to the political process.

Dirk Mudge, a white farmer, heads the Democratic Turnhalle Alliance — a tribally-based multi-racial party that carries most of South Africa's hopes for a friendly, relatively conservative Namibian government. The DTA won overwhelmingly last December in a local election supervised by South African troops and boycotted by most other parties.

"I'm optimistic," Mudge said. "There's a determination to make a solution of the next election, and we want a solution." South African officials here also say privately that they are confident the DTA will win.

Daniel Tjongerero, a former teacher and editor, is deputy chairman of SWAPO. He runs the internal wing of the movement while its chairman and guerrilla leader, Sam Nujoma, operates abroad.

"We want the election to work," Tjongerero said, "and with the U.N. we think it might work. We are committed to go ahead and campaign, and we won't leave one area of the country out." The official SWAPO prediction is that it will win 60 per cent of the vote.

Many things could still go wrong, in the days before the UN team is installed or the months afterward. There will be plenty of excuses for anyone to pull out of the election — violence, intimidation or violation of the intricate ground rules negotiated by the diplomats. And each side now says the other will cheat.

"We have information that South Africa is training 90 agents provocateur," Tjongerero said. "They will throw bombs and assassinate people and blame it on SWAPO." On the other side, many say they doubt that SWAPO will ever give up violence entirely.

But despite all the temptations, it may be hard to pull out of the campaign. The atmosphere here is already intensely political, and public expectations are high. Any party that pulls out is likely to be unconvincing. And, happily, there is no Gallup poll to tell anyone that his cause is hopeless.

The last doubt is about what will happen after an election. If SWAPO loses, will it respect the results or go back to guerrilla war? If SWAPO wins, will South Africa accept that outcome? On both sides, again, skepticism is high. But there are reasons for modest confidence.

Tjongerero said: "If we lose the election, we can live with that — go into opposition and wait for another turn." And there are realities that point that way. Angola, where SWAPO now has its bases, is eager for better relations with the West. It is committed to the United Nations election and is not likely to welcome resumed guerrilla activity on its border. Moreover, it is questionable whether SWAPO could easily rouse its people again.

South Africa wavered for months on whether to go along with the U.N. plan. But it is my strong impression that Prime Minister Botha is now on board for good. When the local administrator showed signs of obstructing cooperation with the U.N., Botha quickly and coldly slapped him down.

A South African official, asked what would happen if SWAPO won, said: "We'd have no choice except to go ahead." Again, there are practical reasons. From events in Rhodesia, Botha knows that a political settlement without international approval may not work. And he knows that pulling out at the last minute would outrage the Western, especially American, leaders responsible for the U.N. plan.

In short, there is a chance that politics will create its own momentum in Namibia. It is only a chance, but compared to the bloodshed and stalemate nearby, that is a blessing.

Playful Pup was a Cougar

BOSTON BAR (CP) — When nine-year-old Dallayce Fife felt something tearing at the trousers of her snow suit while she was playing in the snow with her two brothers, she thought it was the family dog being playful.

However, the dog turned out be a cougar, which fled temporarily when the girl turned and screamed.

Dallayce's stepfather, John Clark, said the cougar then made a return foray close to a ski lodge at this Fraser Canyon community and made off with one of the family dogs.

Clark, who was about 100 metres away, came running when one of the children began blowing a trumpet which is used as a family call and alarm system.

On his approach, he saw Ian Fife, 12, chasing the cougar with an axe. The cougar dropped the dog in the creek and took to a tree. The dog survived the incident.

The cougar was seen 3½ hours later and Clark wounded it with a shotgun before it disappeared into the bush.

At daylight, Clark and a friend who has cougar hounds tracked the animal and killed it.

Clark said the cougar was a very thin female that should have weighed about 115 pounds but was only half that weight.

It was the family's second cougar scare in three weeks.

Business Protests School Tax Hike

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A paper industry official has complained that heavy school taxes are posing a serious threat to business in this city just east of Vancouver.

Alan Riches, ventures manager for Scott Paper Ltd., which employs 600 people and pays 6.7 per cent of New Westminster's school budget, told school board trustees that his firm is in a vulnerable position because of a 98-per-cent increase in the company's tax burden since 1975.

"We will operate like this as long as we can but increases are starting to make inroads into our ability to do business," Riches said.

Riches said the bulk of tax increases on the firm since 1975 have gone to meet higher education costs.

He complained the firm's western manufacturing division faced tax increases three times those applied to the eastern branch since 1973.

Riches warned that business will start pressing to make sure costs are kept in line. "Business is finally waking up to the fact that something has got to be done," he said.

Sandman Pact To be Imposed

BURNABY (CP) — The provincial labor relations board announced Wednesday it will impose a contract settlement at three Sandman Inn hotels in the British Columbia Interior.

A three-member panel of the board ruled that first contracts will be imposed at the chain's hotels in Kelowna, Cranbrook and Revelstoke.

The panel met after Labor Minister Allan Williams asked the board to consider whether a contract should be imposed at the hotels, owned by the family of former provincial cabinet minister Phil Gaglardi who served with the Social Credit government of W. A. C. Bennett.

Three to Bench

Mr. Justice James A. Macdonald, 62, a B.C. Supreme Court Judge, has been appointed to the Court of Appeal. He replaces Mr. Justice W.R. McIntire who was appointed to the Supreme Court of Canada last month.

William A. Esson, 49, a Vancouver lawyer, was appointed to the B.C. Supreme Court, replacing Mr. Justice Macdonald.

Kenneth D. Houghton, 54, a Kamloops lawyer, was appointed county court judge in Kootenay.

Remand Centre Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Wednesday a remand centre will be built behind the provincial courthouse here, despite criticism the centre will lack recreational facilities.

The British Columbia Corrections Association has sent the government a letter stating the designated downtown site is not suitable.

School Trustees Plan To Travel

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver school board has agreed to spend $5,000 or more to send four of its members to education conferences around the world this summer.

Board chairman Nathan Divinsky, who plans to spend part of his summer in Jerusalem, said he felt the conferences were valuable because they allow trustees to meet and share ideas with their colleagues from other areas.

However, trustee Peter Westlake said it was vulgar for trustees to spend money on trips while cutting back on the school budget.

Trustee Betty-Anne Fenwick, who also voted against the trips, said it is demoralizing for teachers, who had their sabbaticals taken away in the board's round of budget-cutting last month.

Haidas Threaten Hunting 'War'

VANCOUVER (UPC) — Haida Indians have threatened a full-scale legal war over Indian land claims in the Queen Charlotte Islands if the provincial government fails to recognise their native hunting rights.

The Indians, members of the Islands Protection Society (IPS), Wednesday petitioned the Supreme Court of British Columbia to order a public hearing into a provincial government proposal to renew a tree farm licence to Rayonier Canada Ltd.

The existing licence controls logging operations in the Queen Charlotte Islands, the traditional home of the Haida nation, and expires this spring. Forests Minister Tom Waterland recently announced his intention to allocate the replacement licence to Rayonier, sparking protests from natives and local preservation groups.

The petitioning natives, however, stormed out of the courtroom when crown counsel Denis Doyle argued the Indians had no legal right to demand a court hearing because there was no basis to their claim to the land involved.

Haida spokesman Gary Edenshaw said after the court appearance his tribe had never signed a treaty with the government and had never agreed to forsake the land.

"If they (the government) are going to tell us we don't have the right to our land, that could open the whole question of land claims," Edenshaw said.

IPS counsel Garth M. Evans said it was important to establish the validity of Indian claims to native hunting rights and a second petition would do just that, giving the whole question of Indian claims in the Queen Charlottes "an entirely new aspect."

Olympic Oil Port Seeks Okay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Trans Mountain Pipe Line Ltd. has submitted to the United States federal government a proposal to build an oil port west of Port Angeles on Washington state's Olympic peninsula, Kenneth Hall, company president, said Wednesday.

Hall said the company submitted the proposal to the secretary of the interior and expects President Jimmy Carter will choose between its proposal and those submitted by other companies by the end of 1979.

Carter, he said, must consider the proposals in determining which state and federal laws prohibiting oil ports must be waived to permit an oil port in Washington state.

The port would receive about 550,000 barrels a day, 80 per cent of it from the Alaska North Slope, and the remainder from world sources, Hall said in a telephone interview.

Oil from the port would be connected by pipeline to an unbuilt Trans Mountain pipeline at Cherry Point on the Washington state mainland. From there it would be moved through British Columbia by pipeline to Edmonton.

Total expenditures in Washington state, including the port and additional pipeline, would total about $200 million.

Hall said the company also has proposed building an 840-kilometre pipeline to Edmonton at a cost of about $320 million. The pipe would be 76-centimeter in diameter.

The company already operates a 60-centimeter diameter pipeline from Vancouver to Edmonton.

Oil delivered to Edmonton, he said, would be fed into pipelines operated by such companies as Interprovincial Pipeline Ltd. and distributed to northern U.S. states.

Hall said other proposals for handling of Alaskan oil have been made by Kitimat Pipeline Corp., Northern Tier Consortium and Foothills Pipeline.

Nanaimo Estuary Dredging Given Go-Ahead

Dredging of a section of the Nanaimo River estuary for log bundle storage for Nanaimo area sawmills has been approved by the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans and the Nanaimo Harbor Commission.

The area designated for deepening is one of the least biologically sensitive on the estuary, a fisheries spokesman said. The area involved comprised about five per cent (60 to 70 acres) of the total acreage.

The proposal has been approved by a federal-provincial task force examining fish habitat and log management on the estuary, he said.

Turnkey Denies Helping

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prison guard Konstantin Pondelicek denied Wednesday that he helped in last year's aborted escape attempt from the British Columbia Penitentiary.

Pondelicek's statement in B.C. Supreme Court followed testimony Tuesday from convicted murderer Andy Bruce that the guard was to smuggle a gun into the New Westminster prison in exchange for money and cocaine.

Prosecutor Charles Norris suggested to Bruce, who is serving a life sentence, that his story about Pondelicek was a pack of lies, but the prisoner replied that the guard could take a lie-detector test.

Bruce said the escape plan called for a door to be kept open by Pondelicek, who shut it during the actual breakout. The attempt was foiled and turned into a hostage taking that lasted a week.

The testimony came at the trial of Betsy Wood, 48, and Gay Hoon, 32, both prison rights activists who were charged with public mischief and breaking a prison after the escape attempt.

Dead Skier Identified

WHISTLER (CP) — A skier killed Tuesday in an avalanche on Whistler Mountain has been identified as Douglas Norman Robertson, 22, of the Whistler area.

Police said Robertson was wearing an electronic tracking device which was working when tracking dogs and search and rescue workers found his body Wednesday.

Price of Coffee Percolating Down

Retail prices of coffee will continue to fall at least until late spring, according to spokesmen for B.C. wholesalers.

But the price cuts will be small.

General Foods Ltd., which makes Maxwell House, Yuban, Sanka and Brim, has cut its price by 10 cents a pound wholesale, the fifth reduction since prices peaked in mid-1977.

Other companies have made or plan similar reductions.

R.R. Gebert of Vancouver, president of Dickson's Food Services, a division of Kelly Douglas, said his company is planning a price cut of 15 cents a pound in March.

"Prices have fallen and will continue to fall, at least until spring," Gebert said.

"But the price can fall only so far and then it will stablize. The world price of coffee has declined and there continues to be some consumer resistance to the price."

He said he expected prices to level off before year's end.

Meanwhile, restaurants and coffee shops in Victoria have mainly frozen their cup prices rather than dropping them.

Some coffee shops have responded to the lower wholesale costs by reducing the price for refills or reinstating the free refill.

One Victoria restaurant manager said wages, not the wholesale price of coffee, is the major cost in serving a cup of coffee and as long as labor costs continue to rise.

General Manager
Château Laurier

"Next time business brings you to Ottawa, bring yourself to the Château. It's an elegant experience."

"More than perhaps any other hotel in Canada, the Château blends in with its Ottawa surroundings. But its surroundings are not ordinary. Parliament is right next door. The National Arts Centre is across the square. And the Château is every bit as unique and grand.

We've been host to thousands of visiting dignitaries. And even more business travellers. As one of Canada's finest and most established hotels, we offer some of the best accommodation and service available in Ottawa today—and at competitive rates.

Our rooms are beautiful and spacious. Our meeting and convention rooms are the finest. We have a large swimming pool, saunas, and dining facilities that range from the cheerful L'Auberge coffee shop to the splendid Canadian Grill Supper Club. Our lounges include the intimate Cross Keys bar and the lively Cock and Lion lounge with live, contemporary entertainment.

And something that business people find important—the Château is located in the business core of the nation's capital. The airport limousine stops at the front door and we are just a five-minute ride from Ottawa Station.

So, next time business brings you to Ottawa, bring yourself to the Château and enjoy the experience."

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was mixed in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Management companies gained more than 34 points as Brascan Ltd. A climbed 1⅛ to $20½.

Analysts said rumors were circulating of a possible bid by Brascan to purchase controlling interest in Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Ltd. from Continental Oil Co. in the U.S. Brascan officials could not be reached for comment.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said class A and B shares of Laidlaw Transportation Ltd. will be removed from trading March 1 and replaced with subdivided class A and B shares without par value.

Shareholders of the company approved a two-for-one split on Jan. 15.

Among other industrials, Dome Petroleum was down 2¼ to $112¼, Inter-City Gas ⅞ to $8⅛, Gulf Canada Ltd. ¾ to $41¼, Petrofina Canada ⅞ to $24½ and Westburne International ⅝ to $39¼.

New York

Stock prices moved down slightly today amid uncertainty about the war in Vietnam and fears that inflation may increase.

Government sources said they expected the report Friday of consumer prices to show a one per cent increase in January — a 12 per cent annual rate. Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller said it was hard to envision inflation declining from last year's nine per cent rate.

Oil stocks were generally down as observers waited to see if Saudi Arabia will join other oil producers in raising prices.

Montreal

All leading indices advanced as prices posted gains on the Montreal Stock Exchange today. The composite index climbed 0.46 to 238.85 in moderate trading.

Trading in rights shares of Bank of Nova Scotia was again active, as the issue remained unchanged at 34 cents on a volume of 192,008 shares traded. Bank of Nova Scotia shares were also active, gaining ⅛ at $24¼ on a volume of 52,408 shares traded.

London

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 459.2, up 2.3.

Industrials and banks gained and golds were steady.

VANCOUVER

Prices were mixed in moderate trading on the Vancouver Stock Exchange today.

On the resource and development board, Redford Mines Inc. dropped .01 to .68 on 44,000 shares and Casino Silver Mines was up .14 to .80 on 37,000. Argo Gold Mining rose .29 to $2.35 on 36,800 and Regency Resource Warrants was up .04 to .20 on 32,800. Lion Mines Ltd. was up .07 to .63 and Highland-Crow Resources rose .20 to $1.56.

"PROFESSIONAL ADVICE FOR PROFESSIONALS"

RSP options explained
Well, here's the place to get it—Montreal Trust, one of Canada's longest established trust companies.
We have people who know how to explain RSP's clearly and concisely. We'll tell you about all the different options available to you. And what they mean in terms of interest, taxes and retirement benefits.
With a Montreal Trust RSP, you can choose from five different investment sections (including the Mortgage section—not available with most RSP's), and invest in some or all of them. You can transfer from one section to another to take advantage of market trends. You can even choose your own portfolio of securities, if you wish, with a Self-Directed RSP.
At Montreal Trust your money starts working fast. And, unlike many RSP's, there's no entry fee.
But there's not enough room here to tell the full story. Why not drop in at your nearest branch, and we'll explain the whole thing.
Remember, you must invest before March 1st if you wish to claim your contribution on your 1978 tax return.

Limited Luxury Lottery Considered by Ottawa

nesday in a report tabled in the Commons.

Ontario and Quebec will pay $5.1 million and Ottawa the remainder of the $13.1 million it will cost to terminate contracts for the $1-a-ticket Loto Select the federal government jettisoned last summer, the report said.

Ontario Conservative Perrin Beatty said Campagnolo should resign because of the waste. New Democrat Stuart Leggatt (New Westminster) said the auditor-general should investigate the squandering of public funds by the minister.

Campagnolo said termination of Loto Select was the price the federal government had to pay to get the provinces to stop demanding Ottawa leave the profitable lottery business altogether.

In return for abandoning Loto Select, Ottawa got sole access to the $10-a-ticket lottery game in an agreement reached with the provinces last October.

Campagnolo said previously it would cost $2 million to $3 million to terminate $61 million worth of contracts for computer equipment, office space, telephone lines and automatic letter addressing machines ordered for Loto Select, which never came into operation.

The minister told reporters if "there had been any way to avoid the $13 million expenditure, I would have done so." But Ottawa had to initiate Loto Select last summer to get the provinces to agree to a lottery truce.

Beatty, member for the southern Ontario riding of Wellington-Grey-Dufferin-Waterloo, said Campagnolo "is the only minister to have ever bragged about wasting $8 million." Campagnolo replied she is "probably the first cabinet minister ever to make profits like $200 million."

Leggatt said the auditor-general should study "the financial calamity surrounding Loto Select." It appeared Campagnolo allowed millions to be wasted after deciding to abandon Loto Select.

A bill on the Commons order paper would keep Loto Canada going after it is to expire at the end of the year. But starting in 1980, it would provide about $40 million each for culture and amateur sports. Most of its profits now go to the Olympic deficit and the provinces.

Campagnolo said a federal-provincial conference was called in September, 1977, for discussions about lotteries but it was never held because British Columbia backed out at the last moment.

SC Head Resigns

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit Leader Lorne Reznowski announced today he has accepted the advice of Quebec members of the party to resign.

The 50—year-old Winnipeg English literature professor said he also felt obliged to resign so he could finish his doctoral thesis in medieval literature.

600 Missiles Face Europe

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet Union has aimed at Europe at least 600 mobile missiles with 360,000 times the force of the atomic bomb the United States dropped on Hiroshima, NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns said today.

He said the SS-20 missiles are each equipped with three separate warheads with three separate targets and are capable of reaching everywhere in Europe, but that the Russians are not believed planning to attack.

BCRIC Earnings Put At More Than $15M

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the government-owned British Columbia Resources Investment Corp. said Wednesday the corporation will probably register net earnings of more than $15 million in its first 10 months of operations.

David Helliwell made the prediction in a speech to the local branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

The B.C. government announced last year that it will give away five free shares from the corporation's total holding of 15 million shares to every eligible resident of the province this summer.

The corporation now holds investments in pulp, lumber and natural gas pipeline concerns and has a licence to explore for gas and oil on 2.3 million acres of land in northeastern B.C.

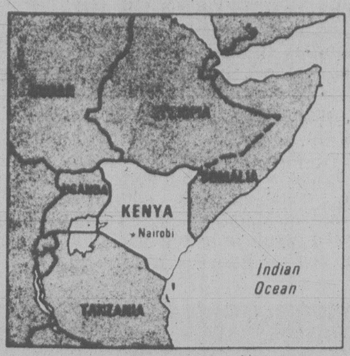
Eight-man team of consultants and their families are heading for the wilds of East Africa for two years to spend Canadian money improving the scattered water systems

Off to Kenya . . . It'll Be a Mind-Boggler



By AB KENT
Times Staff

A Victoria consulting team is off to Kenya on a two-year, $2.75 million trek to improve that nation's water systems and supply.

The team, headed by Duncan Pennington, of Ker, Priestman and Associates Ltd., will do it the hard way, often miles from civilization in the outback of East Africa.

It includes eight experts commissioned to improve rural water supplies in the western part of the country.

Pennington expects the obstacles and inconveniences to be mind-boggling — even taking inventory of existing systems will be a test of endurance and ingenuity in a hilly terrain which lacks transportation and communication facilities and has few roads.

The Victoria consulting firm, of which 52-year-old Pennington is a principal, is believed to be the first engineering group ever to be awarded a contract of this kind by the Canadian International Development Agency.

What it means is that a total of 28 people, including wives and other dependents, from Vancouver Island — mostly Victorians — and the Lower Mainland will be living a hop-skip from the Equator until early in 1981.

Pennington's job, besides heading the team of Canadians whose salaries over the two years will cost about $1.75 million, will be to portion out $1 million in federal funds for hardware in Kenya for upgrading hundreds of water systems scattered throughout an area two-thirds the size of V.I.

The object of the exercise is to strengthen the ability of Kenya's ministry of water development to manage the many systems inherited from local governments, schools, missions and private sources, some of them 50 years old.

Pennington said the job will be largely rehabilitation.

"We will be repairing things, putting them back in shape and we will be training Kenyan staff to maintain and operate them," he said.

"We're going out there with our sleeves rolled up, making on the spot repairs where possible."

Two members of the party are water chemists, for whom a major concern will be water quality and public health.

"We're not talking about North American standards. That's impossible where waste disposal and cattle grazing is allowed in the watercourses. But chlorination will be an improvement," Penningtin says.

"We're not going to change Africa in two years. We're not whiz kids.

"For every dollar spent we hope to leave behind 25 cents of value. We're not there to solve all their problems magically in two years, just to improve it."

Pennington said access will be difficult in most of the territory. The chief method of travel is by foot or cycling over dirt tracks although there will be eight Land Rovers at the disposal of engineers, who will keep in touch by radio.

Where appropriate, new technology will be introduced to replace the old. For example, wind-powered pumps might be used, or deep drilling used to tap major groundwater sources.

Pennington will wear many hats simultaneously. For other members of the party he will be consul, counsellor, chief administrator, treasurer, paymaster, troubleshooter and co-ordinator as well as technical chief.

He will also delegate duties on behalf of his little community, giving one man responsibility for housing problems, another transportation, someone else recreational activities.

The group's average age is relatively high — 40 years — but all are experts in their field.

Pennington, for instance, was with the B.C. water rights branch 12 years before going into consulting practice.

Headquarters for half the party will be at an office supplied by the Kenya government at the city of Kisumu on Lake Victoria, 10 minutes south of the Equator. The others will be stationed at Kakamega, a much smaller town just north of the Equator.

Pennington has been to Kenya twice, the last time for a reconnaissance during October. Two of the party have left and will arrive in Kenya March 2. They are communications adviser Mike Broemeling, a UVic sociologist who has worked in Kenya before, and North Vancouver radio man John R. Morgan.

Pennington is leaving here March 7 for arrival March 17, and the balance of the group leaves the week following.

Murphy Started Block Rolling

Bill Murphy's 1892 classic turns heads daily in Fairfield

A house built in 1892 headed the list Wednesday when the Hallmark Society made its heritage preservation awards for 1978.

The award for preservation of residential property went to Bill Murphy for work on his home at 1012 Richardson.

Society president Tom Mayne praised Murphy because he said the restoration had started a trend on the block.

"Your restoration of this house has not only saved an interesting building in the Victorian Eclectic Queen Anne style but has also served to inspire your neighbors to restore their houses," said Mayne. "One man's effort in preserving his property has grown into an area restoration preserving a streetscape.".

Two awards were made for the restoration and conversion of heritage buildings to commercial uses.

Fred Oldfield and Robin Thompson won awards for work they did in converting a rustic log home at 2328 Harbor Road, Sidney, into a restaurant.

The log house was built in 1926 for Walter Cameron Nichol, a former publisher of The Province and lieutenant-governor of B.C.

Mayne said Oldfield and Thompson had completed the conversion without destroying the building's character.

Town and Country Realty Ltd. was given an award for converting Beacon Hill School into residential use.

Mayne said the conversion had been carried out with imagination and showed that James Bay need not be "a wasteland of sterile concrete high-rises."

Mayne also commended real estate developer Charles van Veen for work in restoring Dodd House in Saanich, and praised Society member Thomas Palfrey for his efforts in publicizing the heritage preservation campaign.

School Files Open

Students have the right to examine their own files and request detrimental information be destroyed after they leave school, Greater Victoria school board decided Tuesday.

The board also decided a student's permanent record card will be reviewed each year to make sure it contains only relevant and up-to-date information.

The new regulations will give students and parents access to files containing medical information, aptitude scores, teacher and counsellor assessments.

Two years after leaving school, or upon reaching 21, personal data in each student's file will automatically be destroyed and basic information, such as school enrolment and leaving dates, microfilmed.

When students leave school they can request all files be destroyed immediately.

The policy change was first proposed by Trustee John Young last year. Young said the records should not be used without students' permission and that principals and teachers should be restricted from handing out information which could jeopardize students' chances of getting jobs or furthering their education.

Strike Vote Set At Quadra Steel

Employees of Quadra Steel Ltd. in Esquimalt and Nanaimo will take a strike vote Tuesday to back up contract demands.

Mediator Fred Geddes is still involved in the dispute but he is expected to be asked to withdraw if the 22 workers vote to walk off the job.

There are three unions involved — the boilermakers, operating engineers and office workers. The employees' contracts expired Sept. 14, 1978.

Neil Hindle, business agent for the boilermakers union, said today the company has offered two five-per-cent increases and one four-per-cent boost in a 28½-month contract. The company also wants to remove the cost-of-living allowance clause, he said.

The unions initially asked for six per cent in each year of a two-year agreement but later changed that to nine per cent in one year.

Quadra Steel, which supplies sheet and shaped steel for shipbuilding, tanks and pressure vessels, is owned by Drummond, McCall & Co. Ltd. of Quebec, a metal processing and marketing firm.

Hindle accused the company of being anti-union and not only tight-fisted in its wage proposal but retrogressive in its efforts to remove benefits already won by the workers.

"We are not prepared to march back in time," he told a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday night.

"We hope that Quadra Steel understands that we may be small but we will be tenacious."

He also said if the company thinks that in the event of a strike they can service their customers on Vancouver Island from Quadra's Richmond plant, "they are in for a rude awakening."

He said the unions will declare all of Quadra's steel hot and make sure it moves nowhere.

Roger Lewis, president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America, assured Hindle Wednesday night that Quadra employees will get the full support of the woodworkers union.

'Bloody Shambles' Feared Tonight

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier is afraid a public information meeting scheduled for tonight to discuss sewage disposal problems in the Cordova Bay area could turn out "a bloody shambles."

The 7:30 p.m. meeting is to be held in the smaller of two auditoriums at Claremont senior secondary school, which can accommodate up to 250. A festival is booked for the other hall.

The mayor said this morning the central issue whether Cordova Bay needs sewers is such a controversial one that as many as 500 residents could attend.

He said the pro-sewer faction has sent out a newsletter to enlist attendance support at the meeting, while the Cordova Bay Association opposed to sewers is already strong in numbers.

If his pessimism is confirmed and there's a heavy overflow crowd, he will recommend to council that the meeting be adjourned until the larger hall is available.

"It's supposed to be an information meeting and there doesn't seem much point in going ahead with it if half of those who turn up can't take part," he added.

In addition to aldermen and municipal officials, representatives from the Pollution Control Branch, the Capital Region District health department and Saanich school board will be at the meeting.

Couvelier said regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil will announce that he is seeking funds for a student summer program to undertake dye tests on septic disposal systems along the Cordova Bay ridge.

The program would give some clearer idea of the number of faulty septic tanks in the area, and confirm the extent of any possible health problem.

One contentious issue scheduled for airing tonight is the question of effluent disposal from Claremont school itself.

Residents in the immediate area have claimed that the malfunctioning system is discharging raw sewage into open ditches.

Several have filed objections to the school board's application for a PCB permit, seeking to discharge 7,-500 gallons of effluent daily into a storm drain.

Welfare: Some Mad, Some Glad

Reaction is mixed to the $31 million boost in provincial welfare rates announced Wednesday.

Social workers and opposition critics have guardedly applauded the move but the handicapped say the changes will have little immediate effect on their lot.

Ellie Bowerman of the Victoria Handicapped Action Committee called the increases for the handicapped, from $342 to $350 a month, paltry and said they will not cover the increase in the cost of living.

"It sounds like an awful lot of money is going in but only a little is coming out," she said.

Under the new rate structure handicapped allowances will be adjusted quarterly on par with adjustments to federal old age pensions.

The rates go into effect April 1 and will result in an average increase of about $10 a month for welfare recipients.

Families and single persons between 31 and 54 will benefit most while single recipients in the 60 to 64 age bracket will see virtually no change in their monthly payments of $305.

The rate structure equalizes the shelter portion of welfare allowances for all categories of recipients and eliminates the need for overages or extra allotments which last year totalled $27 million. In addition funds will be provided for utilities, a cost which recipients to now have had to pay out of the allowance they receive for food and clothing.

"I haven't seen the figures yet so it's hard to say how it will work.

"But anytime the government wants to give more money, that's great. It generates more spending, and that's good for the economy."

Preston said she is particularly happy about McCarthy's announcement that the budget for the incentive workers program will be increased $2 million to $4.7 million.

"Everyone feels it is a really effective program," she said.

There are now 2,400 persons on the program.

Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard), the opposition human resources critic, said she is pleased by the government's move.

"We've hollered and screamed and begged and pleaded for so long that I'm really glad that finally, nearly two years later, that there is going to be an increase," she said.

The last general welfare increase was in August, 1977, while handicapped persons received a moderate hike in July, 1978.

Brown said, however, she is disappointed by the small increase in the support portion of the grant under the new rate schedule.

"I think when we start looking at individual cases we'll find a lot of people are not going to benefit at all," she said.

Ron Willems, manager of the income assistance program, agreed there will be no change for some recipients.

He said the shelter allowance was based on the average rent paid by 70 per cent of recipients in the Vancouver area. For the other 30 per cent it may be just as tough as before in meeting the bills.

But Willems said no one will receive a reduction in payments, and those who are already paying inordinately high rents or mortgages will continue to be covered as before.

Cabbie's Little Joke Bounces Right Back

A Sidney taxi driver whose idea of a joke was to point a toy cap gun at a youngster Wednesday afternoon may wind up in court doing some explaining.

Sidney RCMP said today a charge of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace is being contemplated against the 26-year-old man.

An unidentified 10-year-old boy was standing guard at a school crosswalk in front of Sidney elementary school when a taxi passed and the driver pointed a gun at him.

The frightened youngster told the principal.

The man told police he carries the the cap gun around with him "as a kind of joke."

"He was a real joker, but this joke sort of backfired," the spokesman said.

AN EASY ADVANCE FOR LANSDOWNE

Defending-champion Lansdowne received free passage into the semi-finals of the Lower Island junior high school boys' basketball championship tournament which opened Wednesday.

Lansdowne, the host team, won by default when Reynolds Roadrunners were unable to field a team and moved up to join Cedar Hill, Central and Oak Bay in the fours.

Cedar Hill advanced in the single-loss elimination tourney by topping Arbutus 52-24, Central downed Colquitz 77-51 and Oak Bay bumped off Lambrick Park, 60-37.

The tourney continues tonight starting at 5:30.

The top three teams in the tourney advance to the Vancouver Island championship March 9-10 at Comox.

A Wild Night at the Garden

By The Canadian Press

For 47 minutes, 26 seconds, it appeared the most notable aspect about the St. Louis Blues-New York Rangers game would be the fact that three pairs of brothers played on the same ice in a National Hockey League game.

Forwards Curt and Harvey Bennett were playing for the Blues on Wednesday night, defenceman Dave Maloney and left winger Don Maloney showed up to toil for the Rangers, and right winger Don Murdoch of New York was playing against right winger Bob Murdoch of St. Louis.

But then the riot broke out, and all that brother business was forgotten — as was a three-goal performance by the Blues' Brian Sutter. All that was buried in the rubble of a stick-swinging, bench-clearing, out-of-control rampage which spilled into the Madison Square Garden corridors and almost is sure to result in heavy discipline for the Blues' Steve Durbano and the Rangers' Nick Fotiu.

In other NHL games, Detroit Red Wings defeated Washingon Capitals 4-3, Los Angels Kings beat Boston Bruins 3-1, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Buffalo Sabres 3-2, Pittsburgh Penguins upset Montreal Canadiens 3-1 and Minnesota North Stars defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1.

First the game: Sutter's third goal of the game and 30th of the season tied the game 3-3 before the fight. Then third-period goals by New York's Dave Maloney, Carol Vadnais, Phil Esposito and Dean Talafous carried the Rangers to a 7-3 victory. Don Maloney, Mike McEwen and Marios Marois scored the other Rangers goals.

"Please don't write about the fight," begged Dave Maloney. "I'm happy with the goal (which won the game), but I hope we don't just read about the fight. That's bad for hockey."

So much for the game. Now for the wild and crazy stuff which erupted at 7:26 of the third period, just after Sutter's power-play goal had tied the score.

The goal came 35 seconds after Fotiu had elbowed the Blues' Tony Currie. Fotiu, his penalty cancelled by the goal, ambled over to the Rangers' bench area — where the Blues were congratulating Sutter on his achievement.

Apparently, he bumped Currie, whereupon Durbano — a volatile sort — took a baseball-type swing with his stick at Fotiu's head.

"I could feel the air as it just missed my head," said Fotiu, no shrinking violet himself. He dropped his stick to challenge Durbano fistically, then grabbed one from the Rangers' bench when Durbano wouldn't drop his.

Finally, they squared off, were separated as the benches cleared, then charged at each other again. They were ejected by referee Bryan Lewis, and left the ice — Fotiu departing through the gate at centre ice, Durbano through a gate in the corner of the rink.

But Fotiu, it seemed, wasn't finished. He rushed down the runway in an attempt to meet Durbano again in the dressing room area.

Players from both sides rushed off the ice and into the hallway to see what was going on and help out, if needed.

But another encounter never materialized — thanks to a steel door which separates the dressing rooms and prevents such confrontations.

Durbano, who fought Don Maloney in the second period, ended up with 40 minutes in penalties for the third-period free-for-all: A 10-minute match penalty for deliberate attempt to injure Fotiu, a 10-minute misconduct and a double game misconduct penalty.

His total of 45 minutes for the game was the second-highest individual total in league history. Jim Dorey, then of Toronto, amassed 48 minutes during a game against Pittsburgh Oct. 16, 1968.

NHL president John Ziegler was in attendance at this, the Rangers' second bench-clearing brawl of the season. Fotiu received an automatic one-game suspension earlier in the year, and his latest game misconduct means he automatically is suspended for the next two.

Durbano, playing in only his eighth game of the year because of illness and injuries, received the equivalent of three game misconduct penalties for his activities Wednesday night. Thus he is suspended automatically for tonight's game against New York Islanders.

Suspension is nothing new to Durbano, who was suspended by Pittsburgh Penguins in 1975-76, Colorado Rockies in 1976-77, and by World Hockey Association for most of 1977-78.

The New York brawl overshadowed the more sensible goings-on, which were:

The Red Wings win snapped a 23-game winless streak on the road; Vic Venasky scored two goals to lead the Kings over the slumping Bruins; Reg Kerr scored the winner for the surging Hawks, who have lost just once in their last seven outings; Buffalo's Dave Schultz picked up 34 penalty minutes to establish an NHL career record of 2,231 minutes (the old mark for regular-season penalties was 2,212 by Bryan Watson of Washington Capitals); Montreal Canadiens unbeaten string of 14 games without a loss was snapped by Pittsburgh.

(Summaries on page 14).

GRAB YOUR PARTNER time in New York's Madison Square Garden occured in third period of National Hockey League game between Rangers and St. Louis Blues. Both benches cleared after stick-swinging incident betwen Steve Durbano of St. Louis and Nick Fotiu of New York. Brawl spilled into corriders. Rangers won Wednesday's game 7-3 but brawlers are still awaiting verdict on their conduct. See story. (AP Wirephoto).

FAVALI'S RETURN RAISES UVIC HOPES

University of Victoria Vikettes will have an extra gunner on hand while facing Dinnies in Calgary this weekend for the Canada West University Athletic Association women's basketball championship.

Jane Favali, who opened her first season with a flair and held the league scoring lead before being sidelined with a knee injury, will be back in the lineup for the best-of-three series starting Friday. Other games are scheduled for Saturday and, if necessary, Sunday.

Favali will be wearing a knee brace which arrived this week from New York.

Use of the support has enabled Favali to regain full strength in her ailing knee and she should be available for at least limited duty.

If she is able to contribute, Vikettes will have two deadly shooters on tap this weekend.

After Favali's injury, clubmate Luanne Hebb came on to fill the gap and eventually won the league scoring title with a 17.2 average.

Alberta Skip Captures Lead

NORANDA, Que. (CP) — Alberta skip Cliff Forry of Lethbridge held sole possession of first place after Wednesday's two rounds of the Canadian senior men's curling championship.

And he was the first to admit that he was lucky to be there.

It took the southern Alberta rink two extra ends in the 10th round to defeat the Newfoundland foursome, skipped by Ralph Atwill of St. John's, by a 10-9 score.

Meanwhile, Jake Block of Abbotsford, who went into the 10th round tied for first, was upset 6-3 by Gordon Petterson's Northern Ontario rink from Kenora.

Defending-champion Art Knutson of Elbow, Sask., who went into the ninth round tied with B.C. and Alberta for first place, lost 8-3 to Forry in the ninth round, then beat Ontario's Bill Lewis of Kingstton, 7-5. In another ninth-round game, B.C. beat Newfoundland, 8-5.

In other 10th-round games, Maurice Sears of St. Lambert, Que., won 11-6 over Eldon McLean of Brandon, Man., New Brunswick's Laurie Menzies of Fredericton won 7-6 over Archie Bevington of Fort Smith in the Territories and Dr. Lloyd Cox of Charlottettown defeated John Pertus of Halifax 7-6.

Test Drawn

NAPIER, N.Z. (Reuter) — An undefeated century by opener Majid Khan failed to brighten a dreary final day's play as the second cricket test between New Zealand and Pakistan ended in a draw Wednesday.

Pakistan, leading 1-0 in the three-test series, needs only a draw in the last test to clinch the series.

The Pakistanis began the day at 24 for no wicket in their second innings, trailing New Zealand by 18 runs, and skipper Mushtaq Mohammad allowed his batsman to play almost through to the close when Pakistan had reached 234 for three. New Zealand had no time to start its second innings.

Quebec Domination Holding Right To Wire

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — Competition began in the last three of the 18 sports on the Canada Winter Games program Wednesday and the pattern was familiar.

Quebec weightlifters won the first three weight classes by healthy margins, two of their team-mates were the first gold medallists in judo and the province's wrestling team won 17 of 21 bouts with all four losers eligible to fight another day.

The Quebecois completed a sweep of all four foil fencing titles as they took all three individual medals on their way to the women's team championship after the men had taken team and individual golds Tuesday. And Pierre Harvey of Rimouski, winner of Tuesday's 10-kilometre cross-country skiing race, picked up another gold as he led his team to victory in the 3x7.5-kilometre relay.

Here and there, a soft spot appeared in the impressive Quebec lineup. The province's figure skaters managed only a silver and a bronze in three finals. Brad Peters of Brampton, Ont., finished ahead of two Quebecers in the men's gymnastics all-round competition and the Quebec skiers were third behind Ontario and British Columbia in the women's 3x5-kilometre cross-country relay.

With eight victories in 14 final events for the day, Quebec ran its gold-medal total to 26 of a possible 51. Ontario moved into a second-place tie with B.C. at six, followed by Manitoba with four, New Brunswick with three, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia with two and Alberta and Prince Edward Island with one each.

Another 48 gold medals remained to be won in the last three days of the Games but only two — in men's and women's curling — were beyond Quebec's grasp. The province's two rinks managed only a single victory between them in eight games of preliminary competition and had no chance to reach the semi-finals.

In official point standings, based on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3 scale for the first eight places in completed sports and descending by half-points to 12th place, Quebec held only a five-point lead over Ontario. But La Belle Province already was substantially ahead in several sports still in progress and the final margin appeared likely to widen.

The Quebec lifters, who receive psychological preparation and are encouraged to "love" the bar, performed awesomely Wednesday.

Gilles Desmarais of Montreal set national junior records with his snatch, jerk and total lift as he won the 52kg division by 12½ kilos over Vijay Sharma of Enfield, N.S. A second Nova Scotian, Terry Bogle of Stewiacke, took the bronze.

Michel Viau of St. Stanislas de Kostka beat Rick Green of New Glasgow, N.S., by exactly the same margin in the 56kg class and Yves Lefebvre of Ste. Brigitte de Laval was a full 15 kilos ahead of Ian Webb of Coldwater, Ont.

If the Quebec lifters were encouraged to love the bar, there was no evidence that the judokas were instilled with any similar feelings toward their opponents.

Fifteen-year-old Alain Derosby of Sept-Iles in the 53kg division and 16-year-old Sylvain Fillion, also of Sept-Iles, in the 56kg class both outclassed their opponents as Derosby won five bouts and Fillion four to claim their gold medals.

A last-round clash with Ontario, which Quebec won 8-1, was decisive in the women's fencing. Lucie Gravel of Joliette, Jacynthe Poirier of Chibougamau and Marie Veilleux of Montreal finished 1-2-3 in the individual competition.

Quebec and Ontario, both unbeaten in the preliminary round, led the way into the women's basketball semi-finals and the Quebec racketball team, also unbeaten, led the tournament.

Final "A" Berth Decided Tonight

Dunsmuir faces Chemainus in the opening game of the Vancouver Island "A" high school boys' basketball championship tournament Friday at Stelly's.

Game time is 3 p.m.

But there'll be an earlier game tonight to determine the final tourney berth. Claremont and Southgate of Campbell River meet at 7 in Shawnigan Lake Boys' School with the winner advancing to take on Reynolds Roadrunners in the second game Friday at 4:45 p.m.

In other opening games, Shawnigan and North Island square off at 7:15 and Stelly's, the first seeded squad, meets Brentwood College at 9.

Seven games will be played Saturday starting at 10 a.m. with the final slated for 9.

Kevin Wins Goalies' Duel

Kevin Eastman of Victoria Cougars and Tony Hinken of Seattle Breakers made the most of their chance to play a starting role Wednesday as Cougars nipped Breakers 2-1 in an exhibition Western Hockey League game played before a capacity crowd of 1,400 in the Cowichan Community Centre in Duncan.

Torrie Robertson, with an assist from Gary Lupul, scored the winning goal for Cougars at 8:26 of the final period.

Lupul opened scoring for Victoria at 16:45 of the first period but Errol Rause knotted the count at 15:46 of the middle frame.

Only seven minor penalties, including four for Victoria, were called during the game.

In regular league play, Regina Pats scored two goals in the last six minutes to tie Edmonton Oil Kings 5-5, and Brant Kiessig scored twice late in the second period to lift visiting Brandon Wheat Kings into a 6-3 victory over Medicine Hat Tigers.

Perry Rejects New Contract

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pitcher Gaylord Perry, last year's Cy Young award winner, has rejected a new contract offering exactly what he asked, San Diego Padres have announced.

Ballard Smith, vice-president of the National League baseball club, said: "We all agreed to a 1980 contract last week . . . but when we went back to Gaylord with it, there was a new condition we couldn't meet."

POCKLINGTON BUYS OAKLAND FRANCHISE FOR SHIFT

Edmonton Gets Pro Soccer Team

Times News Services

The North American Soccer League early today accepted a bid by Peter Pocklington, owner of the World Hockey Association's Edmonton Oilers, to move the NASL's Oakland Stompers to Edmonton for the 1979 season.

A spokesman for Pocklington said an eight-hour session of the league board of governors accepted the bid, which gives the Edmonton millionaire control of the team for $2.5-million.

Under the terms of the agreement, Oakland owner Milan Mandaric retains a 25-per-cent share of the team.

After the league meeting in Dallas, which ended around 2 a.m., Mandaric said once the Edmonton club becomes established, he might consider re-introducing an expansion NASL franchise into the Bay area.

John Short, a spokesman for Pocklington, said Edmonton will accept the Stompers schedule, which begins April 1st against Detroit Express. But he said Pocklington is trying to convince the league to push back the date of the opening game to April 15, giving crews extra time to prepare Commonwealth Stadium.

Short said he did not know the final vote tally which swung the bid, but noted 18 votes out of 24 were necessary for league acceptance of the new franchise.

Vancouver Whitecaps, one of the other two Canadian franchises, was openly opposed to the Edmonton bid, Short said.

The West Coast club wanted to retain Edmonton as an option in case the franchise had to be moved from Vancouver, he said, adding that the threat of such a move might prod the city of Vancouver into building a new stadium to replace Empire Stadium's inadequate facilities.

Field Hockey Hoping To Attract Youngsters

max low

Tired of all the body-contact sports that often appear to relate muscle with success?

Then try field hockey.

For many years a sport played here by women, men and girls only, with not enough young players coming up to take over from the oldsters who drop out of the men's ranks, field hockey is making a big push in 1979 for junior involvement.

"A couple of us got together and coached a few boys last year," explains the association's junior development co-ordinator Sukhi Lalli. "But this year we're going to have a whole new league with three different divisions."

Age groups will be senior boys (14 to 16 years), junior boys (11 to 13 years) and little boys (seven to 10) and registration will be held at all recreation centres in the Greater Victoria area and in Sidney from 7 to 9 p.m. on Mar. 12. Practice will begin in the first week of April and play in the spring league will start April 28 and run through to July 7 when the season ends with the Island knockout championships.

(People wanting more information regarding registration and teams can call district organizers Dave Billingham at 598-6029 for Oak Bay, Kelly Windover at 382-4846 for Gordon Head, Robin Wilson at 385-3717 for Esquimalt, Steve Dove at 652-3795 for Sidney and Lalli at 478-9251 for both Cedar Hill and Juan de Fuca).

"We have quite a few coaches lined up but we would like to appeal for parents to help with management of the league," says Lalli, who is also president of the big Rebels Club in Esquimalt.

A bonus for boys getting into field hockey here this year will be the fact that the Western Canadian junior championships will be held in Victoria June 23 and 24. That will feature the provincial teams from Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and B.C. in the three age groups, plus teams representing the Island as host.

Field Hockey, the VIFHA points out, is the second largest outdoor team sport in the world (next to soccer) and is played in 70 countries. Men's field hockey has been played in the Olympics since 1908 and women will take part for the first time in the 1980 Games.

Talking of women, they're getting together a girls' league as well, though Lalli says in time the two may be linked under one body with separate girls' and boys' teams.

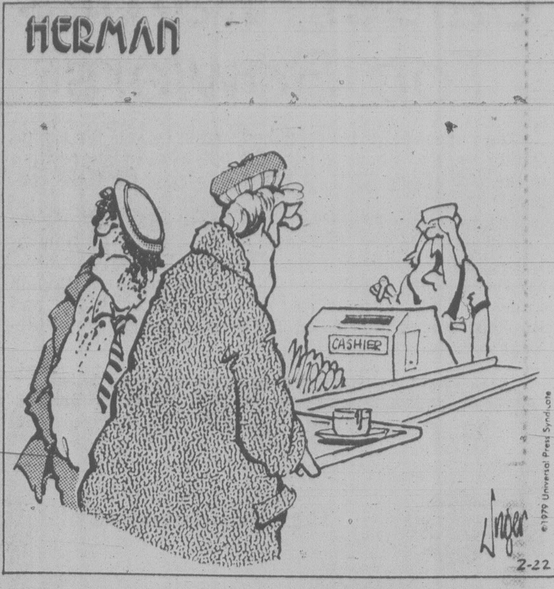
Youngsters here have been showing a lot of interest in field hockey," the junior development co-ordinator says.

"There is an indication that kids want to play it," he points out. "And the fact that it's not expensive and is a non-contact sport has a lot going for it. Talking to parents, I find that they are bit concerned with the contact sports."

And the extra bonus is that you don't have to be a super star to enjoy field hockey.

"We as an organization are committed to playing all boys — not just the best — and to giving them all equal time."

FOOTNOTE: For those who may never have seen the game played, there will be a half-hour film on Boys' Field Hockey on TV's Cable 10 at 4 p.m. on Friday, Feb.23, at 7 p.m. on Mar.5 and again at 7:30 on Mar.8.



"I didn't see that. Did you get him with blueberry or pecan?"

Maravich Sidelined For Rest Of Season

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pete Maravich, leading scorer of the sinking New Orleans Jazz of the National Basketball Association, will miss the rest of the season because of his injured knee, the team announced Wednesday.

Maravich, who has played all season with a two-pound brace on his right knee, will drop out of action to begin rehabilitation for next season.

Gamble By Flyers Pays Off

FULLER LAKE — George Chadwick connected with two seconds left on the clock and goaltender Jim Lebitschnig pulled in favor of an extra attacker Wednesday to give Fuller Lake Flyers a 6-6 tie with Esquimalt Legion in a Patterson Division game of the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League at Fuller Lake Arena.

The lead changed hands several times throughout the game with Esquimalt ahead 1-0 after the first period and Fuller Lake up 4-3 going into the final 20 minutes.

Brian Branting led Fuller Lake with two goals and other single tallies were recorded by Ken Bell, Don Bodger and Keith Mazurenko.

A bench-clearing brawl late in the third period produced eight game misconduct penalties — four to each team.

Rugby Powerhouse Continues to Roll

St. Michael's University School continued to mow down opposition in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League on Wednesday, crushing Claremont Spartans 29-3 in one of three Russell Division matches.

In other tussles, Victoria Titans tripped Mt. Douglas Mountainmen 17-3 and Oak Bay Bays tumbled Spectrum, 14-3.

Wim Vanderspeck set the pace for St. Michael's with two tries and single four-pointers were added by Don Fennerty, Jamie Ellis and Rob LeNoury. Ross MacLean kicked three conversions and a penalty goal.

Titans were led by tries from Jan Florian, Mike Viala and Curtis Westland as well as a penalty goal and a conversion by Mark Wyatt. Mike Rose kicked a penalty for Mountainmen.

Paul Russell, George Strickland and Jim Anderson scored tries for Oak Bay and Nick Aleksenko converted one.

Tampering Angels Miss Special Draft

College Pitching Ace Claimed by Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — In a unique one-player draft, the negotiation rights to college pitching ace Bill Bordley were transferred Wednesday to San Francisco Giants from Cincinnati Reds in what the baseball commissioner's office called a special one-shot occurrence.

Alexander Hadden, baseball's secretary-treasurer and general counsel, said commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered the special five-team draft because interference by California Angels made it impossible for the Reds to sign the 21-year-old Bordley, who pitched for University of Southern California in 1977 and 1978.

Bordley had said he wanted to play for a West Coast team but the Reds made him their No.1 selection — third over-all — in last month's amateur free-agent draft.

They withdrew their offer to Bordley on Monday and Kuhn ruled that a special draft should be instituted "strictly because of tampering" by the Angels, said a spokesman for the commissioner's office.

As a result, Bordley was allowed to pick five clubs acceptable to him. He named the Giants, Los Angeles Dodgers, Seattle Mariners, Milwaukee Brewers and Kansas City Royals.

The Angels were excluded because of their misconduct. In addition, San Diego Padres said they were not interested while Bordley eliminated Oakland A's.

As a result of a Feb. 13 hearing in Los Angeles, Kuhn has ruled that the Angels were "guilty of misconduct in the assurances which they gave Bordley prior to the draft as to their willingness to meet his terms."

The commissioner fined the Angels a undisclosed amount of money and ruled they must surrender one or more future amateur draft choices — to the Reds.

13 To Stand Trial In Marijuana Case

Thirteen men accused of conspiracy to import marijuana in Canada's biggest soft-drug seizure will stand trial in Victoria county court on April 2.

Last July 15, police and armed forces personnel seized 13 tons of marijuana said to have a wholesale value of $20.8 million near Shelter Inlet, 32 kilometres northwest of Tofino.

The date was agreed on between counsel and confirmed Wednesday by Judge Peter Millward at a special call day for the case, which is expected to last at least a month.

The 13 men have elected trial by judge and jury but Crown counsel Gordon Macdonald told Millward that counsel for Melville Douglas Balfour, 31, of Lasqueti Island, has filed a notice of motion seeking seeking re-election for trial by judge without jury.

However, neither Balfour nor his counsel, Lawrence Myers of Vancouver, was in court Wednesday. Macdonald said he will oppose separate trials as cumbersome, expensive and unwarranted.

William Deverell of Vancouver, counsel for several defendants, told Millward that re-election to trial by judge without jury is under active consideration for the remaining defendants.

Service's 'Ghost' To Recite

Charles Hayter, resident "ghost" at the Robert W. Service cabin in Dawson City, will recite some of Service's best-known work at the Newcombe auditorium Sunday at 7 p.m.

The 90-minute show is free and children are welcom.

Hayter is well known across Canada for his one-man show and has toured Britain, Australia and New Zealand.

Save-the-Arctic Display

A Canada-wide drive is under way to get the federal goverment to establish ecological reserves in the high Canadian Arctic.

In conjuction with the campaign, the National Museum of Natural Sciences is sponsoring a three-week exhibition of photographs of the Arctic by Dr. Stewart D. MacDonald of Ottawa at the Provincial Museum starting Saturday.

The photographs depicting the wildlife, flowers and landscape of the Arctic will be on display from 10 a. m. to 5:30 p.m. daily.

Peter Corley-Smith, who is in charge of the museum's travelling exhibits, said the exhibition should help make people aware of the importance of setting aside parts of the Northwest Territories for scientific study and the preservation of various life forms.

"The far north has extremely fragile eco-systems," he said. "The problem is that man's expanding activities threaten an increasing number of unique areas and species. Something has to be done."

He said 27 sites or ecological reserves have been proposed but so far nothing has been done.

One of the areas is known as Polar Bear Pass and is on Bathurst Island, N.W.T.

"This is an Arctic oasis," he said. "Its life-support system is vital for herds of muskoxen, Peary's caribou, and as a breeding ground for numerous species of birds."

The National Museum of Natural Sciences is operating a small research station in this area, he said. Reseachers are undertaking detailed, long-term studies of animals and the behavioral adaptions that enable them to survive.

"Anyone who sees this exhibition will go away appreciating the beauty and the importance of the Arctic," he added. "But the land is in danger — threatened by commercial development. We must decide soon what areas to protect."

Zoning Blocks Handicapped

Directors of the Capital Region Association for Mentally Handicapped are back to square one in their bid to open a group home for eight mentally handicapped young people at 937 Redfern.

Ralph Vipond, the association's executive director, said today a member of the provincial licensing board has told him the board decided this week to issue a licence for the home once renovations are completed.

But Victoria council, however, has said no building permit can be given for the renovations because the use does not conform with the residential zoning of the area.

Vipond said the interpretation of the zoning is discriminatory because it would not bar a couple with eight children or eight foster children — even if they were all mentally handicapped — from living in the area.

He said to ask for rezoning would be to accept such discrimination and would be a lengthy process.

He said the association's executive will meet March 6 to discuss what other steps can be taken.

Charge Laid In Break-In

An 18-year-old will appear in provincial court charged with breaking into Island Farms dairy, 2220 Dowler Place, Wednesday night.

Officers found him inside the building after a woman passing by at 10:25 p.m. spotted him crawling through a rear window.

Insp. Les Mottershead praised the woman's alert response.

"That's the kind of help we really appreciate," he said.

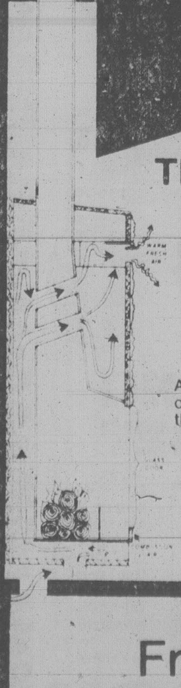
SHAW'S
The original Fresh Air Home Heating Fireplace



SHAW'S fireplaces are built to last
• With an all stainless steel, 25 year guaranteed fire chamber that burns any kind of solid fuel.
• The first fireplace to replace stale air with heated outside air and circulate it through the entire dwelling.
An adjustable, glass fire screen and combustion control that contributes to 650% more heat effieciency than any conventional fireplace.
Your choice of installation:
SHAW'S home heating fireplaces can be installed as free standing units against any existing wall, or enclosed with brick, stone or other decorative materials. Add a fan to the outside air intake and your SHAW'S fireplace becomes a primary heat source on cold days and an air conditioner on warm days. Any handyman can do the complete job.
Two home tested models:
THE CANADIAN (1624) for dwellings with limited floor space, (up to 1,000 square feet). A 16 by 24 inch stainless steel firebox.
THE YUKON (2032) for larger homes. The 20 by 32 inch firebox provides a greater heating capacity.

You are invited to visit Nature's Energy Shop
Friday, Feb. 23 and Sat., Feb. 24
when Ken Koreen — Shaws Manufacturing representative will be available to discuss the Shaw fireplaces. So, if you have any questions or problems, drop by and have a coffee. Demonstrator model will be set up in the parking lot — weather permitting.

Couvelier Opposes Sewer Extension

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier has warned aldermen he will need a lot of convincing before he supports a request to extend sewers to several properties lying outside the municipality's urban containment boundary.

The mayor was apparently perplexed that other members of the planning committee were so willing to endorse the request Tuesday without first verifying claims that the properties in the Layritz Avenue-Glyn Road area are experiencing serious problems with septic disposal systems.

He pointed out that a sewer line along Wilkinson Road, slightly east of the properties in question, marks the present urban containment boundary.

"You're talking about breaking a rule established by council years ago and held as inviolate," Couvelier said.

"When it comes to the public works committee I'm going to dig my heels in unless I am shown substantiation that there is a real problem (with sewage disposal)."

Ald. Geoff Vantreight said after inspecting the properties he is satisfied that a problem does exist and that the residents have a pressing claim to sewer service.

But municipal planner Gil Laurenson pleaded with committee members not to alter the urban containment boundary westward.

He warned that such action would encourage the urbanization of the area and bring heavy pressure on important agricultural lands immediately to the north.

The planner did suggest, however, that sewers might be extended to the specific properties on a spur line, without altering the configuration of the boundary.

A motion was passed asking the public works committee to consider that possibility.

In other business the planning committee:

— Endorsed a revised land-use plan for 121 acres in the Braefoot area. This would see the area develop mainly for detached housing, with scattered townhouse development south of Mount Douglas Cross Road. The plan would create about 300 new residential units, in addition to the present 65 homes.

— Overturned the planner's recommendation that Saanich oppose an application to the B.C. Land Commission to exclude acreage in the Oldfield Valley, west of Elk Lake, from the agricultural land reserve.

— Turned down a petition from Leaside Avenue residents requesting that the road not be extended for access to a new subdivision. But the committee will ask the public works committee to consider widening and improving Leaside under its road upgrading program.

Shawnigan Granted $115,000

A provincial government grant of $115,000 has been made to the Shawnigan Summer School of the Arts.

Provincial Secretary Hugh Curtis said the grant will support the school's continued operation and the presentation of 30 musical performances at the upcoming Victoria International Festival.

The summer school operates for six weeks each year providing instruction to more than 300 students from all over the world. Formerly located at Shawnigan Lake, the school now operates out of facilities at St. Michael's University School.

The University of Victoria music department, the Victoria Conservatory, the Victoria Symphony and Greater Victoria's intermunicipal committee all contribute to the summer school.

Shawnigan Summer School annually produces a chamber opera and last year its presentation toured about 30 B.C. communities.

CP Ferry Offers Weekend Discounts

CP Rail has announced that basic fares on the company's ferry service between Vancouver and Nanaimo will go up next Thursday but there will be new discount fares for weekend sailings.

Basic one-way fares for automobiles will increase to $12.50 from $10 and passenger fares to $5 from $4.

The last change in fares was in June, 1976.

The weekend rates provide for a one-way adult passenger fare of $3, while children under 12, who would pay half-fare of $2.50 on weekdays, will travel free on the weekend sailings when accompanied by parent.

The minimum $17 rate for recreational vehicles and $10 fare for recreation trailers are unchanged under the new structure but a new 25 per cent reduction will apply to these units on the weekend sailings.

Other features of the new fare structure include:

— Fares for groups of 25 and over go from $3 per person one-way to $4, while the return group fare remains unchanged at $6 per person;

— Commercial vehicle rates are unchanged;

Hospital Tenders Mar. 7

Tenders for construction of the new Helmcken Road hospital will close at 3 p.m. March 7, regional hospital planner Murray Halkett said Wednesday.

He told the Capital Regional District's hospital and health planning commission that Health Minister Bob McClelland will officiate at the sod-turning ceremony March 29.

Commission chairman Charles Perkins said advertisements have been placed for a construction engineer who would be a resident engineer on site, answerable to the CRD's commission.

Tenders for the position will be opened on March 1.

Architects Thompson, Berwick and Pratt of Vancouver will be asked to attend the commission's March meeting to outline long-range plans for expansion and updating of the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Assistant director of hospital planning Bill Pennington said today the first phase of the program will probably be a new north wing to house diagnostic and treatment services.

The Royal Jubilee updating program could take anywhere from 10 to 40 years, Pennington said.

Sixth Sex Charge

WINNIPEG (CP) — A sixth man appeared in court today following a five-month police investigation into homosexual activities here.

Richard C. Malone, publisher of The Free Press, appeared in provincial court today to face six charges in connection with a police investigation of homosexual activities involving juveniles.

Malone, 37, was charged with three counts of buggery and three of gross indecency. He was released on bail and the case was remanded to Tuesday.

On Wednesday, Bruce Robert Edward Montgomery, 40, of Winnipeg appeared in court Wednesday on three charges of buggery and six of gross indecency. His case was also remanded until Tuesday, along with those of four other men.

No details have been made public of any of the charges because of court bans on publication.

Before the Judge

A 29-year-old man and 23-year-old woman were charged in provincial court Wednesday with breaking into the Medical Arts Building at 1105 Pandora earlier Tuesday morning.

Mark Scoular Hemmingsten and Lora-Petula Bethell, both of 1682 Whiffin Spit, appeared before Judge William Ostler and were remanded in custody until today for possible election of trial method and bail hearing.

About a dozen city police officers surrounded the building after a silent alarm went off shortly after midnight. Two persons were found inside, after apparently gaining entry through a broken ground floor window. Police recovered a small amount of prescription drugs which may have been taken from two doctors' offices.

Barry Kim Agar, 20, of no fixed address, Wayne Kenneth Darley, 17, of 1026 Oliver, and John Douglas Haley, 18, of 198 Dennison, were charged with the entry, mischief and causing wilful damage to an apartment door.

They were also remanded until today for possible election and bail hearing.

Rico Ricardo Landucci, 18, of 658 Marlisa Place, was charged with 14 counts of breaking and entering and remanded in custody until today.

Three 17-year-olds pleaded guilty to a Jan. 10 break-in at Shawnigan Lake and were remanded until March 14 for a pre-sentence report and sentencing.

Brian Kenneth Henson, 309 Sabina Place, Glenn Edward MacDonald, 536 Halsor, and Joseph Barton Robertson, 2708 Scafe, pleaded guilty to breaking into 1032 Shawnigan Lake Road.

Laughton said a shop was broken into by prying padlocks and a 1965 Ford transmission, radiators and tools were taken.

A Radio Shack receipt belonging to MacDonald was found in the premise and a search warrant was executed at the Halsor Drive residence.

Ostler released the trio on $500 recognizance each but ordered each to obey a 10 p.m. curfew until sentenced.

Two brothers originally charged with breaking and entering and setting fire to material likely to cause fire at the Kiwanis Pavilion at Willows Park pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief causing wilful damage.

John Durham Clement, 17, and Robert Murray Clement, 19, of 2950 Richmond, were fined $200 each, placed on six months' probation and ordered to do 100 hours of community service work each.

Laughton said a routine check of the pavilion was made by Oak Bay police at 3:15 a.m. Jan. 28 and smoke was discovered. The youths were found hiding under a canvas in a play boat nearby.

Defence lawyer David Wilson said the brothers had a little alcohol before the incident.

Ostler said he could not order restitution because the original estimate of $1,500 damage could not be confirmed as accurate.

James Askew, 38, was discharged following a preliminary hearing Tuesday into a charge of unlawful confinement against Ronald Shingler, 613 Drake, in a rare privately prosecuted case.

Askew was committed Sept. 15 by Judge Fred Green on a charge of assault causing bodily harm to Shingler on Dec. 19, 1976.

A 19-year-old who told police he was trying to do a taxi driver a favor by parking his cab for him was fined a total of $150 and ordered to perform 100 hours of community service work.

Dale McDermid, 3085 Albany, pleaded guilty to driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and taking an auto without the owner's consent Feb. 10.

Court was told a cab parked at the rear of the Century Inn at about midnight was reported stolen by its driver. Ten minutes later, it was spotted on the playing field at Hampton Park.

Laughton said police pursued McDermid on foot for about half a mile before he was caught at 244 Sims. Subsequent breath test readings of .16 were obtained by city police, Laughton said.

Ostler also imposed a six-month driving ban on McDermid, who was fined $50 on the over .08 count and $100 on the second count.

The preliminary hearing into a charge of armed robbery against 31-year-old Brian George Angus, no fixed address, has been set for March 16.

Judge Suspends Sentence For 'Stubborn Young Man'

A 19-year-old city man with four convictions for breach of probation and two of breaking, entering and theft was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years in county court Wednesday for a third break-in and theft.

Gregory William Hibbert pleaded guilty before Judge Montague Drake to the break-in at Capital Markets, 50 West Burnside, on Feb. 17, 1978. Groceries and $80 from the till were stolen in the burglary which involved several other men.

Defence counsel Robert Salmond urged a suspended sentence, saying Hibbert has broken his addiction to MDA, ended his association with the others in the affair and is seeking employment. The breaches of probation, he said, all involved a refusal to perform community work.

Crown counsel Peter Birkett said Hibbert was on probation when the break-in occurred. Describing him as a stubborn young man, he suggested a jail sentence.

Drake said he is always reluctant to sentence a young man to jail but added it was worth a chance to suspend sentence. He warned Hibbert that if he gets into any trouble he will liable to be brought back to court on the break-in offence and wouldn't get leniency.

In another county court case, Judge Peter Millward sentenced Ralph Alexander Jackson, 31, also known as Jack Gill, to two years less one day for breaking, entering and theft and breaking and entering with intent to commit an indictable offence in Victoria Nov. 6, and for breaking and entering and theft at Chilliwack Nov. 4.

Jackson's criminal record goes back to 1964 and includes five thefts, two break-ins with theft, one break-in, attempted robbery, possession of housebreaking tools, possession of stolen credit cards and possession of stolen property.

Millward told Jackson his only hope for rehabilitation lay within himself and he hadn't worked very hard in this direction in the past. He described the latest offences as not so much criminally-motivated but some sort of thrashing out at society.

Jackson was at large under mandatory supervision when the offences occurred. His record includes violation of mandatory supervision in 1977 and 1978.

Terrified Woman Discharged

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A terrified 38-year-old mother, plagued with phone calls and followed by private detectives, was given an absolute discharge in county court Wednesday for knifing a 58-year-old partially deaf woman in the chest on Jan. 7 in Saanich.

Mary Anne Elizabeth Amadio thought that Margaret Grace MacKay, sitting in a rocking chair in her home before answering Amadio's knock on the door, was a private detective in disguise, said Crown counsel Robert Mulligan.

She pleaded guilty before Judge Montague Drake to assault causing bodily harm. Court was told the victim has made a substantial recovery.

Drake said it was abundanntly clear the knifing occurred while Amadio was under a temporary delusion brought on by the harassing tactics of her former husband, a man named Palermo who lives in Toronto. It was also plain the offence wouldn't occur again, he said.

Defence counsel Peter Klassen, who said it was one of the most difficult cases, considering the circumstances, which he has experienced, asked Drake to consider a discharge.

Mulligan, conceding it was quite an unusual case, made no submission on what he thought would be an appropriate sentence.

He set out the facts of the case, using statements of several witnesses:

On the evening of Jan. 7, Mrs. MacKay was sitting in her rocking chair at her home on Hartland Road reading a catalogue. She answered a knock on the door from Amadio who "just like lightning" stabbed her and ran off. She locked her door and called her son. She said she had never seen Amadio before.

Amadio went down the road to a neighbor who said Amadio, who was highly emotional, believed Mrs. MacKay was a security officer in the disguise of a female.

An investigating policeman said Amadio was separated from her husband and that he had had her followed by private investigators. That evening there were phone calls but no one was at the other end and there was a clicking noise.

Terrified, she took a butcher knife and ran from the house. Hearing a car, and thinking it was private investigators, she saw the lights on in Mrs. MacKay's house and asked for help. But Mrs. MacKay has a hearing problem and kept saying she couldn't hear Amadio.

Mulligan said there had been a matrimonial dispute and a custody problem involving her six-year-old daughter and a private security firm did watch her at least in May and June of 1978.

Klassen said Amadio married Palermo in 1964 and worked to put him through law school in Toronto where he graduated in 1972. In 1976, Palermo left and they were divorced in 1977 and he remarried. He has voluntarily quit being a lawyer and now is in the travel business.

Amadio, who continued to live in Toronto with their daughter, decided to come to Victoria with her child and sold the house. She arrived last March.

In May, said Klassen, Amadio and her common-law husband observed a couple posing as husband and wife with two young girls and subsequently it was confirmed this was a disguise and the beginning of surveillance by private detectives.

Last July, he said the couple was followed by a representative of Wackenhut of Canada Ltd. disguised as an old man.

In late July, while the couple was driving, a car cut across them and forced them to stop. Out stepped her former husband, his lawyer and a private detective. The ex-husband produced an ex-parte court order awarding him one month's access to their daughter.

In September, said Klassen, the phone calls began. There would be no answer when Amadio picked up the phone. This happened about three times a week but became more frequent.

On Jan. 5, Amadio, who had sent her daughter to Toronto to visit the father Dec. 27, phoned him to ask when he would return her. He replied she would be on a plane the next day and not to worry.

Later that day, Amadio got a phone call from a legal secretary saying Palermo was applying for permanent custody of the daughter and a hearing was to be held Jan. 11 in Toronto.

On Jan. 7 about 7:15 p.m., the first of two phone calls occurred, both in the same style as previous ones. This contributed to an extreme state of panic and Amadio took out a butcher knife for her protection.

Alone at the time, she ran for refuge and went to Mrs. MacKay's house and told her of her terror. But Mrs. MacKay was hard of hearing. Because of the similarity to past disguises and Mrs. MacKay's lack of response because of her hearing difficulty, Amadio thought that perhaps Mrs. MacKay was one of the detectives who did surveillance.

U.S.S.R. Dumping Compacts In Canada, MP Says

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will look into reports that the Soviet Union is selling its compact Lada car in Canada for less than half its domestic price.

Charles Caccia (L—Davenport) said in the Commons Wednesday the Lada, which sells for about $4,000 in Canada costs approximately $10,000 in the U.S.S.R.

He demanded an investigation to determine whether the car is being dumped on the Canadian market. Dumping occurs when a foreign country sells the same product more cheaply abroad than in his own market, giving it an unfair price advantage for its exports.

Yves Demers, parliamentary secretary to Revenue Minister Tony Abbott, said there have been no complaints by any Canadian car manufacturers, so no official inquiry has been undertaken. The government was prepared to look into the situation.

Unweds' Tax Blues Slated for Tribunal

OTTAWA (CP) — A human rights commission tribunal will be appointed to hear a complaint by a woman who says she should get the same tax deductions for the dependent man she lives with as a married woman would get for her husband.

The commission announced in a press release Wednesday that the tribunal will be asked to determine whether Roberta Bailey of Dundas, Ont., is the victim of discrimination by the revenue department because of her marital status.

In 1977, Miss Bailey claimed William Carson — the man with whom she has lived for about five years — as a dependent on her tax return. He was unemployed. Revenue Canada did not permit the deductions she claimed because they were not married.

But when Carson sought legal aid to fight the tax decision, he was told his eligibility would be based on Miss Bailey's salary.

The Human Rights Act prohibits discrimination on the basis of marital status in the provision of goods, services, facilities and accommodation by the federal government and its agencies.

A commission spokesman said it was not yet known who would be on the tribunal or when it would begin hearings.

The marital status case creates problems for the commission, which has yet to decide the circumstances under which married and unmarried couples should be considered differently.

Let's Face Reality: MP

OTTAWA (CP) — An Edmonton MP wants the government to take a serious look at allowing married couples and common-law partners to file joint income tax returns.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) said in an interview Wednesday joint tax returns could mean substantial tax savings for working spouses.

Lambert, who put forward the idea last week during Commons debate on legislation to implement the Nov. 16 budget, says he is not prepared to put his plan before Parliament as a private member's bill, but he will recommend a thorough examinatimn by the tax department. Lambert stressed he was not stating Progressive Conservative policy.

"All I'm saying is let's be realistic," he said. "I'd like to see the Income Tax Act made more flexible to reflect social realities."

His remarks followed published reports that a southern Ontario couple living together for about five years may have to split up or get married to make ends meet under existing income tax regulations.

Lambert says joint returns would eliminate this and other inequities in the income tax system.

He says the main advantage of the system he is suggesting is that it would allow a couple living together to split their combined income

Excessive Mercury in 15% Tested

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 15 per cent of 644 persons tested last summer had higher-than-normal mercury levels in their blood, health department figures indicated Wednesday.

The tests in 41 communities, mainly Indian reserves, in Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and the Northwest Territories found 112 with above-normal levels.

Two had levels higher than 100 parts per billion, while 110 were between 20 and 99. The health department says those with levels under 20 are considered in the normal human range.

The National Indian Brotherhood mercury research office considers continuing levels of 50 or higher dangerous and continuing levels of 100 or higher critical.

High levels of mercury, received from eating contaminated fish, can cause Minimata disease, irreversible mercury poisoning which attacks the brain and nervous system.

Most Crucial Vote Ever: Trudeau

TORONTO (UPC) — Gearing up Liberal party workers for a federal election, Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday Canadians will vote this year on their country's "destiny" — a vote unique in the history of Canada.

Trudeau told about 300 Liberal Party workers "our country is choosing its future in a way I don't think has happened in any single election before.

"This election will decide how Canada will survive — whether as a strong country or as 10 separate principalities with someone at the center saying 'aye aye, sir' to everyone."

In a short pep talk to party faithful, the prime minister warned of a "tough road ahead" and thanked his supporters for remaining loyal despite postponned elections plans last fall.

Returning to the importance of this year's election, he said "the next election is not just one of those haphazard events that comes along every few years.

"The country is beginning to realize that the next time is now, and that is why people are taking a hard look at the Liberals, and also taking a hard look at the Tories and at the NDP, where they can find them.

"The people of Canada are going to vote on the destiny of this country — whether we are going to have strong country or a very weak country," he said. "If it is weak, it is not going to be able to resist the centrifugal forces within it."

Trudeau also spoke at length about the Liberals' energy policy, citing it as an example of farsightedness and planning.

Earlier Wednesday, the prime minister's office announced Trudeau will meet privately with President Carter in New York March 3 for informal discussions on bilateral and world affairs.

The Carters will be Trudeau's guests at an international concert, featuring the Winnipeg Symphony at Carnegie Hall.

Seats To Get Review

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is reviewing children's car seat regulations and is seeking written briefs, the consumer affairs department announced Wednesday.

A spokesman said a three-member commission, chaired by Gerry Williams, a consulting engineer hired by the government for the study, also will hold public hearings as early as June.

The commission was set up in December after there was pressure from the Consumers Association of Canada.

The association said existing standards under the Hazardous Products Act are too stringent after seven of eight brands approved for sale in Canada failed government tests simulating crashes from the side.

Most Favor Cult Controls: Poll

TORONTO (UPC) — Fifty-one per cent of Canadians think there should be more government supervision of religious cults, according to the results of a Gallup poll released Wednesday.

The January poll of 1,030 adults asked:

"Apart from the widely recognized ones, there are a number of religious cults or groups operating around the world. Keeping in mind the individual's right to freedom of religion, and to freedom from fear, do you think there should be more, less or about the same amount of government supervision or control of smaller religious groups?"

On a nationwide basis, 51 per cent said there should be more control. Four per cent said there should be less, 28 per cent said it should remain the same and 11 per cent felt there should be no government supervision.

The survey found that people over 50 — 58 per cent — were most likely to favor government control of cults. Only 48 per cent aged between 30 and 49 wanted it. The 18 to 29 age group was only 46 per cent in favor.

More women than men — 54 per cent to 47 per cent — favored increased government supervison.

Communities with populations under 10,000 were 54 per cent in favor of a larger government role in controlling cults. In areas where the population was over 100,000, only 49 per cent thought more supervision a good idea.

The poll found that with more education people were less likely to approve government interference in religious matters. Those with less than grade 8 education were 59 per cent in favor of more control.

Parole Rules Amended

OTTAWA (CP) — Recent amendments to the federal Parole Act allow certain prisoners, including those who are terminally ill, to be paroled early.

Precise Tally of Fakes Eludes RCMP Witness

MONTREAL (CP) — Testimony at the Keable inquiry revived speculation Wednesday that RCMP anti-terrorist officers may have prepared more than one fake communique which they attributed to the Front de Liberation du Quebec in December, 1971.

But the question remained muddled when RCMP Cpl. Bernard Dubuc told the inquiry he could not remember clearly what was contained in an envelope that he dropped off in a downtown Montreal telephone booth.

Dubuc did remember delivering two copies of a communique which the Mounties have already admitted they forged. It was the third envelope, the contents of which he could not recall, which left the issue unclear.

The inquiry, headed by labor lawyer Jean Keable, has tabled documents which indicate the mysterious envelope may have contained nothing more than a third copy of the same fake communique, issued in the name of the "Minerve Cell" of the FLQ. The forgery was supervised by Chief Supt. Donald Cobb, then head of the Mounties' anti-terrorist operation in Quebec.

The phoney communique, calling for a violent separatist revolution, was intended to "sow confusion" in terrorist ranks and to counter a move by former FLQ ideologue Pierre Vallieres, who had called on his colleagues to renounce violence and work peacefully for independence through the Parti Quebecois.

Confusion arose Wednesday when the jocular, straight-talking Dubuc said he could not remember clearly which FLQ cell had been named in the third message which he dropped off. The name "Minerve" did not jog his memory.

Dubuc started by describing how he was assigned to leave two "sealed envelopes" in places where FLQ cells usually chose to deposit their communiques. It was a trademark of the terrorist group in the late 1960s and 1970s to drop off the messages, then call newspapers or radio stations to pick them up.

Dubuc said he chose well-known churches in Montreal and Quebec City. He left the first envelope in the Eglise St. Sauveur in the provincial capital and placed a call to Le Journal de Quebec. He dropped off the second in the Oratoire St. Joseph in Montreal and placed a call to Montreal-Matin.

Then he added: "I did, at least, drop off another communique."

He said the third envelope came to his mind at about the same time former federal solicitor-general Francis Fox admitted last year the RCMP had prepared the "Minerve" fake. Fox said at the time, and Cobb and other Mounties have maintained since, that this was the only FLQ forgery the force ever caried out.

Dubuc said he could only remember dropping off the third envelope, addressed to the Montreal weekly newspaper Quebec-Presse, but could not remember further details.

After examining RCMP files containing all the FLQ communiques from the 1971 period, Dubuc said he "deduced" that the mystery envelope must have contained a third copy of the "Minerve" communique.

Lawyers for the inquiry indicated they would question Dubuc further today, apparently in an effort to clarify the situation.

Under questioning, Dubuc stressed several times that he could not remember for sure what was in the envelope.

"I could have been dreaming," he said, questioning his own memory. "I am not the only one who was dreaming."

Dubuc, whose clear memory on other questions had distinguished him from several other police witnesses, said he had mentioned his suspicions about a second fake communique to his RCMP superiors to keep the force from being caught by surprise.

Claims Near Nil: Fund Spills Over

OTTAWA (CP) — A fund created in 1972 to deal with the effects of spills from oil tankers has reached twice its intended size because there have been mext-to-no claims against it.

Transport Minister Otto Lang told the Commons the fund reached $50.08 million by the end of last year and the government has no firm plans to spend the $25 million surplus.

There were only two claims since 1972 — totalling $645.90.

Another $88,748.31 has been spent on adminstration fees and various expenses.

The fund was established in 1972 to build up a coffer of $25 million from levies imposed on oil cargoes after the tanker Arrow went aground in Chedabucto Bay., N.S.

The 2.5-million gallon Arrow spill in 1970 fouled beaches, killed birds and marine life, and cost more than $4 million to clean up.

A meal-in-a-dish — and this time it's bread

Blueberry Bread Broadens Base Of Casseroles

Everybody knows that a casserole is a deep, heavy dish in which food is baked and served.

Usually, the food is a main dish or a meal-in-a-dish, and a favorite of the family.

Here's another potential family favorite, also a casserole dish, and one you probably never thought of. Who thinks of bread-baking in a casserole?

The recipe comes from blueberry-growing country where, it seems, people have been casserole-bread-baking for a long time. Since the utensil doesn't make the dish but the ingredients do, it's time we gave "casserole" a broader base.

This is a hearty, old-fashioned blueberry bread. It's a treat adults and teens will love for breakfast with a cup of coffee, and the kids will like before (or after) they go out for sports in the afternoon. The blueberries make the bread moist, delicious and nutritious.

Serve this in broad slices with butter or margarine. On other occasions, such as afternoon tea, slice the bread very thinly and offer it with marmalade. As it has a character of its own, this casserole bread adapts itself to many uses.

BLUEBERRY CASSEROLE BREAD

2 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1 cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 cup fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries
¾ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons shortening
1 egg

Combine flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt, orange rind, cheese and blueberries. Add orange juice, shortening and egg. Beat until smooth. Pour into a well-greased 1½ qt. casserole. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350°F.) 55 to 65 minutes or until bread feels firm to the touch. Serve spread with butter. Yield: 1 1½-qt. casserole.

Frozen Food: How Long in Storage?

Have you ever been tempted to pick up a few extra packages of frozen vegetables while they are on sale but wondered how long they would keep in your freezer?

How about those cans of fruit that were left sitting on your shelf since last Thanksgiving? Are they still okay?

If you ask yourself questions like these often, then the following chart of frozen and canned food storage times might be worth clipping out and saving.

It is an exception from the Ministry of Agriculture's winter quarterly recipe booklet for those who missed it. (Free copies of the winter edition of Gardening Hints and Recipes are available now in the grocery stores).

A deep freeze is the best place to store frozen foods for any length of time because its temperature is more constant than the freezing compartment of a refrigerator.

A deep freezer should be kept at —18 deg. C (0 deg. F) to keep frozen foods at optimum quality.

Foods stored in the freezer compartment of a refrigerator should be used up within two weeks. Canned products should be stored in a cool, dry place.

Fruit Supreme

- 2 generous pints strawberries hulled and halved.
- 2 large grapefruit — with membrane removed from each segment
- 2 large tangelo or oranges sectioned and membrane removed
- 2 cups halved and seeded large green grapes
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 to 1½ qts. lime or lemon or orange sherbet
- ½ bottle pink champagne or Rose wine.

Combine in very large cut glass bowl all of the prepared fruits, sprinkle with sugar and stir in gently. Cover and let ripen in refrigerator.

At serving time serve fruits in very large dessert dishes, top each with two generous scoops sherbet of your choice and pour about ¼ cup champagne or rose wine over each and serve at once.

Serves eight to 10.

How to Live with Milk Intolerance

Food for Thought

BY DR. JEAN MAYER AND DR. JOHANNA DWYER

We recently came across a news story about lactose and tolerance with the headline, For Millions, Milk Is Dangerous to Health.

Nonsense.

In this age of competition, headline writers sometimes get carried away. If milk is pasteurized it presents no danger to anyone, and it is an excellent food. So are milk products.

People watching their weight or serum cholesterol may wish to stick with the low-fat varieties. And it is true that a number of adults, especially those of non-Caucasian ancestry, have trouble digesting milk sugar—and that's what lactose intolerance is all about. The problem is rare in infants and young children.

Lactose is a disaccharide—a simple sugar. It is the primary carbohydrate in milk, both human and bovine. While the baby is nursing and up to about six months of age, lactose provides most of the energy infants need for growth. This is a time of rapid growth and requires a lot of energy.

In most cases the body has specific enzymes to aid digestion of specific substances and lactose is no exception. In the lower half of the small intestine, the enzyme lactose hydrolyzes (breaks down with the help of water) the disaccharide molecule into two sugars—glucose and galactose.

Almost all infants and children up to about age five can digest lactose. Some few with a genetic defect, who show a lactose deficiency at birth, must be fed special formulas which substitute other energy sources for lactose

As some people get older, however, the amount of lactose in their intestines begins to decrease. By adulthood, between 60 and 90 per cent of non-white populations seem to have some degree of lactose intolerance, as compared to only five to 15 per cent of adult Caucasians. It was once thought that the cause of this lactose deficiency might be environmental, since in many societies it is customary for only small children to drink milk. Thus the lactase might decrease simply because there was no need for it. However, it is now pretty well established that the progressive deficiency is programmed into the genes.

Lactose intolerance is not a pleasant sensation. The undigested lactose in the small intestine serves as a growth medium for bacteria which normally live there and in the large bowel. As they break it down for their own energy, they produce organic acids and gases as by-products. These and the remaining lactose draw water from surrounding body fluids into the gastrointestinal tract. The combination of acids, gases and fluids lead to the symptoms of distention, bloating and cramps, flatulence, loose stools, accelerated intestinal movement and diarrhea. They usually appear one or two hours after a meal and disappear about the third hour.

Lactose intolerance is determined by a rather stringent two-day test. If the test reveals some degree of lactose intolerance, a biopsy specimen may be taken to determine how much lactose remains in the small intestine.

What does this mean in terms of personal health? That depends on a number of factors. Milk and milk products are our best source of calcium and fortified milk is the only sure dietary source of vitamin D. The fact that some degree of lactose intolerance is found on testing at high doses, which equal the lactose in one to two quarts of milk, does not necessarily mean that the individual cannot drink a glass of milk or eat unfermented dairy products. A number of studies have shown that small amounts can be taken at different times, particularly if they are accompanied by other foods. Moreover, some products have been developed to be added to milk to begin the lactose-digestion process.

Some people who experience unpleasant symptoms simply refuse to take these foods, and it becomes important to find a substitute source of calcium which is so available in dairy products.

Inadequate intakes during growth, which in effect means the first 20 or so years of life, may result in less than optimal mineralization of the skeleton. Women who have relatively high calcium needs during the childbearing years may develop early signs of osteoporosis and be more subject to skeletal fractures in later life. Curiously, no specific calcium-deficiency disease has been identified for men, but there is the possibility that a low calcium intake coupled with a high intake of phosphorus — a distinct possibility on a typical diet, which contains a lot of meat, cola drinks and other high-phosphate foods — may lead to hyperparathyroidism and a nutritionally-induced loss of bone mineral.

How much calcium is needed is a matter of some discussion. Some set the recommended dietary allowance at 800 milligrams. Other nutritionists recommend an intake of 400 to 500 mg.

So what should you do? If you or someone in your family is among those comparatively few unfortunates who just cannot tolerate lactose, try fermented dairy products, in which lactose is already broken down to a great extent. Eat a lot of dark green leafy vegetables, many of which are a good alternate source of calcium. And get your physician to refer you to a dietician or nutritionist for help in devising a diet that will help you to maximize calcium utilization. In some cases, he or she may also recommend a calcium supplement.

But don't give up on milk and dairy products. Try consuming less at any one time and see if that helps.

Q: For a couple of months now, I have seen a fruit called a persimmon at our supermarket. I've been reluctant to try one because I didn't know what to do with it. Can you tell me something about how to use it? What is its nutritional value?

A: Perhaps the most important point about the persimmon, whose taste lies somewhere between an apple and an apricot, is that it should be eaten only when fully ripe; soft but firm. The underripe fruit has a markedly astrigent quality. The fruit may be cut in half and served with a spoon or peeled and sliced. Persimmon puree is also used in desserts, particularly ice cream, sherbet, muffins and pudding.

The persimmon provides small amounts of B vitamins and vitamin C, but as you might expect from its bright orange color, it is a powerhouse of vitamin A. Half of an average persimmon, containing about 65 calories, would provide nearly 50 per cent of the day's vitamin A requirements.

The persimmon available is a large, rounded, almost heart-shaped kaki variety brought from Japan late in the last century. The fresh, ripe persimmon is as much a symbol of fall in Japan as the apple is here. When the fresh fruit is no longer available, the Japanese eat it dried.

Q: You wrote a column recently about iron in which you pointed out that heme iron is absorbed more readily than non-heme iron. I'm afraid I don't understand e difference between the two. Can you explain?

A: Iron occurs naturally in two forms, referred to chemically as ferric and ferrous iron. What makes heme iron unique is that it is in the ferrous state, while most food iron occurs in the ferric form. The importance lies in the fact that while the body can absorb both types of iron, ferrous iron is absorbed far more easily. Most ferric iron must be converted before it is absorbed.

In reality, the amount of heme iron we take in on a daily basis is extremely small. It accounts for only about one-third of the iron in muscle meat. The rest is non-heme iron.

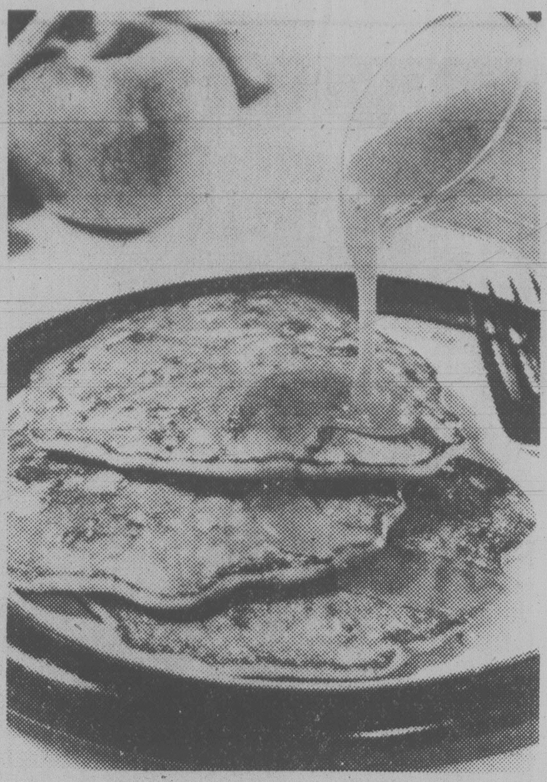
Q: Recently you answered a question in which you said that the vitamin C content of potatoes depends on several factors, particularly how long they had been stored and how they were cooked. Can you give me further guidelines about how to preserve the vitamin C in other cooked vegetables?

A: There are several points that can help you preserve as much vitamin C as possible in cooked vegetables. First, keep the size of the pieces you are cooking as large as possible. The greater the exposed surface area, the greater the losses will be.

Second, since the vitamin is water-soluble and rather easily leached out, it is important to avoid soaking vegetables in large amounts of water. Use only a small amount for cooking. Finally, cook vegetables only until barely tender and serve at once. Holding them at warming temperatures or reheating already-cooked vegetables results in considerable loss of vitamin C.

While the amount of water or the length of cooking time affects the vitamin C in different vegetables to varying degrees, these measures should help to maximize the amount you can get from a number of other vegetables such as broccoli, cabbage, brussel sprouts, kale, spinach, and other dark greens.



Apple Nut Pancakes and Honey Butter

Pancake Mix Is More Than Name Implies

Pancake mix is more than the name implies. In addition to its use in preparing delicious and economical pancakes and waffles, it also has a variety of other kitchen functions.

The mix, for example, is a reliable standby for breading, dumplings, batter, fritters, and even a base for coffee cakes of cookies.

Why not try a fast and tasty breading by combining one cup of mix with ½ teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper? As an option, you might want to add ½ teaspoon of garlic salt. This mixture makes a deliciously easy coating for chicken or fish destined for the deep fryer.

As well, the smooth batter can be used to deep-fry hors d'oeuvres using cauliflower pieces, miniature mushrooms and olives, or used as a dip for French Toast.

Although versatility can best describe the multi-faceted pancake mix, one must always consider the scrumptious results when making pancakes and waffles.

But remember, by using a little imagination or by following the attached recipes, your pancakes can be something special and you'll find ideas for every course of a meal.

Why not add a little sparkle to your breakfast or brunch repertoire? It's as easy as adding apples, nuts and a few spices to your pancake mix and sure to win approval of family and friends. For a special treat, pour rich and delicious Honey Butter over pancakes.

APPLE NUT PANCAKES

Pancakes:

1 cup pancake mix
1 teaspoon cinnamon
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup milk
1 cup finely chopped apple
½ cup finely chopped nuts
1 egg
1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Honey Butter:

½ cup honey
½ cup butter or margarine

For pancakes, combine mix, cinnamon and nutmeg. Add milk, apple, nuts egge and oil; stir until batter is fairly smooth. Pour scant ¼ cup batter onto hot (400 deg. F.— lightly greased griddle. Turn pancakes when tops are covered with bubbles and edge look cooked. Turn only once.

For honey butter, combine honey and butter in small saucepan; heat until well blended and warm. For each serving, top 3 pancakes with about ¼ cup warm honey butter. Makes 4 servings.

Have your auto mechanic check the fan and alternator belts before another trip. A glazed fan belt can slip and overheat the engine. A glazed, slipping alternator belt can drain the battery. If the belts are several years old, consider replacing them; they could suddenly fail. Keep the old ones in the trunk and you have a spare which in an emergency would help you "limp in" to a service station.

Chicken Boasts Oriental Flair

Company coming for dinner? Why not try this scrumptious chicken dish with an international flair? Chinese Sweet-Sour Chicken is sure to win you words of praise at the dinner table and a reputation as a great cook.

SWEET—SOUR CHICKEN

1½ lb. boneless chicken breasts
½ cup pancake mix
1 cup chicken stock
1 teaspoon salt
Vegetable oil
1 cup thin carrot slices
1 garlic clove, finely chopped
1 green pepper, cut into thin strips
½ cup syrup
⅓ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon soy sauce
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup cold water
1 tomato, cut into wedges
Hot cooked rice

Cut chicken into one-inch cubes. Combine pancakes mix, egg, ¼ cup stock and salt; mix until batter is fairly smooth. Stir chicken into the batter. Fry chicken pieces a few at a time in large skillet of wok in ½-inch deep hot oil (375 degree F) until crisp and golden brown.

Remove chicken from skillet; keep warm. Drain oil, reserving about 1 to 2 tablespoons. Saute carrot and garlic in reserved oil about 3 minutes.

Add green pepper; continue cooking about 2 minutes. Add remaining chicken stock, syrup, vinegar and soy sauce. Bring to a boil.

Reduce heat; add combined cornstarch and water gradually to vegetable mixture. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and clear. Stir in chicken and tomato. Serve over hot cooked rice.

Makes four to six servings.

Empathy Vital in Diagnosis

By L. L. Coleman, MD

Many patients, after a physical examination for very real complaints, often ask their doctors, "Could it be psychosomatic?"

This familiar question may be asked by patients of all degrees of sophistication.

In this age of psychological enlightenment, some patients feel, or are made to feel, that they complain too much about their symptoms, with the implication that they are psychological in origin.

The sensitive threshold for pain or discomfort varies from patient to patient. This often determines the overlay of anxiety which, then, may become in itself a dominant symptom. Far too often, underlying physical disease may be overlooked because a sensitive patient is classed as a "chronic complainer." Patients become aware of this and sometimes accuse themselves of being hypochondriacs and tend to deny the validity of their complaints. It then becomes an artistic endeavor for physicians to differentiate psychological disturbances from real physical problems.

In this age of anxiety, it is almost impossible for a physical illness not to be accompanied by fears and tension. One of the great accomplishments of doctors lies in the word "empathy," or the ability to project themselves into the concern of the patient. With such empathy, a most important aspect of the total practice of medicine, the patient can gain the assurance and reassurance so vital to recovery.

Even if the overlay of anxiety is greater than the physical symptoms that a patient presents, it is imperative that concern and consideration of these fears must be incorporated in the total evaluation of a patient, if a total cure is to be achieved.

Medicine cabinets are lined with rows of half-empty bottles. These are evidence of some failure in the written or verbal communication between patients and their doctors.

These leftover antibiotics, antihistamines, analgesic drugs and the like are mute evidence that a carefully planned program of treatment has, in some way, been misunderstood or interrupted.

Doctors are perplexed by patients who, for some unexplained reason, will suddenly stop taking medicines that are prescribed for them. Patients with high blood pressure, and even those with mild diabetes, sometimes make their own decision to stop taking drugs.

In order to attain a cure and to maintain a state of good health, it is imperative that medication must be continued until the doctor definitely ordes it to be discontinued.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: I have always admired you for admitting your errors and taking your lumps, but don't be so quick to knuckle under.

Having written "from whence" you apologized all over the place because the word "whence" means, "from what place, from what source, from what origin, etc." . . . thus you have written, "from from what source."

No big mistake in my book. I have read "from whence" in the Roman Catholic Liturgy (Apostles' Creed): "He ascended into heaven, FROM WHENCE He shall come to judge the living and the dead."—ON YOUR SIDE

DEAR ON: Thanks, friend, but even a divinely inspired church can be somewhat less than divinely inspired in its use of language, according to John J. Henrietta of South Euclid, Ohio.

He, too, pointed out although I was dead wrong, I was in good company.

DEAR ABBY: Afer 37 years of marriage, my husband walked out on me. I was a good and faithful wife, but he was not a good and faithful husband. In a way, I am relieved because I no longer have to put up with his lying, cheating and sadistic brutality.

Please tell young women to prepare themselves for some kind of job so they won't end up like me. I was trained for nothing, and have never worked outside my home.

So here I am, 62, not able to work, trying to live on the $200 a month he has been giving me.

When he retires, he will get a nice retirement from the university where he's been employed for many years.

I never thought this would happen to me. Sign me . . . —WISED UP TOO LATE

DEAR WISED UP: There is nothing you can do now about the shortsightedness of your past. But your experience might signal a warning to other women. (P.S. Don't quietly accept whatever your husband decides to give you. See a lawyer.)

DEAR ABBY: I liked your answer to I ALREADY BELIEVE, who wanted to known how to get rid of religious hucksters. But you were too gentle when you said, "Tell them you don't want to take up their valuable time."

Abby, their time is not wasted trying to get converts. It's part of their religious program to spend their time that way.

Why not say, "Please don't take up MY valuable time." It's more honest.

May I tell you how I got rid of a pair of religious salesmen? I got my Bible and turned to Luke 10:7, and read aloud that our Lord told His disciples: "Go not from house to house . . ."

I was never bothered again.—I ALREADY BELIEVE, TOO

CONFIDENTIAL TO "KEEP ME NAMELESS": Please send me your name and address. I have help and hope for you. I agree with Orson Wells, who said, "Gluttony is not a secret vice."

One way to serve a BIG crowd: a "box lunch" with finger food like chicken or quiche, raw vegetables, sandwiches, fruit and cookies. Individual containers of juice or wine can be included.

Pastry should be handled delicately. Whether you're working with a processor, mixer or even your hands, don't over-process the dough.

You can re-use the court bouillon in which you poach fish. It just gets more flavorful. Store in the freezer.

To keep macaroni and cheese — or other sticky foods — from clinging to a casserole, spray before filling with non-stick pan spray. Spray the serving spoon, too.

Tax Tips '78

Tax Tips are prepared for the Victoria Times by Revenue Canada. Detailed tax information can be obtained from the local Revenue Canada office, 1415 Vancouver St. by phoning 386-2176 between 8:15 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday to Friday.

Q. I am married with a wife and two children, one seven and the other seventeen. My wife and children did not earn any income last year. What exemptions am I entitled to claim?

A. Everyone is entitled to the basic personal exemption of $2,430. You may also claim a married exemption of $2,130, a $840 exemption for your seventeen-year-old and a $460 exemption for your seven-year-old. When making your claim be sure to give all the information requested on page 2 of your income tax return. For more details, check your 1978 Tax Guide.

Q. I borrowed money to invest. Can I deduct the interest on the borrowed income?

A. Yes. Remember, however, the income eligible for the interest, dividends and capital gains deduction must be reduced by the interest you paid to earn that income.

Q. What moving expenses may be deducted from income for income tax purposes?

A. Moving expenses generally include the cost of travelling from a former to a new residence, including meals and lodging while en route, transportation and storage costs for household effects, the cost of up to 15 days temporary board and lodging near either the former or the new residence, real estate commission and legal fees incurred for the sale of the former residence, the cost of cancelling an unexpired lease on your former residence, legal fees for the purchase of your new residence and fees incurred for the transfer or registration of title to your new residence. For more information on what you may claim, ask your District Taxation Office for the pamphlet "Moving Expenses".

Last year, Brian Ames and friends flew 2400 missions.

It's his job to fly patients from remote areas in B.C. where there aren't proper hospital facilities to centres where there are.

Sometimes it's simply a minor industrial accident.

Sometimes it's a matter of life and death. Where every minute counts.

That's why a team of trained personnel—from pilots, doctors and nurses to the essential ground crews are on call around the clock—ready to fly into where they might be needed. At a moment's notice.

It's not always an easy job. But it is rewarding.

Brian is only one of the more than 43,000 members of the B.C. Government Employees' Union working for you all over the Province.

At all kinds of jobs.

Under all kinds of working conditions.

All people whose skill, experience and dedication have made our provincial employees among the most efficient anywhere in North America today. And that's something to be proud of.

The B.C. Government Employees' Union

We're working for you.

Deadly Syndrome Reported

ATLANTA (UPI) — Health officials in the United States say 100 cases of Reye syndrome, a rare but deadly complication of certain virus infections, have been reported this winter on the heels of Russian influenza outbreaks across the country.

Dr. David Nelson, a medical investigator with the viral diseases division of the U.S. National Centre for Disease Control, (CDC) said the Reye syndrome cases have followed the pattern of the flu outbreaks across the country.

"Clearly there seems to be, at least in time and place, an association with A-influenza," Nelson said Wednesday.

The development has touched off an investigation by the CDC, which is trying to establish if there is a medical connection between the regional epidemics of Russian influenza, an A-type flu, and the Reye syndrome cases.

Outbreaks of Reye syndrome in the past have always been associated with epidemics of B-influenza and chicken pox, seldom with the A-type flu, which is the most common variety of influenza.

The 100 confirmed cases of Reye syndrome reported Wednesday by Nelson were an increase of 15 from the 85 of last week. Nelson said 20 confirmed cases of Reye syndrome — up from 18 listed earlier this week — have occurred in southeastern Michigan in a six- or seven-county area near the Ohio border where there is a flu epidemic among young people.

Three experts from the CDC are in Michigan to help monitor the flu outbreak and the cases of Reye syndrome.

Classes were cancelled in Cadillac, Mich., and a number of other areas nearby because of the flu outbreak and the as yet unexplained upsurge of Reye syndrome.

"We would call that a cluster of cases," said Nelson, who labelled it "unusual" in the absence of any outbreaks of B-type influenza in Michigan.

Reye syndrome is a neurologic disorder of children that affects primarily the liver and brain. It is not contagious but has a mortality rate exceeding 40 per cent. There is no known cure but complete recovery frequently occurs with early detection and intensive therapy.

Investigators of the disease are seeking to determine if factors other than virus infections are involved in the incidence of Reye syndrome. "Not everyone who gets influenza gets Reye syndrome," Nelson said.

"This is the most common time of year to see Reye syndrome," he said, "but I would say that we're seeing more than we usually do in a year when there is no influenza-B."

Two deaths due to Reye syndrome have been reported in Michigan. Nelson said he had heard of six to 10 more fatal illnesses but said "a lot of these are preliminary reports."

There have been two outbreaks of Reye syndrome in this decade, one in 1973-74 and the last one in 1976-77.

Fatal Virus Spread By Nursery Staff?

BOSTON (AP) — Doctors and nurses working in hospital nurseries may spread a common virus that causes severe, sometimes fatal respiratory illness in infants, a study warns.

The germ, called respiratory syncytial virus, can cause pneumonia, bronchiolitis and other breathing difficulties in newborn babies.

Doctors at the University of Rochester Medical Centre studied an outbreak of the virus in an intensive care nursery and found that it apparently was spread by hospital staff.

They said they studied 66 newborn babies who were in hospital for six days or more, and 23 of them — or 35 per cent — caught the virus. Four of those infants died.

They also found that of 53 nursery personnel studied, 187 — or 34 per cent — caught the germ. Ther symptoms were less severe than the babies' and included fever, cough and bronchitis.

The doctors, writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, said: "The nursery personnel appeared to be important."

In an accompanying editorial, Dr. Robert Parrott of Washington said hospital workers should try to prevent spreading the germs.

"Although most past efforts have been discouraging, new attention should be paid to improving and enforcing traditional methods for control of cross-infecting, such as use of gowns, careful hand washing and development of improved masks," he wrote.

Gandhi Process Speeded

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The Indian government has passed a bill setting up special courts for the speedy trial of former prime minister Indira Gandhi for alleged offences committed during her 21-month emergency rule.

Patel said the courts will be presided over by high court judges to be appointed in consultation with the Supreme Court.

QUEEN OF PRINCE RUPERT
RESUMES SERVICE
MONDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1979

Having completed her annual refit, the MV "Queen of Prince Rupert" will resume her normal off-season service between Vancouver and Prince Rupert (with regular calls at Kelsey Bay, Bella Bella and Ocean Falls). Departures from Vancouver are on Mondays (9:30 am) and Thursdays (8:00 pm); from Prince Rupert, Tuesdays (10:30 pm) and Saturdays (10:00 am).

BOOK NOW AND SAVE !!!

Off-season and return trip fares are in effect until May 30. Summer schedule starts Thursday, May 31, 1979 northbound from Port Hardy.

"Sail 'n Save" excursions are in effect all year with 20% savings on regular round-trip fares for passengers and vehicles.

Your best values are the new round-trip, all-inclusive packages, which start at $159.95. Fares are based on double occupancy from Vancouver. Included are passenger fare, semi-deluxe inside stateroom, most meals aboard ship, Gray Line tour and meal ashore in Prince Rupert. See your travel agent or call us about the "Getaway" leaving Monday mornings, or the "Weekender" leaving Thursday evenings.

Autoplan
ADVANTAGE

One company, One cheque
Combine your Basic insurance with your Optional insurance at the same time. Autoplan offers both in a neat, simple "Protection Plus" policy - one cheque does it!

Easy claim handling
With both your Basic and Optional insurance in a single policy, claims handling is simple and time-saving. You can phone or drive in to any of the 39 claim centres throughout the province.

Safe Driving Vehicle Discounts
If your vehicle has a claim-free record for one year your Safe Driving Vehicle Discount will be 15%; for two years it's 25%; for three years, 32.5%. Your agent can tell you if your vehicle qualifies - 8 out of 10 vehicles do.

Choice of deductibles
With the wide choice of deductibles available from Autoplan, you can virtually design a policy to suit your own particular needs.

Easy financing
If you prefer, you can pay your Autoplan premium in installments. You pay 30% down, subject to a minimum of $75, and the balance in three installments at two-month intervals. The interest rate is only 15% per annum.

Available to ALL vehicle owners
Autoplan's "Protection Plus" policy is available to all vehicle owners, regardless of driving record or claims history. It should be noted that any indebtedness to the Corporation must be resolved before renewal.

And more
Check the 1979 "All about Autoplan" booklet. It provides concise information on most aspects of Autoplan. Pick up a copy from your agent when you renew.

✓ One company/One cheque
✓ One stop, easy claim handling Province-wide
✓ Safe driving vehicle discounts

Opening lead - king of clubs.

Assume you're in five diamonds and West cashes the K-A of clubs before shifting to the jack of hearts. You win and draw two rounds of trumps, but what would you do next?

There are apparently two chances for the contract. One is to find the hearts divided 3-3; the other is to try a spade finesse if the hearts are not divided 3-3. Both prospects are unattractive.

The odds are about 2-to-1 against a suit being divided 3-3 — even if the opponents pass throughout the bidding. But here they are probably 3-to-1 after West doubles one diamond. He is highly likely to have four hearts for his double. Furthermore, you shouldn't bet much on your chance of winning the spade finesse. West almost surely has the king — he couldn't very well double one diamond without it.

Since these probabilities add up to down one, you should start looking for other ways to salvage the contract. If you look hard enough, you find the answer. Assuming your preliminary estimate is correct, West will have to guard both hearts and spades and you can put him under tremendous pressure by leading all your trumps.

Accordingly, you play three more trumps, reducing your hand to one trump, the A-Q of spades and 7-5 of hearts. Dummy keeps the J-10 of spades and A-K-4 of hearts.

When you lead your last trump discarding a spade from dummy, West is forced to discard from the K-6 of spades and 10-8-6 of hearts. He can't spare a heart, so he discards the six of spades.

You cash the A-K of hearts, East showing out, and play the jack of spades toward your A-Q. When East follows low, you go up with the ace because you know West's last two cards are the ten of hearts and king of spades.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, February 23
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent on defining terms, making arrangements with "city fathers." Pisces, Virgo individuals play key roles. See as is, not through haze of self-deception. You could be asked to represent special group, organization.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Study Aries message. Take long-range view. Romance and education combine. Priorities come into focus. Submit plans, manuscripts, formats. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently — and so does the number 8. Older individual will lend support.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get truth concerning investment, how much partner or mate expects from you. Aries, Libra figure prominently. You complete a key assignment — prestige could soar. Mystery is resolved if you dig beneath superficial layers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Direct legal confrontation sees you landing on your feet. Stress originality, independence. Wait, listen, observe — money coming to you will arrive. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. Get to heart of matters. One who loves you will put it on the record.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Promote solid structure, security. Steady pace brings desired results. Avoid extremes. Follow through on hunch. You actually learn by teaching others. Aquarius, Cancer persons figure prominently. Check resolutions concerning basic services — and nutrition.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good Moon aspect coincides now with creative endeavors, self-expression, individual style. Key now is to diversify, to give full rein to intellectual curiosity. You'll get answer to questions. Member of opposite sex figures in scenario.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stick to factual data. Refuse to be intimidated by one who makes sensational claims — and demands. Aquarius, Scorpio persons figure prominently. Check wiring at home; eliminate safety hazards. You have right — even an obligation — to insure your own secrity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent on trips, calls, scattering of forces. Brothers, sisters or other close relative asks for written material. Be generous, not foolish. You learn lessons — sense of humor leads now to sense of fitness. Act accordingly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Emphasis on winning, getting a profit, making necessary domestic adjustment, checking interest on loan payments. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio persons figure prominently. You can locate what was "lost". One who made promise now is in position to fulfill it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Take lead, display initiative. You can be at right place at right time. Judgment, intuition are on target. Intuitive flash enables you to solve puzzle. Be confident, direct, original and independent. You have right to have grand expectations!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You gain through confidential material. Be discreet. Clandestine meeting could be on agenda. In matters of speculation, stick with number 8. Authority figures play key roles. A major ambition could be realized.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accolades received — popularity increases — views are vindicated. You sense what people need, desire. Many are drawn to you and confide problems. Aries, Taurus, Libra persons figure prominently. A "medical type" person has good news to impart.

IF FEBRUARY 23 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are attractive, stubborn, fixed in ways, creative, fond of travel and you are very skillful at articulating views. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. You could change residence this year. There will be domestic changes, adjustments in life style. September, February and November could be your most significant months of 1979. You are perceptive, analytical. You are better at helping others than when it comes to aiding yourself. In March, you complete an important assignment.

CLUES ACROSS

3. SHACKS not shocks. The clue is more universally true of SHACKS (using "rude" in the sense of "roughly built"). Many shocks (electric, mechanical, etc.) are not of the type associated with the word "rude."
8. WANTING not wasting. WANTING "too much" (i.e., more than is proper), yes; but it is not good to be wasting at all.
9. SKID not skim or skis. The turn of phrase "slipping and sliding" suits an inadvertent or harum-scarum sort of movement, favoring "SKID." Also, the clue's word "across" favors SKID, in that there is a distinct lateral element in a typical SKID, whereas to skim or to ski is to pass lightly along, rather.
14. KEG not leg. "Distinctly precarious" (hinting at the possibility of a fall or mishap) is an overstatement in the case of leg, in which all that is likely to happen is that the other leg needs to be lowered.
15. PORK not port. the tone of the clue suits something made to fit into practical household management, e.g., PORK. As a luxury, or a drink for special occasions, etc., port is less apt.
16. TRY not toy. In many cases, a TRY should be of an intelligent or well-considered nature, as suggested; but one may doubt if there is any real onus for a toy to be so, or if any toy that gives pleasure is "stupid."
20. TALE not talk. A specific TALE, yes; but "talk," in a broad sense, may be too diverse and indefinite to "deny." just like that.
24. LETTER Not litter. Since litter is generally understood to be undesired anyway, the first five words of the clue are for "LETTER."
25. POSING not losing. "If" he dislikes POSING, yes; but, surely, every man dislikes losing.

CLUES DOWN

1. PICKLES not sickles. The indirect phrase: "a certain sharpness" suits PICKLES better. Usually, sickles are simply sharp.
2. FEW not new. It is inevitable that only a comparative FEW will have a "remarkably" strong effect. New ones are not all so exceptional.
5. CONVERT not convent. Conviction lies in persons rather than in places.
10. CLAY not play. "Artistic talent" primarily suggests skill in such things as painting, sculpture, CLAY modeling, etc., rather than dramatic art (as for play).
11. PUPS not cups. Cups may be roughly handled, but it is living entities, rather, that are said to experience "a rough time."
12. HARD not card. Card players would simply bemoan their luck without feeling any need to offer it as an "excuse" for failing to win — as players in a HARD, close-fought contest of skill may reasonably do.
17. STALL not stalk. The clue's suggestion that time is the important element (a question of how "long") favors STALL rather than stalk.
19. FALLS not calls. The clue suggests a cause (FALLS) likely to lead to an effect (need for doctoring). Calls, however, simply are, or are not, made on or by doctors.

Pair Trapped In Mine Shaft

CRANKS, Ky. (UPI) — A coal mine shaft roof collapsed Wednesday, trapping two miners about two miles underground.

A 15-member mine rescue squad immediately began efforts to dig the victims out.

The cave-in occured about 1 p.m. at a Dry Lake Coal Co. mine, said state police spokesman Harold Bargo at Post 10 in Harlan. "Three others who got out were injured in the fall, and a rescue team is working right now to find the other two."

The three injured miners were taken to area hospitals but no immediate reports on their conditions was available.

The president of the company, Charles Turner, told UPI the 15-member rescue team was about 25 feet from the trapped miners.

Although there was no direct contact between the miners and the rescue squad, Turner said he had hope they survived. Bargo said the miners' families were at the scene.

The names of the trapped miners were not released.

Printers Strike

PARIS (Reuter) — The Paris daily newspapers Le Figaro and L'Aurore failed to appear Wednesday because of a 24-hour strike by printers protesting alleged plans to fire hundreds of production workers. A union spokesman said the afternoon paper France-Soir would not go to print.

Brazil Raises Cane Hopes As Gasoline-Price Solution

TORONTO (CP) — Brazil plans to reduce its dependence on foreign oil by using methyl alcohol distilled from sugar cane as a substitute for gasoline, says a Brazilian executive.

Mario Bernardo Garnero, president of Brazilinvest, told a meeting of the Brazil-Canada Chamber of Commerce that the Brazilian auto industry is preparing to produce 100,000 cars that will operate on alcohol alone.

Garnero also is president of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers of Brazil. He said the country hopes to reduce its foreign oil imports by half by 1985.

The production of eucalyptus oil for industrial fuel is also being considered, he said.

Under current government regulations, Brazilian cars run on a mixture of 84 per cent gasoline and 16 per cent alcohol. The alcohol mix is to be increased to 20 per cent by the end of this year.

Alcohol now is derived as a byproduct of sugar distillation but in the future a cheaper process which produces a distillate with no sugar will be used, Garnero said.

Brazilinvest is a private corporation formed by Brazilian businessmen to promote development and investment in Brazil. Multinational companies and financial institutions from 14 countries are shareholders in the corporation, including Massey-Ferguson Ltd. and Toronto Dominion Bank in Canada.

Jet Crash Kills Vancouver Pilot

LAS VEGAS (AP) — A Canadian fighter pilot was killed Wednesday when his CF-104 jet aircraft crashed in mountainous terrain while taking part in a combat training exercise in the Nevada desert, authorities said.

Officials at Nellis air force base identified the pilot as Capt. Bruce Reid, 29, of Vancouver. He was attached to the Canadian Force's 417th Squadron at Cold Lake, Alta.

Sgt. Jim Dowd, information officer at Nellis, said Reid was taking part in a combat training exercise when the crash occurred about 10:25 a.m. PST. When the plane was reported overdue shortly after 11 a.m., an aerial search was started.

Dowd said U.S. air force helicopters located the wreckage at the 3,000-metre level of Bald Mountain about 128 kilometres southeast of Tonopah in south-central Nevada.

Yeoman of the Guard Opens at McPherson

A major event in this week's entertainment line-up is the opening tonight at the McPherson Playhouse of the Pacific Opera's four-performance run of Gilbert and Sullivan's Yeoman of the Guard.

It will also mark the opera debut of a number of young Victoria and Island singers.

The hero, Col. Fairfax, will be sung by tenor Robert Johnstone of Duncan; Susan Austin, formerly of New York, will be heard in the role of Elsie, the girl Fairfax marries while a prisoner in the Tower, neither having seen the other. Phoebe, the romantic daughter of the Tower's keeper is another newcomer, Meredythe Broadway, and the comic-tragic strolling player, Jack Point, will be played by Clifford Ridley.

Yeoman will be seen tonight, Friday and Saturday at 8 and Sunday at 2 p.m. Tickets for all performances at the Playhouse or Hillside Mall ticket centre.

Scott's World

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Yvette Mimieux is a piquant pixie of an actress with a frighteningly high intelligence quotient, a Rabelaisian sense of humor and an aptitude for unstuffing stuffed shirts.

The diminutive blonde is currently starring at Walt Disney Studios in The Black Hole where she has managed to lift many an eyebrow.

While Disney is dedicated to making the world laugh through its movie comedies, weekly TV shows and delightful cartoons, the general ambiance around the studio itself is decorously muted.

Yvette and her sister, a top flight hairdresser, and a couple of women friends involved behind the scenes in The Black Hole lunch together daily in the Coral Room, the studio commissary's sanctum where executives talk budgets, producers talk scripts and directors talk direction over lunch.

Bored by the formality, Yvette began smuggling champagne into the Coral Room to add a festive touch. Booze at Disney? Unthinkable. But the powers that be pretended not to notice for several weeks. After all, Yvette was starring in the most expensive Disney film in history.

"But one day the cork exploded with a terrific bang and caromed off a window and hit a lady who screamed bloody murder," Yvette giggled. "After that they asked me not to bring champagne to the studio."

Irrepressible Yvette looked around for some other diversion to brighten her days. She hit upon a means of bringing a little fun and laughter to the cast and crew on the spectacular sets of the science fiction epic.

But one member of the cast was perfect for Yvette's sense of fun, a bigger-than-life-size robot who plays a major role in the space thriller.

Yvette went into a huddle with a couple of pals in the special effects and prop departments.

On the given day Yvette joined Perkins and Schell and rehearsed a scene with consumate care. Director Gary Nelson called for action and the actors went through their paces.

On cue, the robot clanked into camera range. Perkins and Schell froze, director Nelson's eyes flew open in astonishment. The robot had been furnished with a huge male appendage, adorned with a blinking light.

"Cut," Nelson cried.

New FM Station Endorsed

A new all-jazz FM radio station serving Victoria and Vancouver has been approved in principle by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

The application by CKWX Radio Ltd. is to broadcast southwest B.C.'s first FM service offering a combination of all-jazz and news magazine type program format.

The CRTC, however, said it had reservations about the use of 93.7 MHz for broadcasting the signal from Salt Spring Island and suggested another frequency be used that would not affect the future allocation of the adjacent frequency, 94.5 MHz in Vancouver.

The company said it anticipates the use of Selkirk News Services, of Ottawa, and a proposed Selkirk news bureau in Victoria for in-depth news, commentaries and phone-in interviews at national and provincial levels.

Final approval of the application will depend on the above conditions being met and on a satisfactory FM frequency being agreed on.

Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission
Conseil de la radiodiffusion et des telecommunications canadiennes

DECISION

Ottawa, February 14, 1979

Following a Public Hearing commencing October 24, 1978 in Vancouver, British Columbia, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission announces the following decision.

Decision CRTC 79-155
VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA — 781010400
Capital Broadcasting System Limited

Application for renewal of its broadcasting licence for CFMS-FM Victoria, British Columbia expiring March 31, 1979.

Decision: APPROVED

The Commission renews this licence from April 1, 1979 to March 31, 1984, subject to conditions to be specified therein.

The Commission has reviewed the licensee's performance during the current licence period in the context of Phase I of the implementation of the FM Policy and has noted the licensee's efforts to adhere to the general principles enunciated therein. With respect to the Promise of Performance of CFMS-AFM, the Commission is generally satisfied that the licensee has complied with the directions outlined in Decision CRTC 76-262.

The Commission notes the licensee's proposal to increase the maximum number of times that any one musical selection may be repeated in any given week. In line with the concern expressed in the Commission's FM policy statement of January 20, 1975, that music on rado is limited in scope and repetitive, the Commission is not prepared to permit the licensee to exceed the maximum repeats authorized in the current licence.

The provision of air time to community groups has been required of all Phase I licensees. In order to achieve uniformity in the implementation of Phase II, the Commission requires the licensee to increase the minimum amount of commercial-free time available to the community from fifteen to thirty minutes per week. The licensee should publicize the availability of such time and promote community access.

Italy Turns to Austerity Man

ROME (AP) — A 75-year-old Sicilian politician who for years has called for economic austerity and wage controls has been given the task of trying to become Italy's first non-Christian Democrat premier in 33 years.

President Sandro Pertini announced he is turning to Ugo La Malfa, leader of the tiny Republican party, after four-time Premier Giulio Andreotti failed to put together Italy's 37th post-war government.

Andreotti handed in his mandate after 19 days of talks during which he failed to win agreement between the two giants of Italian politics — his Christian Democrats and the Communists, the largest Marxist party in the West.

Andreotti had tried to succeed himself after the Communists pulled out of a five-party parliamentary majority. The Communists declined to revive the alliance unless they were given cabinet posts, a request steadily rejected by the Vatican-backed party.

Pertini, an 80-year-old Socialist, summoned La Malfa on Wednesday and said he will name him premier designate.

Italian governments have been dominated by the Christian Democrats since 1945. The Christian Democrats have also been the main pillar of pro-Western and pro-NATO policies here.

La Malfa is pledged in favor of the West but he has repeatedly said he favors bringing the Communists into the government if they agree on austerity and wage controls.

In a television program last year La Malfa confronted Luciano Lama, a powerful Communist labor leader, and sharply attacked union policies seeking higher wages and other improvements for workers. La Malfa said unions pursued the privileges of employed workers at the expense of the jobless.

Official comments from most parties were favorable to Pertini's choice. But La Malfa, often described as Italy's doomsayer for his relentless pinpointing of troubles and illusions, said he faced a formidable task.

La Malfa's Republicans, a pro-Western, intellectual and economy-minded group, drew three per cent of the votes in the 1976 elections, winning 14 out of 630 seats in parliament.

La Malfa might try to negotiate some kind of parliamentary support by the Christian Democrats and the Communists for a minority government including ministers from a few small parties — the Republicans, Socialists and the Democratic Socialists.

Lax Computer-Use Paid For in Abuse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department said Wednesday its computer security was so lax that unauthorized employees used the system 6,000 times in one year and had access to secret crop forecasts, census data and trade secrets.

The department's Washington Computer Center also stores military research information for the Navy and serves the General Accounting Office.

Agriculture inspector general Thomas McBride said an internal audit found no evidence of big money losses, but "a very real potential exists for large dollar losses, damage to agencies' operations, lawsuits and embarrassment to the department."

McBride reviewed computer use from April, 1977 to March 1978, and after he found thousands of breaches, he got Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland last fall to tighten security procedures.

Two officials resigned during the investigation but there was insufficient evidence to prosecute them, McBride said. He said one of them used the computer in his outside consulting business, and the other used it for a college course.

One employee copied the security system before it was fully implemented, providing himself unlimited capability to change or copy most of the data processed by the entire computer, the audit showed.

Employees could browse through confidential U.S. Census Bureau data, personnel data, commercial trade information protected from release by law and even computer programs to operate and manage the entire system.

Computer programmers dealing with sensitive data did not have security clearances.

Israel Seared

GENEVA (AP) — The UN Human Rights Commission Wednesday voted to condemn Israel for alleged human rights violations in occupied Arab territories. Canada and the United States cast the only negative votes. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 20 to 2.

Chavez Cries Foul As More Violence Punctuates Talks

HOLTVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Negotiators for the United Farm Workers have rejected a new pay offer by growers as violence broke out again in some fields.

UFW President Cesar Chavez called Wednesday's confrontation at Joe Maggio Inc. a police riot, while the Imperial County sheriff's department said it was a "riotous mob action."

Deputies and police from as far away as Yuma, Ariz., confronted about 1,000 UFW strikers who are alleged to have entered the Maggio lettuce field nine kilometres north of the Mexican border.

Witnesses said dozens of tear-gas canisters were fired and authorities also used a low-flying helicopter to disperse the crowd.

At least two officers and three farm workers suffered minor injuries but there were no arrests.

It was the third major confrontation since 4,200 UFW workers walked out Jan. 19 against 11 major vegetable growers and shippers in California and Arizona.

During negotiations in nearby El Centro, growers' representatives offered the UFW raises to $4.12 an hour from the current $3.70.

Officials of the UFW, which has demanded an hourly 42-per-cent increase to $5.25, dismissed the 11-per-cent offer.

HOW TO WRITE
CLASSIFIED ACTION
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

308 CARDS OF THANKS

My heart-felt Thanks and deep gratitude go out to Dr. John Hopkins, to Dr. Michael Ross, to Dr. Peter Coy and his most able Staff of Physicians, Technicians, Nurses, Physicist, and the Social Worker for their uniting efforts on my behalf, during my recent illness, as well as Dr. Floyd Stanley whose kind attention did much to help me over a very trying two months.

To all of you wonderful people, "Thank You" and God Bless you all. — Hector Marsh, Duncan Manor, Duncan, B.C.

309 IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY OF James Henry Fielder who went to be with The Lord February 22, 1978.
One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home, it was his will,
Within our hearts, he liveth still.
Remembered by his wife Sybil and family.

HEWITSON — Annie. In loving memory of our dear Mother and Grandma who passed away February 22, 1967.
— Fondly remembered by Edith, Jennie, Tom and families.

JAMIESON— In memory of Wm. 'Bill' Jamieson, who passed away Feb. 22nd, 1976.
-Saddly missed but fondly remembered by his father John and his sisters May and Sarah.

OSBORN - Susan May, In loving memory of a wonderful woman and devoted wife. Loved by all who knew her. She left a void which can never be filled. Always remembered by her loving husband Russell, sister Agnes, brother James, siters-in-law, nephews and nieces.

SEARLE— In loving memory of our dear Dad and Grandad Edward, who passed away so suddenly February 22, 1978.
He had a nature you could not help loving
And a heart that was purer than gold;
And to those who knew him and loved him,
His memory will never grow cold.
Dad-You give me strength when I need it. My questions are always answered. You are missed more than you know.
—Lovingly, Your No.1 daughter Lois.

SEARLE—In loving memory of our dear Dad and Grandad Edward.
I cannot say and I will not say
That he is dead, he is just away.
With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand
He has wandered into a unknown land,
And left us dreaming, how very fair
It needs must be, since he lingers there.
—Always remembered, sadly missed. Lorraine and Ron, Kathy and John.

SEARLE— In loving memory of my dear husband, Edward, who left so suddenly a year ago, on February 22, 1978.
Heavy is my heart today,
But memories are precious
They take me back to happy times
When you were here with me.
-Fondest love, Dorothy.

SEARLE—Love you Grandad. Miss you.
—Love Ted and Tracy.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUTE, SANDS

I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He leadeth me beside the still waters
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Proper Storage Needed To Avoid Potato Greening

Commercial growers of potatoes go to considerable lengths to market a product of high quality and pleasing appearance, but the potato the housewife peels is often green and uninviting.

Greening may occur either in the store where the potatoes are diplayed, or in the home where they are improperly kept.

This greening of potatoes is not only objectionable from the standpoint of appearance but it gives a bitter flavor to the potato. Severe greening is, in fact, somewhat poisonous and excessively greened potatoes should be discarded.

White potatoes are particularly sensitive to light, requiring only 24 hours to turn green in a store window or under bright artificial lights. Netted Gems usually show less greening than White Rose, but the coloring may only be masked by the darker skin, the bitter flavor still being present to a depth of one-quarter-inch or more below the surface.

Potatoes should always be stored, or displayed, well away from windows, in areas of low light intensity.

Fluorescent lamps of the daylight, cool white and pink colors will cause rapid greening, while incandesent lamps and the gold and warm white deluxe fluorescent lamps are more suitable.

Improper storage in the home results in excessive greening. Potatoes, even in jute bags, when stored in bright porches or basements will eventually become green and develop a bitter taste.

The greatest cause of greening on potatoes in the home is their storage in polyethylene bags in areas of excessive light.

Small quantities of potatoes for day-to-day use should be stored in brown paper bags in a closed cupboard or vegetable drawer at floor level, rather than on an open pantry shelf, while larger supplies should be stored in a cool and dark storage space.

Home-grown potatoes for exhibiting in local shows and fairs are often turned down by the judges because they have been in strong light and have developed greening. Two or three days under bright lights in a show hall are enough to spoil the exhibit.

Dark storage of tubers selected for exhibiting is essential, and further protection with heavy jute sacking over the trays of show potatoes will shield them while the basement, or storage room, lights are on.

The above advice on storage potatoes was published in November, 1960, by the staff of the former Dominion experimental station at Saanichton. It came as a result of hundreds of complaints by consumers of green potatoes in the crops being offered for sale that fall.

Report Nearly Ready On Septic Tank Dump

The Capital Regional District's lands commissioner Ken Robinson is close to filing a report on a new permanent site for the dumping of septic tank contents.

But board chairman Murray Glazier told the CRD's community health and social services committee Wednesday that even if a site was found today it would be about five months before the new facility could be in operation.

Glazier said it will take two months before hearings can be held and the remainder of the period would be necessary for design and other details.

He said the first priority is to find the land.

Executive director Dennis Young told the committee that the Pollution Control Branch has given the CRD permission to temporarily dump at both the Millstream Road site and the one at Hartland Road up to a period ending March 31.

North Saanich Mayor George Westwood said it is urgent that the committee come up with a solution at least a week before the March 31 deadline.

Westwood said since the emergency last week when tank operators were informed that there was no permit for Hartland Road dump and were diverted to a settling pond in Sidney, there have been "surreptitous honey-water dumps in our ditches."

Regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil said he is concerned about the situation and is sure that Westwood's statement is correct.

Gov't Eyes Luxury Loto

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal government is studying the feasibility of setting up luxury $20, $25 and $100 lottery games, possibly in the next three or four months, a Loto Canada official said Wednesday.

"There are researchers out in the market now testing whether the public would accept a $20, $25 or $100 draw," said Dan Pugliese, vice-president of promotion for Loto Canada.

"These would be luxury games and offered on a limited basis," he said. "We know white collar workers and secretaries buy the $10 tickets. But it is a question of not pushing beyond the maximum."

Lotteries are a $1 billion industry in Canada and the maximum could be $1.5 billion, he said.

Loto Canada started looking for alternatives to the $10 lottery when revenues slipped as the number of buyers dropped from 6.5 million in the April 2, 1978 draw to 5.5 million in the June 9 draw to 4.4 million in the August draw. There were 4.7 million buyers in the October draw.

A $1 Loto Select was scrapped last October — one month before the official start-up when the provinces refused to allow the federal govenment to compete in the low-cost computer game.

And scrapping of the Loto Select cost the federal government more than $13 million, Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo, revealed Wed-

Air Canada Tickets Slashed to Fill Seats

Air Canada announced today it will slash fares between March 27 and May 7 to fill surplus charter class seats. For $159 in Canadian funds passengers will be able to purchase round trip tickets between Victoria and New York, Victoria and Montreal or Victoria and Toronto.

Regular return fare is $448 to New York, $434 to Montreal and $402 to Toronto.

Similar reductions are planned on all other Air Canada routes in North America — except to Florida.

Glen Steeves, Air Canada's district manager in Victoria, said the company does not view the cuts as a price war.

"We don't know if the competition plans similar reductions."

But Air Canada has foreseen a surplus of charter class seats during the seven-week period and has reduced fares by more than 50 per cent in order to fill them.

Other sample round trip fares from Victoria include: Halifax $209, Quebec City $159, Regina $89, Edmonton $75, St. John's, Nfld., $209, and Charlottetown $209.

The formula: During the seven week period, the return fare for an Air Canada trip of 2,500 miles or more will be $209.

Between 1,901 and 2,500 miles, including most central Canada points, it will be $159.

From 1,501 to 1,900 miles it will be $129 and from 1,101 to 1,500 miles, it will become $109 return.

From 700 to 1,100 miles the fare is $89 and under 700 miles the return fare will be about the usual one-way economy fare.

All rates are for round-trip tickets in Canadian funds.

The restrictions:

Reservations must be made at least seven days before departure and the stay must be at least seven days and not more than 30 days.

Travel must be completed by June 6. Tickets are to be purchased in advance and reservations can not be changed. There is a $20 charge for cancellation.

Passengers with existing charter reservations for the period may change them to sale-price fares.

Prospective passengers must make reservations at least seven days before departure.

Tickets must be bought within seven days of reservation. Payment must be made three days before departure when booking is made only seven days ahead.

The seven-week reduction makes fares lower than at any time in the past 10 years, said Guy Chiasson, Air Canada vice president for passenger planning and marketing.

He said Air Canada's obligation to operate seven days a week through all seasons had created a surplus in the spring and this brought about the decision

"The fact that we are a scheduled carrier allows us to make this surplus available at these almost unprecedented prices," he said.

Tax Deductible Mortgages 'Economically Perverse'

Times News Services

TORONTO — The federal government has rejected a proposal to review deductibility of mortgage interest payments, but has given varying degrees of support to 46 general recommendations by a task force on industrial strategy.

The 12-member panel task force — made up of six labor leaders and six businessmen — was set up after the First Ministers' Conference in February 1978 to propose ways to strengthen industry.

The 46 recommendations came in its report, released Wednesday.

Most of the recommendations were general. "We accept most of them, agree in principle with some and disagree on a very few," said Robert Andras, president of the Board of Economic Development Ministers.

The three proposals rejected were a review of deductibility of mortgage payments to aid low income families; a study of value added taxes in place of existing taxes and elimination of sales taxes on building material.

In its response, the government said "a consideration of proposals made to date for mortgage interest deductibility shows them to be generally regressive, discriminatory against tenants and to produce economically perverse effects on housing prices, capital markets and interest rates."

Hydro Buses Stay; Gas Hike Delayed

B.C. Hydro will continue to operate and finance urban transit in the Victoria area and Greater Vancouver for an indefinite period, Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday.

The announcement means a three-cent-a-gallon hike in the gasoline tax due April 1 has been postponed.

Hydro will pay this year's operating deficit of about $60 million and will continue to finance transit until the provincial government can pass legislation to amend its transportation policy.

Vander Zalm indicated the new legislation would come as soon as possible in the session, which is expected at the end of March.

The Capital Region District and the Greater Vancouver Region District were to take over urban transit April 1, but GVRD directors said Monday they would not sign a transit agreement until the provincial government agrees to pay a greater share of anticipated deficits.

"We're halted for the time being, and we're going to have to take a different course in part," Vander Zalm told reporters.

He said he has had excellent co-operation from other communities within the province, including Greater Victoria, "all of which have recognized the provincial transit funding formula as the most generous in Canada."

"It is regrettable that the GVRD failed to take on the transit function, thus losing a valuable tool in their otherwise extensive planning programs."

Vander Zalm said his ministry would take advantage of the delay to study other means of financing and to arrange the transfer of staff from B.C. Hydro to the Urban Transit Authority.

"I don't mind the breathing time, and certainly I'll take advantage of it — but I'm not the type of person that likes to put things off. I would have preferred to have made the transfers by the initial date."

The minister said his ministry is preparing legislation which would allow him to appoint a commission to handle transit in Vancouver and surrounding area — an action he said Tuesday he is prepared to take.

Vander Zalm said the two transit systems would continue to be financed by Hydro, and plans to impose a three-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax in the two regional districts will be shelved for now.

Capital Region District board chairman Murray Glazier welcomed the postponement.

The delay will give the CRD time to negotiate a better agreement with the provincial government.

Victoria Man Among Four In Drug Bust

Four persons including a 57-year-old Victoria man are in custody following the seizure of a pound of heroin with the street value of up to $1 million at Vancouver International Airport Tuesday.

Wah Young of 107 Government Street, Sharon Carlson, 40 of Langley, and Gary Robert Morris, 43, and Helen Fraser, 63, both of Vancouver were to appear in provincial court in Richmond today.

The four are charged with conspiring to import heroin and conspiring to traffick in the drug.

Taping Fouls Up Fulton Charge?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A radio reporter's efforts to gain first-hand knowledge of day-to-day police work has resulted in an uproar in legal circles and suggestions that charges against a judge and a suspected prostitute will have to be dropped.

George Garrett of CKNW recorded a heated discussion between Mr. Justice E. Davie Fulton of the B.C. Supreme Court and a police officer when the judge was involved in a minor accident.

Garrett was also involved in recording a conversation between an undercover police officer and a woman in downtown Vancouver.

CKNW made both tapes public, the one involving the prostitution suspect as part of a news story about the first charge of soliciting in the city in a year.

The tapings aroused concern among Crown lawyers, who feel that the recordings could jeopardize trials before the courts.

China Refuses To Back Down As War Hotter

Times News Services

Reinforced tank-led Chinese troops pressed their attack on two provincial capitals in Vietnam today and official Peking sources said China would not withdraw its invasion forces which were already fighting the Vietnamese regular army.

Japanese reports said the Soviet Union has begun mobilizing troops along its Chinese border in apparent response to Peking's 15 mile thrust into Vietnam. Japan offered to mediate the Sino-Vietnamese dispute, saying it feared a long war.

Reports from Hanoi said Chinese reinforcements were pouring through the ancient "Friendship Pass" invasion route into Vietnam with a battle shaping up for control of Lang Son, barely 80 miles above Hapoi.

Meanwhile, Khmer Rouge forces loyal to ousted Premier Pol Pot have attacked Vietnamese-led troops in northwest Cambodia and killed more than 50 of them, Khmer Rouge Radio said today.

Indochina analysts here said Khmer Rouge guerrilla units were exerting pressure in the area because the Vietnamese were thought to be having serious supply problems.

The radio claimed Russian and Cuban advisers were helping command the Vietnamese army forces, however, Vietnam continues to deny it has any forces in Cambodia.

As the United States asked the United Nations Security Council today to convene an urgent session "the situation in Southeast Asia," the Soviet Union was still keeping mum again on its intentions in Vietnam despite reports of it had warships and reconnaissance planes heading toward the scene of the Chinese-Vietnamese conflict.

The U.S. stressed it wants the UN agenda to include the "situation in Southeast Asia" and not solely the Chinese invasion of Vietnam.

Granduc Mine Re-Opening

Provincial Economic Development Development Minister Don Phillips today announced an American-owned company, Esso Minerals Canada Ltd., will re-open the Granduc mine near Stewart, B.C.

The project will provide about 330 jobs in the copper mine and mill and an annual payroll of $6 million.

Work would begin this summer to reactivate the mill.

Because of the American ownership, the project will have to be approved by the federal government's Foreign Investment Review Agency.

Granduc operated the mine from November, 1970, to June 30, 1978, and took out 600,000 tons of copper concentrate before closing due to low prices.

With the price of copper increasing, the mine has become viable again.

Phillips said new mining methods which will be employed by Esso are also a factor in making the mine viable.

The mine will be a major economic boost for the northwestern section of B.C., he said.

The town of Stewart had been hard hit by the mine closure.

CS Fingerprinting Gets MP's Ire

By RON CLINGEN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Charges of "undemocratic governmental invasion of privacy" were hurled in the Commons Wednesday amid renewed evidence of a massive unexplained fingerprinting of public servants.

Leeds Conservative MP Tom Cossitt demanded that Prime Minister Trudeau be required to make a statement of government policy on the matter — something Cossitt has been unable to get after more than two years of trying.

The MP — who has carved a reputation as a security bloodhound — said the latest fingerprinting has been within the past two weeks on certain members of the national headquarters staff of the employment and immigration department, housed in the Bourque Building at 305 Rideau Street.

Cossitt said the fingerprinting is being "surreptitiously" conducted even on public servants in non-security positions.

His attempt to have the Commons order a statement by the prime minister failed because it did not receive the necessary unanimous consent.

Trudeau was in Toronto at the time with nine of his cabinet ministers preparing for a full cabinet session and other meetings there today.

Cossitt told the Commons the fingerprinting of public servants "appears to constitute a horrendous governmental invasion of privacy and resemble undemocratic procedures practised by fascist and communist police states.

Cossitt noted a question he placed on the Commons order paper in February of 1977 in which he demanded a full explanation of the fingerprinting, still remains there unanswered. He has tried unsuccessfully on at least four occasions to push the government into supplying the answer.

"But every time I bring the issue up in the House of Commons, I get more phone calls from public servants who say they have been fingerprinted," he said.

Eight-man team of consultants and their families are heading for the wilds of East Africa for two years to spend Canadian money improving the scattered water systems

Off to Kenya . . . It'll Be a Mind-Boggler

Obstacles and tests of endurance ahead for Pennington

By AB KENT
Times Staff

A Victoria consulting team is off to Kenya on a two-year, $2.75 million trek to improve that nation's water systems and supply.

The team, headed by Duncan Pennington, of Ker, Priestman and Associates Ltd., will do it the hard way, often miles from civilization in the outback of East Africa.

It includes eight experts commissioned to improve rural water supplies in the western part of the country.

Pennington expects the obstacles and inconveniences to be mind-boggling — even taking inventory of existing systems will be a test of endurance and ingenuity in a hilly terrain which lacks transportation and communication facilities and has few roads.

The Victoria consulting firm, of which 52-year-old Pennington is a principal, is believed to be the first engineering group ever to be awarded a contract of this kind by the Canadian International Development Agency.

What it means is that a total of 28 people, including wives and other dependents, from Vancouver Island — mostly Victorians — and the Lower Mainland will be living a hop-skip from the Equator until early in 1981.

Pennington's job, besides heading the team of Canadians whose salaries over the two years will cost about $1.75 million, will be to portion out $1 million in federal funds for hardware in Kenya for upgrading hundreds of water systems scattered throughout an area two-thirds the size of V.I.

The object of the exercise is to strengthen the ability of Kenya's ministry of water development to manage the many systems inherited from local governments, schools, missions and private sources, some of them 50 years old.

Pennington said the job will be largely rehabilitation.

"We will be repairing things, putting them back in shape and we will be training Kenyan staff to maintain and operate them," he said.

"We're going out there with our sleeves rolled up, making on the spot repairs where possible."

Two members of the party are water chemists, for whom a major concern will be water quality and public health.

"We're not talking about North American standards. That's impossible where waste disposal and cattle grazing is allowed in the watercourses. But chlorination will be an improvement," Penningtin says.

"We're not going to change Africa in two years. We're not whiz kids.

"For every dollar spent we hope to leave behind 25 cents of value. We're not there to solve all their problems magically in two years, just to improve it."

Pennington said access will be difficult in most of the territory. The chief method of travel is by foot or cycling over dirt tracks although there will be eight Land Rovers at the disposal of engineers, who will keep in touch by radio.

Where appropriate, new technology will be introduced to replace the old. For example, wind-powered pumps might be used, or deep drilling used to tap major groundwater sources.

Pennington will wear many hats simultaneously. For other members of the party he will be consul, counsellor, chief administrator, treasurer, paymaster, troubleshooter and co-ordinator as well as technical chief.

He will also delegate duties on behalf of his little community, giving one man responsibility for housing problems, another transportation, someone else recreational activities.

Pennington, for instance, was with the B.C. water rights branch 12 years before going into consulting practice.

Headquarters for half the party will be at an office supplied by the Kenya government at the city of Kisumu on Lake Victoria, 10 minutes south of the Equator. The others will be stationed at Kakamega, a much smaller town just north of the Equator.

Pennington has been to Kenya twice, the last time for a reconnaissance during October. Two of the party have left and will arrive in Kenya March 2. They are communications adviser Mike Broemeling, a UVic sociologist who has worked in Kenya before, and North Vancouver radio man John R. Morgan.

Pennington is leaving here March 7 for arrival March 17, and the balance of the group leaves the week following.

Murphy Started Block Rolling

Bill Murphy's 1892 classic turns heads daily in Fairfield

A house built in 1892 headed the list Wednesday when the Hallmark Society made its heritage preservation awards for 1978.

The award for preservation of residential property went to Bill Murphy for work on his home at 1012 Richardson.

"Your restoration of this house has not only saved an interesting building in the Victorian Eclectic Queen Anne style but has also served to inspire your neighbors to restore their houses," said Mayne. "One man's effort in preserving his property has grown into an area restoration preserving a streetscape."

Two awards were made for the restoration and conversion of heritage buildings to commercial uses.

Fred Oldfield and Robin Thompson won awards for work they did in converting a rustic log home at 2328 Harbor Road, Sidney, into a restaurant.

The log house was built in 1926 for Walter Cameron Nichol, a former publisher of The Province and lieutenant-governor of B.C.

Mayne said Oldfield and Thompson had completed the conversion without destroying the building's character.

Town and Country Realty Ltd. was given an award for converting Beacon Hill School into residential use.

Mayne said the conversion had been carried out with imagination and showed that James Bay need not be "a wasteland of sterile concrete high-rises."

Mayne also commended real estate developer Charles van Veen for work in restoring Dodd House in Saanich, and praised Society member Thomas Palfrey for his efforts in publicizing the heritage preservation campaign.

School Files Open

Students have the right to examine their own files and request detrimental information be destroyed after they leave school, Greater Victoria school board decided Tuesday.

The board also decided a student's permanent record card will be reviewed each year to make sure it contains only relevant and up-to-date information.

The new regulations will give students and parents access to files containing medical information, aptitude scores, teacher and counsellor assessments.

Two years after leaving school, or upon reaching 21, personal data in each student's file will automatically be destroyed and basic information, such as school enrolment and leaving dates, microfilmed.

When students leave school they can request all files be destroyed immediately.

The policy change was first proposed by Trustee John Young last year. Young said the records should not be used without students' permission and that principals and teachers should be restricted from handing out information which could jeopardize students' chances of getting jobs or furthering their education.

Strike Vote Set At Quadra Steel

Employees of Quadra Steel Ltd. in Esquimalt and Nanaimo will take a strike vote Tuesday to back up contract demands.

Mediator Fred Geddes is still involved in the dispute but he is expected to be asked to withdraw if the 22 workers vote to walk off the job.

There are three unions involved — the boilermakers, operating engineers and office workers. The employees' contracts expired Sept. 14, 1978.

Neil Hindle, business agent for the boilermakers union, said today the company has offered two five-per-cent increases and one four-per-cent boost in a 28½-month contract. The company also wants to remove the cost-of-living allowance clause, he said.

The unions initially asked for six per cent in each year of a two-year agreement but later changed that to nine per cent in one year.

Quadra Steel, which supplies sheet and shaped steel for shipbuilding, tanks and pressure vessels, is owned by Drummond, McCall & Co. Ltd. of Quebec, a metal processing and marketing firm.

Hindle accused the company of being anti-union and not only tight-fisted in its wage proposal but retrogressive in its efforts to remove benefits already won by the workers.

"We are not prepared to march back in time," he told a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday night.

"We hope that Quadra Steel understands that we may be small but we will be tenacious."

He also said if the company thinks that in the event of a strike they can service their customers on Vancouver Island from Quadra's Richmond plant, "they are in for a rude awakening."

He said the unions will declare all of Quadra's steel hot and make sure it moves nowhere.

Roger Lewis, president of the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America, assured Hindle Wednesday night that Quadra employees will get the full support of the woodworkers union.

'Bloody Shambles' Feared Tonight

Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier is afraid a public information meeting scheduled for tonight to discuss sewage disposal problems in the Cordova Bay area could turn out "a bloody shambles."

The 7:30 p.m. meeting is to be held in the smaller of two auditoriums at Claremont senior secondary school, which can accommodate up to 250. A festival is booked for the other hall.

The mayor said this morning the central issue whether Cordova Bay needs sewers is such a controversial one that as many as 500 residents could attend.

He said the pro-sewer faction has sent out a newsletter to enlist attendance support at the meeting, while the Cordova Bay Association opposed to sewers is already strong in numbers.

If his pessimism is confirmed and there's a heavy overflow crowd, he will recommend to council that the meeting be adjourned until the larger hall is available.

"It's supposed to be an information meeting and there doesn't seem much point in going ahead with it if half of those who turn up can't take part," he added.

In addition to aldermen and municipal officials, representatives from the Pollution Control Branch, the Capital Region District health department and Saanich school board will be at the meeting.

Couvelier said regional health officer Dr. Allan Arneil will announce that he is seeking funds for a student summer program to undertake dye tests on septic disposal systems along the Cordova Bay ridge.

The program would give some clearer idea of the number of faulty septic tanks in the area, and confirm the extent of any possible health problem.

One contentious issue scheduled for airing tonight is the question of effluent disposal from Claremont school itself.

Residents in the immediate area have claimed that the malfunctioning system is discharging raw sewage into open ditches.

Several have filed objections to the school board's application for a PCB permit, seeking to discharge 7,500 gallons of effluent daily into a storm drain.

Welfare: Some Mad, Some Glad

Reaction is mixed to the $31 million boost in provincial welfare rates announced Wednesday.

Social workers and opposition critics have guardedly applauded the move but the handicapped say the changes will have little immediate effect on their lot.

Ellie Bowerman of the Victoria Handicapped Action Committee called the increases for the handicapped, from $342 to $350 a month, paltry and said they will not cover the increase in the cost of living.

"It sounds like an awful lot of money is going in but only a little is coming out," she said.

Under the new rate structure handicapped allowances will be adjusted quarterly on par with adjustments to federal old age pensions.

The rates go into effect April 1 and will result in an average increase of about $10 a month for welfare recipients.

Families and single persons between 31 and 54 will benefit most while single recipients in the 60 to 64 age bracket will see virtually no change in their monthly payments of $305.

The rate structure equalizes the shelter portion of welfare allowances for all categories of recipients and eliminates the need for overages or extra alotments which last year totalled $27 million. In addition funds will be provided for utilities, a cost which recipients to now have had to pay out of the allowance they receive for food and clothing.

"I haven't seen the figures yet so it's hard to say how it will work.

"But anytime the government wants to give more money, that's great. It generates more spending, and that's good for the economy."

Preston said she is particularly happy about McCarthy's announcement that the budget for the incentive workers program will be increased $2 million to $4.7 million.

"Everyone feels it is a really effective program," she said.

There are now 2,400 persons on the program.

Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard), the opposition human resources critic, said she is pleased by the government's move.

"We've hollered and screamed and begged and pleaded for so long that I'm really glad that finally, nearly two years later, that there is going to be an increase," she said.

The last general welfare increase was in August, 1977, while handicapped persons received a moderate hike in July, 1978.

Brown said, however, she is disappointed by the small increase in the support portion of the grant under the new rate schedule.

"I think when we start looking at individual cases we'll find a lot of people are not going to benefit at all," she said.

Ron Willems, manager of the income assistance program, agreed there will be no change for some recipients.

He said the shelter allowance was based on the average rent paid by 70 per cent of recipients in the Vancouver area. For the other 30 per cent it may be just as tough as before in meeting the bills.

But Willems said no one will receive a reduction in payments, and those who are already paying inordinately high rents or mortgages will continue to be covered as before.

Cabbie's Little Joke Bounces Right Back

A Sidney taxi driver whose idea of a joke was to point a toy cap gun at a youngster Wednesday afternoon may wind up in court doing some explaining.

Sidney RCMP said today a charge of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace is being contemplated against the 26-year-old man.

An unidentified 10-year-old boy was standing guard at a school crosswalk in front of Sidney elementary school when a taxi passed and the driver pointed a gun at him.

The frightened youngster told the principal.

The man told police he carries the the cap gun around with him "as a kind of joke."

"He was a real joker, but this joke sort of backfired," the spokesman said.

Precise Tally of Fakes Eludes RCMP Witness

MONTREAL (CP) — Testimony at the Keable inquiry revived speculation Wednesday that RCMP anti-terrorist officers may have prepared more than one fake communique which they attributed to the Front de Liberation du Quebec in December, 1971.

But the question remained muddled when RCMP Cpl. Bernard Dubuc told the inquiry he could not remember clearly what was contained in an envelope that he dropped off in a downtown Montreal telephone booth.

Dubuc did remember delivering two copies of a communique which the Mounties have already admitted they forged. It was the third envelope, the contents of which he could not recall, which left the issue unclear.

The inquiry, headed by labor lawyer Jean Keable, has tabled documents which indicate the mysterious envelope may have contained nothing more than a third copy of the same fake communique, issued in the name of the "Minerve Cell" of the FLQ. The forgery was supervised by Chief Supt. Donald Cobb, then head of the Mounties' anti-terrorist operation in Quebec.

The phoney communique, calling for a violent separatist revolution, was intended to "sow confusion" in terrorist ranks and to counter a move by former FLQ ideologue Pierre Vallieres, who had called on his colleagues to renounce violence and work peacefully for independence through the Parti Quebecois.

Confusion arose Wednesday when the jocular, straight-talking Dubuc said he could not remember clearly which FLQ cell had been named in the third message which he dropped off. The name "Minerve" did not jog his memory.

Dubuc started by describing how he was assigned to leave two "sealed envelopes" in places where FLQ cells usually chose to deposit their communiques. It was a trademark of the terrorist group in the late 1960s and 1970s to drop off the messages, then call newspapers or radio stations to pick them up.

Dubuc said he chose well-known churches in Montreal and Quebec City. He left the first envelope in the Eglise St. Sauveur in the provincial capital and placed a call to Le Journal de Quebec. He dropped off the second in the Oratoire St. Joseph in Montreal and placed a call to Montreal-Matin.

Then he added: "I did, at least, drop off another communique."

He said the third envelope came to his mind at about the same time former federal solicitor-general Francis Fox admitted last year the RCMP had prepared the "Minerve" fake. Fox said at the time, and Cobb and other Mounties have maintained since, that this was the only FLQ forgery the force ever caried out.

Dubuc said he could only remember dropping off the third envelope, addressed to the Montreal weekly newspaper Quebec-Presse, but could not remember further details.

After examining RCMP files containing all the FLQ communiques from the 1971 period, Dubuc said he "deduced" that the mystery envelope must have contained a third copy of the "Minerve" communique.

Lawyers for the inquiry indicated they would question Dubuc further today, apparently in an effort to clarify the situation.

Under questioning, Dubuc stressed several times that he could not remember for sure what was in the envelope.

"I could have been dreaming," he said, questioning his own memory. "I am not the only one who was dreaming."

Dubuc, whose clear memory on other questions had distinguished him from several other police witnesses, said he had mentioned his suspicions about a second fake communique to his RCMP superiors to keep the force from being caught by surprise.

Claims Near Nil: Fund Spills Over

OTTAWA (CP) — A fund created in 1972 to deal with the effects of spills from oil tankers has reached twice its intended size because there have been mext-to-no claims against it.

Transport Minister Otto Lang told the Commons the fund reached $50.08 million by the end of last year and the government has no firm plans to spend the $25 million surplus.

There were only two claims since 1972 — totalling $645.90.

Another $88,748.31 has been spent on adminstration fees and various expenses.

The fund was established in 1972 to build up a coffer of $25 million from levies imposed on oil cargoes after the tanker Arrow went aground in Chedabucto Bay., N.S.

The 2.5-million gallon Arrow spill in 1970 fouled beaches, killed birds and marine life, and cost more than $4 million to clean up.

As the fund grew without claims against it, the levy against oil cargoes was dropped in 1976.

Gov't Eyes Luxury Loto

Times News Services

OTTAWA — The federal government is studying the feasibility of setting up luxury $20, $25 and $100 lottery games, possibly in the next three or four months, a Loto Canada official said Wednesday.

"There are researchers out in the market now testing whether the public would accept a $20, $25 or $100 draw," said Dan Pugliese, vice-president of promotion for Loto Canada.

"These would be luxury games and offered on a limited basis," he said. "We know white collar workers and secretaries buy the $10 tickets. But it is a question of not pushing beyond the maximum."

Lotteries are a $1 billion industry in Canada and the maximum could be $1.5 billion, he said.

Loto Canada started looking for alternatives to the $10 lottery when revenues slipped as the number of buyers dropped from 6.5 million in the April 2, 1978 draw to 5.5 million in the June 9 draw to 4.4 million in the August draw. There were 4.7 million buyers in the October draw.

A $1 Loto Select was scrapped last October — one month before the official start-up when the provinces refused to allow the federal govenment to compete in the low-cost computer game.

And scrapping of the Loto Select cost the federal government more than $13 million, Sport Minister Iona Campagnolo, revealed Wed-

Air Canada Tickets Slashed to Fill Seats

Air Canada announced today it will slash fares between March 27 and May 7 to fill surplus charter class seats. For $159 in Canadian funds passengers will be able to purchase round trip tickets between Victoria and New York, Victoria and Montreal or Victoria and Toronto.

Regular return fare is $448 to New York, $434 to Montreal and $402 to Toronto.

Similar reductions are planned on all other Air Canada routes in North America — except to Florida.

Glen Steeves, Air Canada's district manager in Victoria, said the company does not view the cuts as a price war.

"We don't know if the competition plans similar reductions."

But Air Canada has foreseen a surplus of charter class seats during the seven-week period and has reduced fares by more than 50 per cent in order to fill them.

Other sample round trip fares from Victoria include: Halifax $209, Quebec City $159, Regina $89, Edmonton $75, St. John's, Nfld., $209, and Charlottetown $209.

The formula: During the seven week period, the return fare for an Air Canada trip of 2,500 miles or more will be $209.

Between 1,901 and 2,500 miles, including most central Canada points, it will be $159.

From 1,501 to 1,900 miles it will be $129 and from 1,101 to 1,500 miles it will become $109 return.

From 700 to 1,100 miles the fare is $89 and under 700 miles the return fare will be about the usual one-way economy fare.

All rates are for round-trip tickets in Canadian funds.

The restrictions:

Reservations must be made at least seven days before departure and the stay must be at least seven days and not more than 30 days.

Travel must be completed by June 6. Tickets are to be purchased in advance and reservations can not be changed. There is a $20 charge for cancellation.

Passengers with existing charter reservations for the period may change them to sale-price fares.

Prospective passengers must make reservations at least seven days before departure.

Tickets must be bought within seven days of reservation. Payment must be made three days before departure when booking is made only seven days ahead.

The seven-week reduction makes fares lower than at any time in the past 10 years, said Guy Chiasson, Air Canada vice president for passenger planning and marketing.

He said Air Canada's obligation to operate seven days a week through all seasons had created a surplus in the spring and this brought about the decision

"The fact that we are a scheduled carrier allows us to make this surplus available at these almost unprecedented prices," he said.

Tax Deductible Mortgages 'Economically Perverse'

Times News Services

TORONTO — The federal government has rejected a proposal to review deductibility of mortgage interest payments, but has given varying degrees of support to 46 general recommendations by a task force on industrial strategy.

The 12-member panel task force — made up of six labor leaders and six businessmen — was set up after the First Ministers' Conference in February 1978 to propose ways to strengthen industry.

The 46 recommendations came in its report, released Wednesday.

Most of the recommendations were general. "We accept most of them, agree in principle with some and disagree on a very few," said Robert Andras, president of the Board of Economic Development Ministers.

The three proposals rejected were a review of deductibility of mortgage payments to aid low income families; a study of value added taxes in place of existing taxes and elimination of sales taxes on building material.

In its response, the government said "a consideration of proposals made to date for mortgage interest deductibility shows them to be generally regressive, discriminatory against tenants and to produce economically perverse effects on housing prices, capital markets and interest rates."

Hydro Buses Stay; Gas Hike Delayed

B.C. Hydro will continue to operate and finance urban transit in the Victoria area and Greater Vancouver for an indefinite period, Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said Wednesday.

The announcement means a three-cent-a-gallon hike in the gasoline tax due April 1 has been postponed.

Hydro will pay this year's operating deficit of about $60 million and will continue to finance transit until the provincial government can pass legislation to amend its transportation policy.

Vander Zalm indicated the new legislation would come as soon as possible in the session, which is expected at the end of March.

The Capital Region District and the Greater Vancouver Region District were to take over urban transit April 1, but GVRD directors said Monday they would not sign a transit agreement until the provincial government agrees to pay a greater share of anticipated deficits.

"We're halted for the time being, and we're going to have to take a different course in part," Vander Zalm told reporters.

He said he has had excellent co-operation from other communities within the province, including Greater Victoria, "all of which have recognized the provincial transit funding formula as the most generous in Canada.

"It is regrettable that the GVRD failed to take on the transit function, thus losing a valuable tool in their otherwise extensive planning programs."

Vander Zalm said his ministry would take advantage of the delay to study other means of financing and to arrange the transfer of staff from B.C. Hydro to the Urban Transit Authority.

"I don't mind the breathing time, and certainly I'll take advantage of it — but I'm not the type of person that likes to put things off. I would have preferred to have made the transfers by the initial date."

The minister said his ministry is preparing legislation which would allow him to appoint a commission to handle transit in Vancouver and surrounding area — an action he said Tuesday he is prepared to take.

Vander Zalm said the two transit systems would continue to be financed by Hydro, and plans to impose a three-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax in the two regional districts will be shelved for now.

Capital Region District board chairman Murray Glazier welcomed the postponement.

The delay will give the CRD time to negotiate a better agreement with the provincial government.

Victoria Man Among Four In Drug Bust

Four persons including a 57-year-old Victoria man are in custody following the seizure of a pound of heroin with the street value of up to $1 million at Vancouver International Airport Tuesday.

Wah Young of 107 Government Street, Sharon Carlson, 40 of Langley, and Gary Robert Morris, 43, and Helen Fraser, 63, both of Vancouver were to appear in provincial court in Richmond today.

The four are charged with conspiring to import heroin and conspiring to traffick in the drug.

Taping Fouls Up Fulton Charge?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A radio reporter's efforts to gain first-hand knowledge of day-to-day police work has resulted in an uproar in legal circles and suggestions that charges against a judge and a suspected prostitute will have to be dropped.

George Garrett of CKNW recorded a heated discussion between Mr. Justice E. Davie Fulton of the B.C. Supreme Court and a police officer when the judge was involved in a minor accident.

Garrett was also involved in recording a conversation between an undercover police officer and a woman in downtown Vancouver.

CKNW made both tapes public, the one involving the prostitution suspect as part of a news story about the first charge of soliciting in the city in a year.

The tapings aroused concern among Crown lawyers, who feel that the recordings could jeopardize trials before the courts.

China Refuses To Back Down As War Hotter

Reinforced tank-led Chinese troops pressed their attack on two provincial capitals in Vietnam today and official Peking sources said China would not withdraw its invasion forces which were already fighting the Vietnamese regular army.

Japanese reports said the Soviet Union has begun mobilizing troops along its Chinese border in apparent response to Peking's 15 mile thrust into Vietnam. Japan offered to mediate the Sino-Vietnamese dispute, saying it feared a long war.

Reports from Hanoi said Chinese reinforcements were pouring through the ancient "Friendship Pass" invasion route into Vietnam with a battle shaping up for control of Lang Son, barely 80 miles above Hapoi.

Meanwhile, Khmer Rouge forces loyal to ousted Premier Pol Pot have attacked Vietnamese-led troops in northwest Cambodia and killed more than 50 of them, Khmer Rouge Radio said today.

Indochina analysts here said Khmer Rouge guerrilla units were exerting pressure in the area because the Vietnamese were thought to be having serious supply problems.

The radio claimed Russian and Cuban advisers were helping command the Vietnamese army forces, however, Vietnam continues to deny it has any forces in Cambodia.

As the United States asked the United Nations Security Council today to convene an urgent session "the situation in Southeast Asia," the Soviet Union was still keeping mum again on its intentions in Vietnam despite reports of it had warships and reconnaissance planes heading toward the scene of the Chinese-Vietnamese conflict.

The U.S. stressed it wants the UN agenda to include the "situation in Southeast Asia" and not solely the Chinese invasion of Vietnam.

Byelections Called

Premier Bill Bennett announced today that byelections will be held May 31 to fill vacancies in the ridings of North Vancouver-Seymour and North Vancouver-Capilano.

Granduc Mine Re-Opening

Provincial Economic Development Development Minister Don Phillips today announced an American-owned company, Esso Minerals Canada Ltd., will reopen the Granduc mine near Stewart.

The project will provide about 330 jobs in the copper mine and mill and an annual payroll of $6 million.

Work would begin this summer to reactivate the mill.

Because of the American ownership, the project will have to be approved by the federal government's Foreign Investment Review Agency.

Granduc operated the mine from November, 1970, to June 30, 1978, and took out 600,000 tons of copper concentrate before closing due to low prices.

With the price of copper increasing, the mine has become viable again.

Phillips said new mining methods which will be employed by Esso are also a factor in making the mine viable.

The mine will be a major economic boost for the northwestern section of B.C., he said.

The town of Stewart had been hard hit by the mine closure.

CS Fingerprinting Gets MP's Ire

By RON CLINGEN
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Charges of "undemocratic governmental invasion of privacy" were hurled in the Commons Wednesday amid renewed evidence of a massive unexplained fingerprinting of public servants.

Leeds Conservative MP Tom Cossitt demanded that Prime Minister Trudeau be required to make a statement of government policy on the matter — something Cossitt has been unable to get after more than two years of trying.

The MP — who has carved a reputation as a security bloodhound — said the latest fingerprinting has been within the past two weeks on certain members of the national headquarters staff of the employment and immigration department, housed in the Bourque Building at 305 Rideau Street.

Cossitt said the fingerprinting is being "surreptitiously" conducted even on public servants in non-security positions.

His attempt to have the Commons order a statement by the prime minister failed because it did not receive the necessary unanimous consent.

Trudeau was in Toronto at the time with nine of his cabinet ministers preparing for a full cabinet session and other meetings there today.

Cossitt told the Commons the fingerprinting of public servants "appears to constitute a horrendous governmental invasion of privacy and resemble undemocratic procedures practised by fascist and communist police states.

Cossitt noted a question he placed on the Commons order paper in February of 1977 in which he demanded a full explanation of the fingerprinting, still remains there unanswered. He has tried unsuccessfully on at least four occasions to push the government into supplying the answer.

"But every time I bring the issue up in the House of Commons, I get more phone calls from public servants who say they have been fingerprinted," he said.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market was mixed in active mid-afternoon trading today.

Management companies gained more than 34 points as Brascan Ltd. A climbed 1⅛ to $20½.

Analysts said rumors were circulating of a possible bid by Brascan to purchase controlling interest in Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Ltd. from Continental Oil Co. in the U.S. Brascan officials could not be reached for comment.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said class A and B shares of Laidlaw Transportation Ltd. will be removed from trading March 1 and replaced with subdivided class A and B shares without par value.

Shareholders of the company approved a two-for-one split on Jan. 15.

Among other industrials, Dome Petroleum was down 2¼ to $112¼, Inter-City Gas ⅞ to $8⅛, Gulf Canada Ltd. ¾ to $41¼, Petrofina Canada ⅞ to $24½ and Westburne International ⅝ to $39¼.

New York

Stock prices moved down slightly today amid uncertainty about the war in Vietnam and fears that inflation may increase.

Government sources said they expected the report Friday of consumer prices to show a one per cent increase in January — a 12 per cent annual rate. Federal Reserve Board Chairman G. William Miller said it was hard to envision inflation declining from last year's nine per cent rate.

Oil stocks were generally down as observers waited to see if Saudi Arabia will join other oil producers in raising prices.

Montreal

All leading indices advanced as prices posted gains on the Montreal Stock Exchange today. The composite index climbed 0.46 to 238.85 in moderate trading.

Trading in rights shares of Bank of Nova Scotia was again active, as the issue remained unchanged at 34 cents on a volume of 192,008 shares traded. Bank of Nova Scotia shares were also active, gaining ⅛ at $24¼ on a volume of 52,408 shares traded.

London

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 459.2, up 2.3.

Industrials and banks gained and golds were steady.

Canadian stocks eased.
